Smudge Pots Burning A More Cheerful Country To Bar Filipinos Worry Is Necessary

By Arthur Brisbane

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 24—Coming here on Paul Shoup's Southern Pacific, through Phoenix, Yuma, and northward along the Pacific, you observe thick clouds of smoke that elsewhere would mean dangerous fire.

Through the smoke at regular intervals you see long rows of flame. They come from the smudge pots with which orange growers fight frost and counteract its effects.

All groves are warned by telephone and radio of approaching cold, and with the scientific management, thanks to co-operation, a temperature that would once have meant destruction to the crops means only the cost of burning a little low-grade oil.

This Western land, like every other part of the country, has its share of the depression, but Eastern visitors observe in Los Angeles crowded streets more cheerfulness than in New York or Chicago.

Perhaps "depression" is more easily borne in brilliant sunlight than in cloudy cold.

Also, this section of the country, with Boulder Dam under way and government work six months ahead of schedule on the $165,000,000 job, has its greatest problem, WATER SUPPLY, permanently solved.

Los Angeles and 12 other cities in this Boulder Dam district, recently voted, five to one, with admirable courage and foresight, a bond issue of $220,000,000 to build an aqueduct to bring the water to the thirsty land and its enormous, quickly-growing population.

The government hesitated and delayed about spending $165,000,000. Los Angeles and 13 sister cities promptly voted $55,000,000 more than the total government investment, to take care of the water.

Dam and aqueduct will be ready in six years, and the next step will be the spending of $25,000,000 by the Imperial Valley. That bond issue will build a canal aqueduct in size and make the valley independent of a canal now in use that runs through Mexico at the mercy of revolution or international difficulties.

George Young, publisher of the Los Angeles Examiner, which prints this column, would like you and business men generally to know that the circulation of the Sunday Examiner is 485,000, about double that of his nearest and only Sunday competitor. There is, as Mr. Sol Wertheim says, "no substitute for circulation, not even 'schmuss.'"

A cartoon published today on the front page of Mr. Harry Chandler's Los Angeles Times ought to be republished in every newspaper in the country. It shows a gigantic Chinese on his hands and knees, chin on the ground, a Japanese soldier one-tenth the size of the Chinese giant stands, gun and bayonet in hand, with one foot on the Chinese neck.

Above the cartoon, which Mr. Chandler should send to every member of Congress, is written, "IS THIS AN ARGUMENT FOR OR AGAINST PREPAREDNESS?"

Senator Shortridge of California, starting for Washington, where his colleague, Senator Hiram Johnson, is already mixing anti-administration political medicine, says that he, Shortridge, will urge Congress to restrict Filipino emigration. Since it is the policy of this country to accede to the demand that Asiatic competition be kept out, Senator Shortridge does not see why an exception should be made in favor of Filipinos, merely because Uncle Sam rescued them from Spain and spent many millions giving them public schools and good roads.

American sugar growers think they should be protected from free competition of labor in the Philippines, represented by admission of Filipino sugar to this country tax free of tariff.

Senator Shortridge intends also to oppose the suggestion that Japanese immigration be permitted upon a "quota basis."

Many manufacturers, interested in the certainty of cheap power, plan additions to the long list of industries already established on this coast. One of the most fully developed here is the automobile tire industry. Firestone, Goodrich, Goodyear and United States tires all have factories and all are busy. With

PARKING BAN OFF ALL BUT 14 STREETS

Traffic Commission, on Curley Plea, Adopts the 12-Hour "Alternating" Plan

All but 14 streets in Boston's downtown area will go under the alternate parking rule—12 hours on one side and 12 on the other, alternately—under a vote today by the traffic commission at a special meeting in police headquarters.

The vote was at the request of Mayor Curley, who believes alternate parking may solve the parking problem and at the same time benefit shoppers and merchants.

As soon as amendments can be drawn up and made effective alternate parking will be authorized in all except the following streets downtown:

Bromfield, Carver, Causeway (southeasterly side, from Canal to Washington st. North), Devonshire (from State to Water), all of Elm st., Fruit, Lagrange, Newbury (from Hereford st. to Massachusetts ave.), all of Parmenter st., School, Somerset (from Beacon st. to Ashburton pl.), State st. (from Washington to Congress), Tremont st. (from Beacon to Park) and Winter st.

The special meeting, presided over by Chairman Joseph A. Conry, was attended by Commissioners Eugene C. Hultman and William P. Long, with Christopher J. Carven representing Commissioner Joseph A. Rourke of the public works department, and Acting Chairman John O'Callaghan of the street commission representing Commissioner Thomas J. Hurley, who is ill. John F. Hurley, traffic commission engineer, was also present.

Railmen on One Road Take 10 P. C. Pay Cut

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)—Train forces of the Georgia & Florida railroad, who are members of the "Big Four" Brotherhoods, have accepted a 10 per cent wage reduction, effective Dec. 1, it was learned today.

The Georgia & Florida, in receivership, had threatened to stop operations unless a cut were taken. The road had already cut the pay of all other employes 10 per cent.

Football Star Dies of Infected Bruises

Creston, Iowa, Nov. 24 (AP)—Donald Stickels, star end on the Creston high school football team until he became ill about three weeks ago, died in a hospital today.

A blood transfusion last night, with his father furnishing the blood, failed to save the boy's life. Physicians said Donald died from a general infection possibly aggravated by bruises received in a football game.

$15,000 of Fowler Cash to Wellesley

Newport, R. I., Nov. 24—The will of Miss Nellie L. Flower of Newport, who died November 19 in Boston, where she was a teacher at Choate private school, was filed for probate today.

Half of a $30,000 estate is left to Wellesley College, and $1000 is for students' aid. Miss Fowler is said to have had to work her way through the same college.

HEAVY GUARD AT CHELSEA POLLS

With State and city police and State supervisors watching the balloting closely, Chelsea voters turned out heavily today in the first three hours of the annual city primaries, starting at noon.

The close watch kept throughout the voting turned up no overt act during this period, and all was unusually peaceable for Chelsea.

Mayor John J. Whalen, in company with Police Chief Charles M. Finn, toured all 10 precincts and declared everything to be going smoothly.

The state supervisors were furnished by Gov. Ely at the request of Rep. William H. Malley, one of the seven candidates for the mayoralty nominations—two to be nominated.

Voters went to the polls facing a double problem, not only in the number of aspirants for office, but in a double duplication of names in the mayoralty race.

Two Quigleys and two Crowleys are contenders in the battle for the two mayoralty nominations in the non-partisan primaries, while two Cohens are listed among the candidates for other municipal offices.

MANY CHARGES MADE

Always the scene of a bitter primary campaign, Chelsea this year has seen the most hotly contested battle in years. Open charges of registering of "mattress" voters and hinting of other underhand work have been made frequency during the past few weeks by the rival candidates.

Former Mayor Lawrence S. Quigley and his one-time secretary and present bitter foe, former Rep. Francis D. Crowley, are the principal contenders in the mayoralty race. At the last minute another Quigley and a second Crowley, both political unknowns, entered the race for that nomination.

POLICE GUARD POLLS

They are Charles F. Quigley, a contractor, and William F. Crowley, at present unemployed. Quigley filed his own papers on Nov. 14, the last day for filing papers, while Crowley's were filed on the same day by former Alderman Joseph Greenglass.

The other three candidates for the mayoralty nominations are Mildred Young, Communist, John W. MacLeod and William H. Melley.

The remaining 60 candidates, including the rival Cohens, will battle for 12 nominations for aldermen-at-large, ward aldermen and school committeemen.

Heat Sets 4th Record in 4 Days at 72

The fourth successive record-breaking day sent the mercury at the weather bureau to 73 at 2 p. m., as the official forecaster predicted cooler weather for tomorrow, followed by rain.

Warning of a disturbance of great intensity moving northeastward from the Bahamas with gale force was sent out to coastal points and ships at sea. While Boston and New England was enjoying spring weather, Moorhead, Minn., at the same time reported 7 inches of snow.

Even with the predicted drop in temperature, Thanksgiving Day will be milder than has been the case in years. It would take a much more severe change than that expected to make the holiday as cold as normal.

With the mercury at 73 this was the warmest Nov. 24 on record in the more than half a century of the weather bureau here. Twenty-three years ago, in 1908, the temperature was 68 on this date, and ever since then it has been below that figure.

SALARY CUT FOR SOLONS ASKED

Reductions of from 5 to 20 per cent in the salaries of state employes, from the Governor down, are proposed in a bill filed in the House today by Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware.

Employes receiving less than $2,000 a year would not be cut, under the terms of the bill. All reductions would be for 1932 only.

Those getting $8,000 and over would be cut 20 per cent. All receiving from $6,000 to $8,000 would be cut 15 per cent, those receiving $4,000 to $6,000 would sacrifice 10 per cent, and employes receiving $2,000 to $4,000 lose 5 per cent.

Gov. Ely, with a salary of $10,000 a year would receive $8,000 for 1932, under the Sawyer bill. Legislators receiving $2,000 each, would be cut $100. Judges would also be affected.

O'BRIEN NAMED TARIFF CHIEF

Washington, Nov. 24 (AP)—Robert Lincoln O'Brien of Boston was named chairman of the tariff commission today by President Hoover.

O'Brien will fill the place to be vacated on November 30 by Henry P. Fletcher of Greencastle, Pa.

O'Brien for many years was editor of the Boston Herald.

In making the announcement at his regular press conference, the President said O'Brien had been an active Republican for more than 30 years and for the last three years had been president of the Middlesex Club, a leading Republican organization in New England.

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 24—Charged with mayhem, the allegation being that he attacked Alfred Ducharme of Canal st., and mutilated him, George Cadieux, formerly of Canal st., was arraigned today in district court and held without bail.

Cadieux is alleged to have resulted from a quarrel over Cadieux's wife. Ducharme is now at St. Joseph's Hospital and his condition is serious, according to Police Chief Irving Goodwin.

Police say Cadieux went to Ducharme's home shortly before midnight on Nov. 3 and called Ducharme to the door.

Ducharme was attired only in a shirt and bathrobe, according to the police, and Cadieux is alleged to have seized him, thrown him to the ground after a tussle and seriously mutilated him.

Hearing in the case was continued to Dec. 28. After Cadieux fled from the scene of the attack, Dr. V. E. Bolduc was called and performed a delicate operation, which it is believed may save the injured man from the serious effects of the unusual attack.

With 23,000 choice seats left for the Holy Cross-Boston College unemployment benefit game Thursday at Harvard Stadium at 2 p. m., Mayor Curley, Budget Commissioner Charles J. Fox and other sponsors of the game today started a concerted drive for the sale of the remaining tickets.

The sale to date of about 35,000 tickets gives to the unemployed the receipts from 3000 tickets, sponsors pointed out. Funds from the first 32,000 sold must be used for team guarantee and expenses.

To urge the sale of more tickets among Boston's elite Mayor Curley today addressed a meeting of the Junior League at its Marlboro st. headquarters.

He supplemented his game appeal with a request to the society girl for old clothes that might still be used for the less fortunate.

According to the arrangement with the city, the proceeds of the sale of the first 32,000 tickets will cover all expenses, including the $30,000 to be paid each of the two colleges, a $60,000 guarantee, and the $15,000 which goes to Fenway Park under an agreement made before the game was transferred to the stadium.

All the net proceeds after the sale of the first 32,000 tickets will go to the relief fund.

The stadium holds 58,000 people and if the 26,000 seats are sold over and above the 32,000 needed to cover the agreement with the colleges and the ball park, there would be $78,000 for the poor fund, less incidental expenses.

Officials of Fenway Park said today they would have been glad to have relinquished their claim had they known of the change to the stadium before they had spent $11,000 for special bleachers. They said the lowest price they had received for the B. C.-H. C. game in recent years was $18,000. This is being reduced by $15,000 this year, this sum to include the $11,000 expense for bleachers.

JAPS AND CHINESE IN NEW BATTLE NEAR MUKDEN

HEAVY LOSSES REPORTED ON BOTH SIDES

Each Rushes Reinforcements to the Front on Peiping Railroad Line

Latest developments in the Manchurian crisis:

1—Mukden reports battle raging on new front southwest of that city, with an undetermined number of killed and wounded of both Chinese and Japanese troops.

2—Japanese reinforcements were sent to the front in motor trucks from Mukden.

3—Dr. Wellington Koo, new Chinese foreign minister in Nanking, sent to the League Council in Paris new demands for enforcement of Japanese troops' withdrawal, and warning of a "defensive war" on the part of China.

4—In Paris, the League Council adjourned until tomorrow to consider Dr. Koo's note.

Copyright, 1931, by the Associated Press

Mukden, Manchuria, Nov. 24 (AP)—Fighting began on a new Manchurian front today between Japanese and Chinese forces southwest of Mukden along the Peiping-Mukden railway.

Heavy casualties were reported on both sides.

One company of Japanese infantry and one of engineers, stationed at Chuliuho, were making a practice march when they clashed with a Chinese detachment of uncertain size and identity at Kaotaishan, four miles northwest of their encampment.

REINFORCEMENTS RUSHED.

News of the conflict was telegraphed to the Japanese headquarters here and a company of Japanese infantry was dispatched to the scene in motor trucks as reinforcements.

An official communique said it was uncertain whether the Chinese belonged to the so-called self-defense corps scattered throughout Manchuria or were remnants of former regular units.

A Japanese news agency reported that about 400 Chinese troops stationed at Heiminntun had moved out in the direction of the conflict.

TURN TO GREAT WALL

Although the Japanese were not officially admitting anxiety, there were strong indications that the high command's attention had turned from the north to the area between Mukden and the Great Wall of China.

Japanese leaders professed to hold lightly the purported movements of President Chiang Kai-Shek and Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, but a vigilant watch was being kept on developments southward to the Great Wall, and there was ground to believe that the Japanese army was ready to prevent another major Chinese offensive.

China Sends New Demand That League Oust Japs

Nanking, China, Nov. 24 (AP)—The Chinese Foreign Office has directed Dr. Alfred Sze, its representative at the League of Nations Council meeting in Paris, to present a new Manchurian proposal containing the following principal provisions:

Immediate measures by the League to bring about cessation of aggressive acts by the Japanese.

That within a fortnight of the date of adoption of the proposal by League Japanese troops shall have withdrawn completely within the railway zone.

That the Japanese withdrawal shall be supervised by neutral representatives.

Dr. Sze was instructed to inform League that if its previous resolutions continue to be ignored then Japanese forces will continue their aggressive activities without any League intervention or publicity, and the Chinese Government will be compelled to take measures of self-defense.

Appeal for U. S. Intervention, Paris Hears

Paris, Nov. 24 (AP)—The 12 members of the League of Nations Council, in another private session today made no progress toward a solution of the Manchurian problem, decided to await a new note from Wellington Koo, new Chinese foreign minister, forwarded from Nanking.

It is anticipated that Dr. Koo's note will be at hand the council will resume its sitting at 11 a. m. tomorrow.

Some of the council today believe that there is little hope of forcing Japan's withdrawal from Manchuria, but that China will appeal for American intervention.

R. I. SOLONS TO ACT ON RELIEF

Providence, R. I., Nov. 24 (INS)—With rumblings of the institution of "gag" rule by the Democrats, the House and Senate gathered in special session today to hear a message of Governor Norman S. Case, on unemployment. It was the first special session of the Legislature called in 20 years.

The governor's message was in support of his bill to appropriate $1,000,000 in state funds to help relieve suffering from unemployment. Under the provisions of the bill the 39 towns and cities throughout the State would be permitted to borrow relief funds direct from the state treasury at a rate of 3 per cent interest.

Each city or town would be allowed to borrow up to one-tenth of 1 per cent of their assessed valuation.

This region, like others, fond of sayings short and wise, reads this one in big type today: "The secret of happiness lies in letting the other fellow do the worrying."

The secret of HAPPINESS, perhaps, but not the secret of SUCCESS. He who lets the other fellow do the worrying usually works later for the other fellow that worries. Whoever believes that success can be achieved without worrying, has not known success.

Michelangelo had to worry about swindling contractors that supplied him with inferior materials in the building of St. Peter's, and complained to the Pope.

George Washington had to worry about his followers, that had a way of leaving him in the lurch.

Tom Mooney Trial Judge Leads in Pardon Drive

San Francisco, Nov. 23—Judge Franklin A. Griffin, who presided at the trial of one of the principal advocates of a pardon for the convicted Preparedness Day bombers, Thomas Mooney and Warren K. Billings,

In the following statement Judge Griffin explains his position:

It is my hope that Mayor James J. Walker of New York city can succeed in doing what no other person or group of persons has been able to do.

It is my hope that he may be able to bring a sufficient amount of the proper sort of pressure on the right persons to win for Tom Mooney a complete pardon.

I have no personal interest in Tom Mooney. I have no sympathy with such political and economic doctrines as he is alleged to hold, as far separate from my own as are the North and South Poles.

But it was in my court that a gross miscarriage of justice occurred. I resent very much that such a thing could have happened in my court. I wish to fulfill a sense of duty because no man should be denied justice.

I believe Mooney deserves nothing short of a pardon, because he was convicted on testimony which since has been exposed as perjured. At the time of his trial there might have been a semblance of evidence against him, but the State at this time is without one iota of legal cause for keeping Mooney in prison.

Sacramento, Cal., Nov. 24 (AP)—Mrs. Rena Mooney, wife of the convicted bomber, came here early this morning by motor bus and boarded the train which carried Mayor James Walker of New York toward San Francisco to plead with Governor Rolph for release of Tom Mooney.

Mrs. Mooney explained she "just wanted to ride down" to Oakland with Mayor Walker and his party. She found a place in a club car next to the mayor's private car.

GIRL'S BANDEAU CONVICTS PAIR

Peabody, Nov. 24—A bandeau found under a pillow, and flimsy garments found elsewhere in the apartment of Peter Bagngos, 44, single, of Union st., figured in police evidence against Bagngos and Mrs. Louise C. Chicopano, 35, of Lynn, in court today.

Both were found guilty of a statutory charge and the woman was given a suspended sentence, while the man paid a $25 fine.

Police broke three locks to get into the place. Mrs. Chicopano, who is said to have been separated from her husband for about a year, told police she went to the house to get a canary. Bagngos having given her a mate last week.

Boston Man Jailed on His 112th Arrest

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)—After records were produced to show he had been arrested a total of 112 times since 1895, Thomas F. Quinn, 58, of Jamaica Plain, Mass., was sentenced today to three months in the workhouse.

Quinn, police said, has been arrested 37 times in Boston and 25 in New York.

Ashburnham, Nov. 24 (AP)—Eight stores and a church were entered in a series of breaks here early today. It was the third time this year there have been brakes of this nature. Small amounts of cash were taken.

Back Bay Man Saved After Swallowing Two False Teeth

Two stray false teeth, lodged in the throat of a State engineer, broke up his sleep, brought a police ambulance into play and aroused a neighborhood early today in Back Bay.

The victim, Henry C. Daggett, 66, of 1022 Boylston st., is a civil engineer at Commonwealth Pier.

He awoke with a choking sensation to discover that the teeth had dislodged themselves from an upper plate.

Raced to City Hospital in a Back Bay police ambulance, Daggett was relieved by doctors and will undergo an operation for removal of the teeth.

BOY, 6, KILLED BY TRUCK

Returning from school, Brandon J. Sullivan, 6, of Bowers ave., West Somerville, was killed today near his home by a heavy truck, as he crossed Elm st.

Joseph A. Cossette of Washburn ave., Cambridge, driver, was questioned by police and motor vehicle inspectors but no charge was placed against him.

WALKER SEEKS FULL PARDON FOR MOONEY

New York Mayor to Make His Plea Before Gov. Rolph on December 1

San Francisco, Nov. 24—Mayor James J. Walker of New York, arriving here today on his mission to intercede for a pardon for Tom Mooney, was given a rousing reception by 3000 persons at the Ferry station, while a band played "On the Sidewalks of New York."

A self-appointed "cheer leader" mounted a truck and inspired a milling mob to break into repeated cheers for the smiling, dapper mayor from the East. Although here on a serious mission, Mayor Walker could not resist the temptation of indulging in sallies with the spectators who repeatedly broke into laughter.

The mayor said he would seek a full pardon for Mooney.

The formal plea by Walker for Mooney's release will be made before Governor Rolph Dec. 1.

Mooney's mother, Mrs. Mary Mooney, yesterday visited her son at San Quentin prison, where he is serving a life term in Folsom Prison.

Mooney shortly afterward severed all connections with Billings' case, and announced he would seek pardon on his own behalf only.

BOSTON SKIPPER GUEST OF CANNIBALS, CAPTIVE OF PIRATES

CAPT. ROBINSON ENDS 3-YEAR ADVENTURE

Thrilling Time Had in South Seas as 32-Foot Ketch Circles the Globe

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)—The odyssey of a Boston skipper—not quite so prolonged as that of Ulysses, but almost as exciting—ended today when William Albert Robinson brought his vessel and crew safely into New York harbor.

The crew was Eiters, native of Tahiti and reputed descendant of the royal family of that glamorous bit of earth. The vessel was the Ketch Svaap, all of 32 feet long. In it Capt. Robinson set out from New York on June 22, 1923, and for three and a half years knocked around the world, especially the South Sea islands.

"GUEST" OF CANNIBALS

Many an adventure befell the captain during the 32,00 miles he sailed to girdle the globe in a craft a timorous man might hesitate to cross a harbor in. Capture by Arab pirates on the Red sea coast near Mecca was not the least of them, nor was the time when he met cannibals socially.

But the thing that stuck in his mind as he came into port today was not the romance of the deep sea, but a matter of money. Why, he ruminated, did it cost $28 to take the 10-ton ketch through the Raritan and Delaware canal, when it had gone through the Panama canal for seven-fifty?

With the grizzled Polynesian Eiters adding a word here and there, in French, Robinson told reporters some of the adventures whose lure kept him away from home three and a half years.

ESCAPES PIRATES

One morning, when darkness still enfolded the Red Sea coast near Mecca, the doughty mariner was surprised and a little nonplussed to be awakened by 25 Arabs, with weapons dangling all over them, but it came out well, for although the combination pirate-brigands placed him pajama-clad on a horse and galloped away to an oasis, he made his escape after three days.

"Bluff and bribery," it seems, had something to do with his luck.

After two months browsing through the South Sea, he went to New Guinea. A trip up a great river brought him to a land of head hunters who were "most friendly."

Mrs. E. H. Robinson was on hand to greet her son, as was a representative of the mayor's reception committee, George Mand.

LIFE STARTS ANEW FOR WIDOW

HOME AGAIN AND GLAD

"I am only trying to forget," said Mrs. Emily Roberts Cobb as she rested in the living room of her foster parents' home in Mansfield after her return from Ducy Hospital, Brockton.

WIDOW PLANS FOR FUTURE

"I have made no plans. I don't know what I shall do—where I shall go." But Mrs. Cobb did deny that she will go to California, as has been rumored at Mansfield.

"I STILL HAVE MY CHILDREN"

"I am glad beyond words to be back here where I can see my children and be among friends." Mrs. Cobb expects to be able to remove bandages from head and foot soon. (Staff photos.)

APPEALS THIS YEAR GREATER THAN EVER

Hearts of All the Good Fellows Surely Will Be Touched to Bring Holiday Joy

The Boston Evening American announces today the opening of its Christmas Basket Fund for the 1931 season.

Get aboard, all you good fellows who can, for this year more than ever the lift of your generous hands will be needed.

There are hungry mouths to be fed, hearts to be made happy, little children to be shielded from disappointment and disillusionment.

The Christmas Basket Fund for the 1931 season is open, and a frank appeal is made to you, in the endeavor to assure that no needy family shall go this year without a substantial and satisfactory Christmas dinner.

NEED GREATER NOW

Last year several thousand families were cared for and made happy by Christmas baskets through the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

This year it is almost inevitable that the appeals will be greater in number.

Each Christmas basket provides for a family not only on Christmas Day, as a rule, but for two or three days thereafter, depending, of course, upon the size of the family.

You can aid the Christmas Basket Fund in two major ways. First, you can send in a donation to the fund. Second, you can take the names and addresses of one, two or as many families as possible, and provide for them yourself on Christmas Day.

Some good fellows prefer the one way, and others enjoy doing the service directly. But if you cannot do it directly, the Boston Evening American is only too glad to do it for you and will make your donation go as far as possible.

REQUESTS ALREADY

Many requests for Christmas Baskets have been received by this newspaper already, some from persons who were so fortunately situated last year that they were able to furnish baskets for others.

Other requests will be coming in rapidly and in this connection the Christmas Basket Fund editor wishes to instruct applicants for baskets to secure an endorsement from their pastor, doctor, children's school teacher or other reputable person, which will elimi-

RUM BOAT AND 5 MEN SEIZED

A daring attempt to run liquor into Boston harbor in broad daylight was halted this noon by the coast guard patrol boat 152 off Point Allerton. Hull, with seizure of the 75-foot fishing boat, Nancy, and 150 cases of choice liquors, valued at $15,000.

The captain and crew of four men were placed under arrest. The Nancy was towed to the Coast Guard base at East Boston. The liquor, intended for holiday customers, was transferred to the Appraisers' Stores.

Those arrested are Capt. Gus Carino of Norman st., West End; James Marieno of London st., Boston; Manuel Palberti of Boston, Arthur Jardani, Watertown st., Newton, and Pudo Costaneo, Clark st., Boston.

ELY PLUM LIST IS READY

Governor Ely said today he had prepared a long list of appointments and will present it to the Executive Council for approval at the regular session of that body tomorrow.

He would not, however, give any inkling of the changes he expects to make in replacing officials whose terms have expired, nor would he speak regarding those whom he will leave in office.

There are a number of "juicy plums" in the list, with more than a dozen important posts to be filled, and it is no secret that some of the best known State officials, as holdovers from past administrations, are to go.

After the council meeting tomorrow, the Governor will leave for his home at Westfield to spend Thanksgiving there quietly with his family. At the turkey dinner will be his wife, his mother and father, and his son, Dick.

TRAIN WRECKS TRUCK; 1 DEAD

Wilbur Cornell of White Rock rd., Providence, was instantly killed at Green Lodge crossing on the Westwood-Canton line, when his 10-ton truck was struck by a Boston-bound New Haven passenger train.

Police began an investigation after John Agno of 175 Sterling ave., Providence, crossing tender, told them he had stopped Cornell once for the train to pass, but that Cornell, ignoring warnings, started up again.

The truck was struck squarely by the train, which makes up at New London and which leaves Providence at 8 a. m. and Sharon at 8:40, and was carried 150 feet on the pilot of the locomotive before being tossed over to the westbound, main line rails.

Cornell, crushed and with both legs and the top of his skull severed, was jammed in the cab of the wrecked truck and acetylene torches were used to release the mangled body.

In dragging the heavy truck, part of the eastbound and westroadbeds were torn up, resulting in a tieing up of both lines for 44 minutes before repairs could be completed. The wrecked engine was towed away.

According to Crossing Tender Cagno, he hailed the truck when the train was far up the track and had started to chat with Cornell, when Cornell shifted his gears from high back to first and the truck suddenly shot ahead directly in the path of the speeding train.

Edison Condemned as 'Detriment to the World'

Albany, Nov. 24 (INS)—Thomas A. Edison was a "detriment to the world" because of his alleged lack of faith, Bishop Edmund F. Gibbons of the Albany Catholic diocese declared today in a lecture at St. Rose College.

"Edison, so far as I can learn, died an atheist," said Bishop Gibbons. "He did not believe in God, yet he was practically canonized by the public. I believe that the publicity given to his lack of faith at the time of his death made him one of the greatest detriments in the world today. He who makes a God of an Edison cannot be a Christian."

ALL'S SERENE ONCE MORE

Frieda Hempel, Metropolitan grand opera star, whose legal tilt with her sister over the possession of a $10,000 diamond cross, was settled today when Mme. Helen Shaper, the sister, paid Frieda $3500 and kept the jewel.

Drink From 'Wrong Side of Glass' as Hiccough Cure

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 24 (INS)—John Weber, 60, today made ready to go on the operating table in an effort to be cured of his hiccoughs. At an average rate of 25 times a an hour hiccoughs has shaken Weber, a railroad worker for the last eight days.

Los Angeles, Nov. 24 (INS)—Perry B. Lowe, 65, today claimed the world's long-time hiccough record. He has been hiccoughing 16 months, according to physicians. In August, 1930, Lowe was stricken with paralysis. Hiccoughs followed and physicians admit their helplessness.

New York, Nov. 24 (INS)—Persistent hiccoughing, such as several patients in this country are suffering today, is always a symptom of another ailment, usually serious.

Thus treatments effective for intermittent hiccoughs, usually caused merely by an overladen stomach, are of no use in the persistent type of hiccoughs.

Only an operation to remove the primary cause or a sedative strong enough to paralyse partially the irritated nerves of the diaphram are effective in these persistent cases.

Dr. Iago Caldston, chief of the bureau of information of the New York Academy of Medicine, made these assertions today in comment on the present "hiccough epidemic."

Physiologically, a hiccough is a spasm of the diaphram that causes air to rush into the lungs, but before it gets there the glottis (vocal apparatus) closes, causing the characteristic "hiccup."

For 15 days Ira A. King has lain in a hospital in Mansfield, O., suffering from persistent hiccoughs.

In San Francisco Henry Hall has spent 11 days of similar torture in a hospital. His condition, however, has been allayed by the administration of sodium amytal, a powerful sedative drug.

Persistent hiccoughing results from many serious causes, among them peritonitis, gastric obstruction following gastric operations, cancer of the liver or lower lung.

Intermittent hiccoughing such as everybody has experienced after meals is due to stomach distension and faint irritation of the nerves to the diaphram.

"Drunk" hiccoughs are the result of similar irritations.

All these types can be cured in many ways. Dr. Galston listed the following as equally effective with different types of persons:

"Painful gouging of the eyeballs.

"Pulling out of the tongue."

"Drinking from the wrong side of a glass.

"Gargling with plain water.

"Tickling of the nose to produce sneezes.

"Any sort of sharp surprise."

Mansfield, O., Nov. 24 (INS)—On the road to recovery after an operation which brought to an end to his two-week attack of hiccoughs, Ira A. King, Mansfield garage owner, today was reported to be in good condition in General Hospital.

At no time have his hiccoughs returned since doctors performed an operation on his gall bladder Sunday to remove the cause of his attack, an infection.

WIDOW PLANS A NEW HOME

By JAMES J. SMITH
Boston Evening American Staff Correspondent

Mansfield, Nov. 24—Mrs. Emily Roberts Cobb, whom a grand jury exonerated in the shotgun death of her husband, planned a future home for her two small children today while state officers returned to the cellar of tragedy for a final survey and photographs.

The attractive blonde widow of Justin L. Cobb, Jr., is back at the home of her foster-mother, Mrs. George F. F. Roberts in South Main st., the home she left only seven years ago to marry the son of a Mansfield bank president.

Limping painfully from a foot injury which she also sustained in the last battle with her husband, Mrs. Cobb entered the handsomely furnished living room and sank into a chair.

"There is hardly anything I can say about the case," she said. "I am trying to forget but that will be impossible. Of course, I am glad beyond words to be back here where I can see my children and be among friends.

"I have made no plans. I don't know what I shall do—where I shall go. It is difficult to think about such things. I certainly am not going to California as some people have said. I may reach some decision after I have talked with my attorney."

New Glider Record

Honolulu, Nov. 24 (INS)—Piloting an Albatross glider, Lieut. Scott today set a new American record by remaining up 6 hours, 36 minutes, 15 seconds.

BIG 'DISTILLERY RACKET'; 3 HELD

Police today delved into the details of a $20,000,000 scheme for financing Canadian distilleries and breweries, as three men in Municipal Court were held in bonds of $5000 each for alleged swindling of $8800 from a Boston investment house.

Watkin B. C. Leadbetter, 49, of Montreal, alias "Sir S. C. Rodney Fawcett;" John Sullivan of Montreal, formerly of Cambridge, and John F. Lehane, alias Harry Lane, of Miller ave., Cambridge, will be given a hearing Tuesday.

M. J. Meagher, president, and George F. Lawler, treasurer of M. J. Meagher & Co., Inc., of 161 Devonshire st., made the complaints.

A trap was set in a down town hotel by Police Inspectors George Augusta and John A. Dersey, who placed the three men under arrest.

According to police, the three men received money from the Meagher company for "expense account" in connection with the big Canadian scheme they were reported to have outlined.

Montreal, Ottawa, and other Canadian cities were being checked today by telegraph for information regarding the men and the truth or falsity of the stories they are alleged to have told.

Akron Off Again

Lakehurst, N. J., Nov. 24 (AP)—The U. S. navy dirigible Akron left today for a local cruise. Officers did not reveal its course but said the big ship would be back in its hangar tonight.

JUDGE SCORES AUTO LENDERS

Because he allowed four other persons to drive his automobile, Theodore Money of Exeter st., Back Bay, was order reported to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Ryan today by Judge Carr in Municipal Court.

Money, assistant librarian at the Boston Public Library, was found not guilty in the absence of proof that he warked the car when it was tagged twice by meter time.

"Anyone who allows his car to be driven by so many people should have his registration revoked," Judge Carr said.

Money testified that three of the drivers denied they parked the car and the fourth was in New York.

CONNIE TO QUIT FILMS FOR PARIS

Hollywood, Nov. 24 (INS)—Constance Bennett, now better known in the film colony as Marchioness de la Falaise de Coudraye, will renounce her motion picture career when her present contract with R. K. O.-Pathe expires and make her future home in Paris.

This was learned today from one of the young film star's close friends, to whom the secret was confided just before Miss Bennett married the marquis Sunday.

Miss Bennett has found the social activity of Paris to her liking. And it was in Paris where she first met the marquis. By coincidence it was in Paris that Gloria Swanson also met the marquis, whom she later married and recently divorced.

Belmont Man in Bankruptcy Plea

James A. Carrig, of Belmont, a real estate dealer at 1376 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy today in federal court.

He listed liabilities as $804,116, with assets of $77,532, of which $32 is in a Cambridge bank.

FERRY PIN SNAPS, GOES TO BOAT HOSPITAL

For nearly 30 minutes today 200 passengers drifted helplessly on the ferry Boston before two tugs caught her and haled her back to her wharf. A gear pin broke and she couldn't navigate. Here she is being towed to the East Boston yards.

MAGNOLIA ACTS FOR SECESSION

A petition calling for secession of Magnolia from Gloucester and annexation to Manchester was filed with the Secretary of State here today. The matter will be considered by the next session of the legislature this winter.

With the exception of a few persons the signers are chiefly recent residents of the exclusive Magnolia section.

DRIVER HELD IN HIT-RUN CRASH HURTING FIVE

Herbert Stevens, 23, of St. Peter's st., Jamaica Plain, was held in $1000 today in South Boston court as the alleged hit-and-run driver whose car, early today, struck another at E and East Fourth sts., South Boston, injuring five persons.

The case was continued until Friday for a hearing.

The five victims were taken by passing motorists to the Carney Hospital, where they were treated for injuries by Dr. J. C. Nigro.

The car which was struck was operated by James F. Lawton of Easterbrook rd., Wollaston. In the car with him were William Rowan, 30, of Highland ave., Wollaston; his daughter Helen, 11, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Herlihy of East Sixth st., South Boston, and their daughter, Catherine Herlihy, nine.

Notables to Attend Funeral of Murphy, Famous Wit

New York, Nov. 24 (INS)—A large gathering of prominent friends and associates will attend the funeral of Patrick Francis Murphy, noted social critic and wit, who died after a ten-day fight against pneumonia. The services will be in St. Patrick's Cathedral tomorrow morning.

Murphy, who was 71, was one of the most popular after-dinner speakers of his time, rivaling the reputation of Chauncey M. Depew. He frequently was asked to make the Fourth of July address before the American Colonies in London or Paris.

Born in Boston, Murphy became a member of the Massachusetts State Legislature at 21, but gave up prospects for a bright political career to enter business.

Operation Fails to Check Hiccoughs

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 24 (US)—An operation to check spasms of hiccoughing last night failed to relieve John Weber, 60, who has had the attack for eight days.

A second operation to sever certain nerves connected with the diaphragm is contemplated.

OLDEST LAND IN WORLD FIGHTS FOR ITS LIFE

This is the first of a series of articles on the crisis in the tiny European Republic of Andorra, where political leaders are engaged in a struggle against alleged domination by France.

By LAWRENCE A. FERNSWORTH
International News Service Special Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service.)

Encamp, Andorra, Nov. 24 — (INS)—Andorra, Europe's thimble-size country of less than 5000 inhabitants, is engaged in a death struggle to preserve its independence of more than a thousand years' standing against the encroachments of France.

"France is trying to grab us and make us one of her colonies," is the cry ringing up and down her deep narrow valleys flanked by great mountain walls. And so the council general, which is Andorra's parliament, composed of 24 peasants has just taken decision to oppose, by every possible means, all further efforts to France to intrude upon a sovereignty and independence which is said to date from the time of Charlemagne.

OLDEST IN WORLD

If necessary, the council has decided, it will appeal to the League of Nations. If it does so, the other nations of Europe may fing themselves obliged to pay homage to a country which, though small, has a greater claim than any of them to recognition on the score of antiquity. Andorra would be the oldest among them, because it has kept its institutions and form of government unchanged for more than 10 centuries.

CLAIMS PROTECTORATE

The dissatisfaction is the result of a long series of acts on the part of France which the Andorrans bluntly characterise as acts of aggression. What is more, they have flatly told France so in a resolution adopted by their council general.

The trouble arises in the French assumption that Andorra is a French protectorate. The Andorrans indignantly deny this. They have two co-princes and a president, the latter the supreme executive authority. One of the princes is a bishop in Spain and the other the President of the French Republic who got his title from the French kings who in turn got it from certain French counts.

Originally the bishop and the count stood in a personal relation to Andorra—sort of benevolent godfathers, as it were. The Andorrans say that this relationship, which dates from 1278, still exists, and that the fact that the President of France, as inheritor of the title of a certain count, is a prince of Andorra, is no way makes Andorra a French protectorate.

The acts of France which Andorrans call aggressive are attempts on her part to interfere with their internal affairs with which, say Andorrans, France has nothing to do.

A little more than a year ago when a Spanish company was granted a water power concession France insisted upon controlling the terms of the bargain. She also insisted upon being given permanent supervision of the highway which the company was to build through the country in return for the concession.

WON'T GIVE UP LINE

The latest action of France which Andorrans resent is her interference with the granting of a telephone concession. The concession was recently awarded to a Spanish company, well backed financially, but France, by threats, say the Andorrans, demanded the telephone concession for itself.

"But France will never get it," is the dictum of the council general.

Lost Balloonist Tells of Peril From Wolves

Balloonist Tells of Facing Death Amid Blizzard in Canadian Wilds

Buffeted by winds, Milford Vanik, 25-year-old Cleveland balloonist, was rescued near Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., after a perilous 430-mile journey through a raging blizzard. Vanik, reported missing for more than 24 hours, was unprepared for the trip, being dressed only in a business suit when he took off from Cleveland Thursday. In the following article he recounts his experiences.

By MILFORD VANIK
Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.

Dean Lake, Ont., Nov. 24—Now I know what wolves are like in a Northern Ontario bush. I thought they were police dogs. My balloon had crashed. I wasn't hurt and I started to make my way through the bush, stumbling as night came on. I saw two wolves. They were howling and I managed to chase them away.

DRIFTED IN STORM

The first time I saw them was while I was sleeping under my balloon. They came up and I had to chase them away. But I better go back to the start. I left Cleveland at 8:30 p. m., Thursday with the wind blowing from the northwest about ten miles an hour. In ten minutes I was over Edgewater Park and out over Lake Erie.

I kept my location until I passed over Sarnia about 12:30 a. m., Friday. That was the last time I saw land until I came down later that morning.

After passing Sarnia, which I recognized by the lake traffic, I rose above the clouds, at 1000 feet. Fog closed in about me. I had absolutely no conception about direction or speed. Then it started to rain and finally to snow.

LANDS IN WILDERNESS

It was the most terrible blizzard I ever was in. I tried to get above the snow. I drifted in the storm for hours. I finally lost all ballast and had to make a landing in the most God-forsaken country I ever saw.

It was all swamp, underbrush

and slashings. I came down at 35 miles an hour and knocked over 20 trees. The bags were finally hung up on a couple of trees and the basket rested six feet off the ground.

I cut the basket loose with my knife. It was raining and I hadn't slept for 71 hours. I covered the basket with the fabric of the balloon crawled inside and went to sleep.

Two hours later I was awakened by a noise. I lifted the fabric and saw what I believed to be a police dog. I whooped and yelled, hoping to attract its master, but it just turned and looked at me, and I realized it was a wolf.

I took the cover off my knife and snitched, and waited for him. He walked around a bit and then went away.

I started walking at 3:00 o'clock Friday afternoon. I walked for two days and two nights through the swamp. Once I was up to my waist in water. I ended up on a high peak where I collapsed.

A farmer then came along, picked me up and took me to his home.

HOT SPRINGS TO RIVAL RENO

Hot Springs, Ark., Nov. 24 (AP)—This resort now is out definitely to try to overcome Reno's quick divorce supremacy.

The Arkansas Supreme Court's decision yesterday, ending an attempt to repeal the State's new 90-day divorce law, has again set in motion plans to develop Hot Springs into a new divorce center.

Against Reno's six-week advantage in residence requirements, Hot Springs will match its proximity to the large centers of population and the drawing power of its famed thermal waters.

Although the move for the 90-day residence law originated here, and Hot Springs expects the greatest benefits from it, other cities in the state will seek their share of the business.

The chief rival probably will be Little Rock, the capital. Summer resort cities in the Northwest Arkansas Ozarks also are preparing to bid for quick divorce seekers.

Insurgents Seize Nicaraguan Town

Mexico City, Nov. 24 (AP)—Sandinista insurgents, under Gen. Pedro Salgado, captured the important town of Chichigalpa, state of Chinandega, Nicaragua, Sunday, driving out government troops commanded by American marine officers, according to Dr. Pedro Jose Zepeda, Gen. Sandino's foreign representative.

Zepeda said Sandino advised him that a considerable store of arms and ammunition was taken in the fight.

TRUCK PINS 3 IN WRECKAGE

Two men and a woman were seriously injured today when a heavily loaded truck tipped over in Cleveland Circle, Brookline, pinning them under the wreckage.

Jennie Beatrice 38, of Brewer st., Framingham, a passenger on the truck, was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital with a possible fracture of the ribs and spine.

John Montasi, 30, driver, and his helper, Louis Bonzzi, both of Framingham, were taken to the hospital

HE WAS HER 'JACK RABBIT'

Erlanger Aid's Notes Are Revealed

New York, Nov. 24 (INS)—Charlotte Fixel, former stage beauty, fanned the flame of love, not only in the heart of the late Abraham L. Erlanger, but in that of his aide as well, a letter on record today in her suit to establish herself as Erlanger's common-law wife showed.

It was written in purple ink by John J. Dillon, former general manager for the theatrical producer, who testified in Miss Fixel's support in establishing her claims to a third of the Erlanger millions.

He signed himself "Your Own Jack Rabbit," and addressed Miss Fixel as "Darling" and "Mama Lisa":

"Do you love your Jack Rabbit?" the letter said, in part. "Lots? Big heaps? That's fine. "Now give me a big kiss and hold me tight! ! ! !"

Another statement was:

"I suppose you will shoot the bankroll in Paris. Go to it, mama. I am with you. We are pals. Am I right? Yes! O. K. I love you and you are always so close to me."

NEW YORK CITY FOG-BOUND

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)—Fog crept in from the sea today, obscuring the tops of skyscrapers, wrapping Brooklyn bridge with invisibility and playing hob with traffic.

The West Shore ferry from Cortlandt st., Manhattan, to Weehawken, N. J., gave it up as a bad job and quit operating.

Four incoming liners dropped anchor at quarantine, delaying many passengers. Indications were that four others nearing New York might be delayed, including the Olympic and the Paris.

Ferries carrying workers to Manhattan from New Jersey, Staten Island and other points, and railroad trains were running three to 20 minutes behind time.

The Providence, from Providence and the George Washington, from Boston, due at their piers at 7 o'clock, were fogbound somewhere in the East River between City Island and the Battery at 9 o'clock.

UNSHARED MELANCHOLY OVER BURLESQUE AND SALOON

By GILBERT SELDES

OUR AUTHORS ARE LOOKING backward, and I, looking over their shoulders, am not quite so sad as they are. It is a matter of experience. Although I was white, able and twenty-one long before Prohibition set in, I entered a saloon about five times altogether in those good old days. There were so many other places to do your drinking. This makes me calm and critical about George Ade's calm and feelingful book, The Old-Time Saloon. And—second misfire on my part—although I long made a special study of forms of American entertainment, the burlesque show never seemed to me the best part of it. So I keep cool as I look over Bernard Sobel's entertaining volume on Burley cue.

Not Wet?

Mr. Ade repeats several times his motto: "Not wet—not dry—just history." It is, of course, history written by a man who enjoyed the pleasures and regretted the abuses of the saloon. And it is history, not argument. It includes character studies of barflies and barkeeps; it has all the familiar figures, the regulars and the occasionals; it gives the songs they sang and the language they talked. It almost gives me a nostalgia for the saloon I never knew. (It is illustrated by Gluyas Williams and John Held, Jr., and J. M. Flagg and Goldberg and Webster and Fisher and Irvin and others.) And it discovers a new villain.

A Whiskered Villain

The villain has nothing to do with the Anti-Saloon League. It is "the English syndicate" of which, frankly, I never heard before. I gather that, seduced by American promoters, many Englishmen put large sums of money into a combine of American breweries, and that this combine began to compete with the independent purveyors of beer by the desperate method of speeding up—not production, but consumption. The old-time, simple saloon had its fifty or sixty regulars. When competition became bitter the saloonkeeper had to force the sale; the saloon opened its doors to boys and girls; it obeyed no closing hours and kept a side door open on Sundays; it began to fix the cop on the beat. It had a "Ladies' Entrance." "They came in as ladies," says Ade, "and went out pie-eyed." (I suppose the difference in the speakeasy is that they still go out pie-eyed.) And there were too many saloons.

Two Fine Points

I am particularly grateful to Mr. Ade for two things. In his absorption with drink, he has not forgotten the drinker, a common fault with writers on both sides of the question. And he has seen clearly that the old Temperance movement was ineffective, a pious aspiration, no more; he knows that when business went into prohibition, when the Anti-Saloon League went into business, the thing succeeded. Perhaps the obvious lesson can be learned: that anti-prohibition will have to enlist business on its side, and become more than an impious aspiration, before it can succeed.

Was Burlesque Good?

Mr. Sobel's Burleycue (and I wish he had graced the name for us) is similar in tone to Mr. Ade's little book, although Burleycue is a large and elaborately illustrated volume. Sobel looks back with indulgence on burlesque, seems to feel that it never was much good, really, but feels that it isn't what it used to be. It is dying, he says, and tells why, without even a passing tear. Indeed, he seems sceptical of such enthusiasts as George Jean Nathan, Edmund Wilson and myself. Mr. Nathan believes that the burlesquers were being "driven from the stage and into the discard by a Puritan conspiracy, a wave of dull Art and a reduction of the United States Navy." Mr. Sobel, oddly, believes the contrary.

Cause of Death

For it is one of his few arguments that burlesque is dying because everything shocking in burlesque has been transferred into musical shows. The bad words of 1910 are so common now that even hysterical women do not laugh at a "damn" on the stage. The undress of an average Carroll show would put all the old troupers to shame. There is no standard of viciousness to prove that pink tights must cover the ankle. Anything can be said, and most things are.

Unfunny Dirt

My only regret is that the things said and done, both in burlesque and musical shows, are not so terribly funny. This year is the era of comic reference to digestive disorders on the stage—because comedy about sex has come out of the smoking room and into the co-educational speakeasy. There was a time when you could get humor out of the fact that a man was unfaithful to his wife. It takes a master to do that now.

Simple Sinfulness

The comedy of burlesque was always franker than that of its respectable rivals. It invented dirty gestures (most of which you can now see in revues, some even in movie versions of revues). It drained off a lot of amut from the proper shows, and at the same time it did not pretend to be proper itself. The absence of pretense was its saving grace. When the others took over its rough roars about sex, it had nothing left to go on with.

Burleycue is a fragmentary, anecdotal book, badly arranged (I regret to say), but full of actuality and life (I am happy to say). It has some of the incoherence of its subject. And as it starts before the Golden Crook and comes down to Minsky's, the stuff is all there.

Shall Bankers Bank?

Julian Sherrod's Scapegoats looks back not so far and with a more prejudiced eye. This is an odd book, written by an exbond salesman, published originally by him, and achieving such sales that Brewer, Warren & Putnam have brought it out in a regular edition. It tells how high-pressure salesmanship put over worthless stocks and bonds. It gives letters from the main office, "flashes" by wire to stir up salesmen, big promises—and little returns. He suggests that bankers go back to banking. He dislikes the idea of bankers as salesmen. I suppose he is a revolutionary.

MAYOR ATTENDS FUNERAL RITES FOR MULLEN

Mayor Curley, scores of city officials, and representatives of posts of the American Legion were in attendance today at the funeral services for William F. Mullen, assistant secretary to the mayor, who died at City Hospital Sunday after two week's illness.

The funeral procession was of such size that it was a half hour late leaving the Mullen residence, 24 Mora st., Dorchester.

Solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated in St. Matthew's Church, Stanton st., with Rev. Michael J. Cuddy as celebrant, Rev. D. J. Kirby, deacon; Rev. C. J. Sheehan, sub-deacon, and Rev. Herbert Driscoll, master of ceremonies.

After the service members of Thomas J. Roberts Post, American Legion, of which Mullen was a past commander, stood at attention while a bugler blew "Taps" over the flag-draped casket.

Rev. Fr. Cuddy read prayers at the grave in Mt. Benedict Cemetery and a firing squad of William F. Sinclair Post, the city employes' branch of the Legion, gave a three-volley salute.

Active pallbearers were members of Roberts Post. Mayor Curley headed the honorary pallbearers, others being Mullen's associates in the mayor's office: Secretary Cornelius A. Reardon, Chief Clerk John P. Mahoney and Assistant Secretaries John A. Sullivan, Edmund Hoy and James G. Tobin.

Touch of Home for Jailed Alimony Club Members

Chicago, Nov. 24 (AP)—Some 50 members of the Alimony Club in the county jail are going to get a touch of domestic life on Thanksgiving.

The plan is to have them act as waiters for the 1400 prisoners who are to be served with roast chicken and other Thanksgiving food such as the club members might have been given at home if they hadn't been arrested for not paying alimony to their former wives.

Alphonse Capone, recently sentenced to 11 years as an income tax dodger, has asked permission to furnish each prisoner with cake or candy.

WHOLE PIE FOR EACH CONVICT AT STATE'S

A whole mince pie for every convict is included in the Thanksgiving menu at State prison, Charlestown, Warden William E. Hogsett announced today.

An even 900 full-size pies were prepared today for the feast. There are 895 prisoners on the rolls today. The other five pies were baked for possible newcomers. Lifers number 182.

Thursday's dinner will include turkey soup, roast turkey and stuffing, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, squash, bread and coffee.

The prisoners will attend a movie show in the morning, followed by an hour and a half of yard liberty and the dinner.

In the evening they may listen to the radio with the new earphones recently installed in the cells.

TOSCANO SLAIN FOR 'KNOWING TOO MUCH'

OWNS DEATH CAR

Mrs. Pallazzo, sister of "Big Leo" and Frank Merangi, former gang victim, and sister-in-law of Mrs. Theresa Merangi, owns the roadster which Toscano was using and in which he is believed to have gone to his death in Revere Sunday night, not far from where Sangiorno's bullet-riddled body was found in an abandoned stolen car four months ago.

State and Boston police fingerprint experts racked their files for duplicates of two sets of prints found yesterday on Mrs. Pallazzo's car. That to which they attached the greatest importance was the set found on the windshield mirror of the roadster.

Toscano's slayers, fleeing the scene in the car, quite likely adjusted the mirror to gain the best possible rear vision in order to be aware of possible pursuit, police pointed out.

MAGRATH REPORT AWAITED.

The authorities also awaited with eagerness the report of Dr. George B. Magrath on the results of his autopsy on Toscano's body.

The finding of only one discharged shell and one bullet near the gangster's body in Borden st. is not consistent with the medical examiner's preliminary finding that three shots entered his body.

If the three shots were fired at the scene where Toscano was found, the three discharged shells should be there.

On the other hand, police believe it possible that the East Boston man was murdered in Boston and was a corpse on his last ride. The one shell found in that case, could only be accounted for as a gesture of contempt for the dead man or a measure of making sure that he was dead.

MAY HAVE BEEN LURED.

Residents nearby heard only one shot.

If Toscano was shot in Boston and was wounded or dead when taken to Revere, then he was not taken in the roadster, which bears no bloodstains.

But two cars may have been used; or the roadster may never have figured in the actual slaying and may have been parked in Norman st. all Sunday night. There is no proof to the contrary.

If Toscano went to Revere alive and of his own free will, police believe he was lured there as was "Sparky" Champa two years ago. They think the empty garage near which his body was found may have been presented to him as containing alcohol "ripe" for picking.

While apparently prompted by gang vengeance linked with vice and rum, a theory of jealousy was also considered. Mrs. Pallazzo, 40, a divorcee, and Mrs. Russo, the attractive widow, were asked if they had knowledge of anyone who might be jealous of Toscano. They said they had no such knowledge.

Cards found on Toscano showed that he had made trips to Montreal. On the back of some of them were notations in pencil listing beer and "shine," etc.

ARRESTED SEVERAL TIMES

There was also a letter from the Chelsea board of registration of voters showing that he had tried to register as a "mattress voter" in Chelsea from an address on Carroll st., but was denied a listing.

That Toscano had long been identified with bootlegging and hi-jacking had been common knowledge in East Boston and the West and North Ends. The Revere police learned today that he had many girl admirers. The names of some of them were found among his effects.

So, open garage. I gave him two pennies and he went out.

"I knew he had worked for this woman who owned the car, but I never knew what he did. He told me he would never tell me his business, because I talked too much. He never supported me or the children properly. He was always complaining of being broke.

"Only a few months ago I had him arrested for non-support and he was given three months. He appealed and when the case came before a jury in Superior Court in Boston I pleaded for mercy for him to the judge and jury. I told them I was willing to take him back and they placed him on probation.

"Seven years ago I had him arrested for bigamy, but that was when he was 21 and the woman is married now. I know he had enemies. He told me so, but I have no idea who could have killed him."

Wealthiest princes and their royal brides. Prince Azam Joli and his brother, Prince Monazan Joli, sons of the Nizam of Hyderabad, reputed to be the world's richest man. They are shown with their brides, Princess Dur-ai-Chemvar, the taller, and Princess Nilowfer Hanim Sultana, members of the Turkish royal family. The double wedding was performed amid oriental splendor at Nice. (I.N.R.)

Injured by Blank Cartridge

Martin Giovanello of Dale st., Roxbury, was handling a gun loaded with a blank cartridge at the American Legion quarters in 12 Church st., South End, last night, when it discharged, injuring both hands.

Killed by Car

Portland, Me., Nov. 24 (AP)—Wells Rogers, 52, a brakeman at the Portland Terminal yards, died today of injuries he received when he fell beneath a car's wheels.

nate confusion in the distribution.

Applicants should also set down their names and addresses plainly and be sure to include the number of persons in their families. This is important.

The Christmas Basket editor also wishes to urge reputable organizations, clubs, church societies to investigate families in their districts and to submit the names, addresses and the number of persons in needy and eligible families where baskets should be sent.

ACT EARLY

It will be a real service this year for the Christmas Basket Fund, but of necessity it will be a stern service. Therefore the appeal to the good fellows of the land—and this includes the women, of course.

There is a world of happiness in giving, more happiness than can be understood by a person who has not had this experience. That is why some of the good fellows who have done it before wish to be given the names of several families and to provide for these families personally.

Do not wait until too late. It is not too early now to begin the work and every good fellow in the land is needed, so get aboard and make this a happy Christmas for all those who have not fared so happily this year.

Address your communications and send your donations to the Christmas Basket Fund editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

And if you wish names of families, say how many, and the certified names will be forwarded to you.

You will be repaid in happiness, such happiness as you have never known, provided you have not done this before.

Do it today.

For Hard Coughs That Call For Super-Help

Creomulsion is made for coughs and colds that hang on. For coughs deep and difficult—coughs where you dare not risk a less effective help.

But careful people use it for coughs which seem milder—use it to do the utmost and be safe. For nobody knows where a cough may lead.

Creomulsion combines seven major helps in one. Some coughs yield best to one help, some to another. Doctors often differ on the best help, for coughs are not alike. So here we combine all the best—in he sure.

Creomulsion stands first. Here it is blended, emulsified and made palatable. For soothing membranes and combating germs, it is considered the supreme help in this type of cough.

But other helps are sometimes needed—pine tar, wild cherry, menthol, ipecac and others. Nobody can tell to which help your cough will soonest yield. So experts have combined in Creomulsion all best helps in one. No narcotic, nothing harmful to a child, but a never-say help to deal with all conditions.

The price is a little higher than lesser help. But your druggist guarantees it. Your money is returned if it fails to bring the quick, complete help you desire. Don't you think it worth that little extra to be sure that you are doing the utmost for a cough?

Now in three sizes 60c—$1—$2.

FIND THE SANTA THAT IS DIFFERENT

On account of having recently moved from Boylston St. to our new location, 110 Summer St., we take this method of informing the public by putting on this contest and awarding of these prizes so we may become better acquainted.

To test your skill we desire to find some one in Boston and vicinity who has originality, individuality and artistic ability. We would suggest cutting out the Santa Claus that is different, painting it, making a drawing. A Santa Claus made from a doll or rags, plaster of Paris or sawdust, paper or gotten up in any original form of a Santa Claus calling our attention in the one that is different in your exhibit.

For the most original and unique idea we will give to the five best answers as follows: 1st prize, your choice of a beautiful new upright piano or player valued at $550; 2nd, a Radio as second prize; a diamond ring as third; a wrist watch as fourth and a chest of silver as fifth prize.

Be sure and put your tag or label with your name and address on your exhibit.

We will have three competent judges to decide who the winners are. The contest closes Monday noon, Nov. 30th. Mail your answers or bring them to our store in person. In case of a tie prizes alike and of the same value will be awarded to each of the tieing contestants. The judges will award these prizes Wednesday, December 2nd. You can be at our store if you wish. However, it will be unnecessary as you will be notified by mail in case you win. No answers accepted after Monday, Nov. 30th. One week from December 2nd (the awarding of the prizes) you may call and get your exhibit of the Santa Claus if you desire, or we will give them to some child hospital with your permission.

A souvenir will be presented to all participants in this contest.

ALICE MEANS AND CONSTANCE CROCKER, TWO debutantes of the past season, are having an exhibition of their handwork, lamps and lamp shades, Christmas cards, etc., at the Hotel Vendome on Dec. 1, 2, 3 and 4. They have been serving an apprenticeship in an interior decorating shop on the Hill for the past year.

ALICE MEANS

Looked in at the Junior League yesterday about lunch time. We saw attractive Mrs. Clifford DeWitt Castle, (Mary Cool), formerly of Concord but now of New York, in a grey knitted costume which was most becoming.

Another very attractive young miss, Miss Mary Cleveland, was lunching with her. We particularly noticed Miss Cleveland at the Ritz on cabaret night in a gorgeous jade green princess gown with tiny puffed sleeves. Our impression is that she is not only very pretty, but talented—she looks interesting. We were not surprised to hear that she will have one of the coveted parts in Le Cercle Francaise play to be given in December at the Elizabeth Peabody House. Only those girls who speak French beautifully and fluently are chosen for the cast of these popular plays.

Elizabeth Cram to Be in Cast of Play

ELIZABETH CRAM, (BETTY TO HER FRIENDS), WAS also at the League luncheon. She also will be in the French plays mentioned above. Lee Marston was her luncheon guest and as we have told you many times, Miss Marston is one of the prettiest girls who came out this year, resembling Lois Morgan of moving picture fame.

MABEL BELL IN A RUST brown cloth suit with turquoise blue blouse was her jolly self exchanging confidences with Cynthia Waters, both debs of last season.

THE PARENTS League had a crowded meeting yesterday to hear about religious education of the young. To the casual observer, it was amusing to hear a bridge fight in one room of the hallowed Chilton Club and a religious controversy in the adjoining room. That is life! Tea was served by Mrs. Alexander G. Grant.

A PIECE OF POTTERY contributed by Mrs. Annette T. St. Gaudens will be a feature of the annual Thanksgiving Food sale which is to be held at 6 Byron st. this morning in the interests of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom. Cider and vegetables will be on sale from the farm of Mrs. Selma Bowditch Stone of Framingham, fruit from Mrs. John C. Lee of Wellesley, books from Mrs. John Richards of Chestnut Hill and contributions to the pie and cake table from Miss Alice P. Tapley. Many prominent women are co-operating including Mrs. Joseph D. Leland of Milton and Mrs. John S. Codman.

SOCIALLY THINGS ARE very dull at the moment. Matrons are out shopping for the Thanksgiving bird with its accompanying goodies, filling baskets for the less fortunate and collecting warm clothing and money to be distributed among the unemployed. In spite of the warm days, a cold snap is on the way. There are a few more teas for the debutantes but on the whole the week will be given over to family parties and reunions. Schools and colleges close Wednesday for over the week-end and informality will govern the social events of the rest of the week.

ON DEC. 1 THE LUNCHEON of the Massachusetts Federation of Music Clubs will be held at the Hotel Statler at 1 o'clock and, in conjunction with this meeting, a Christmas Gift Shop will be conducted. An exceptionally fine musical program has been arranged.

FOUR DEBS ARE HONORED AT JOINT DEBUTS HELD TODAY

Dances Held at Algonquin and Milton Clubs

Another joint debut takes place today—in the form of a tea-dance which Mr. and Mrs. Pitt F. Drew of Newton Center are giving in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Sally, and Miss Elizabeth Stearns, daughter of Mrs. Harry N. Stearns of Cambridge. This affair takes place at the Algonquin Club.

A group of sister debs are serving at the tea tables, headed by Mrs. Carlisle Hauer, a sister of Miss Stearns, from New York, and Miss Eleanor Ives, a debutante of last year and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Manley Ives of Winchester.

Another affair will be given for Miss Stearns later on in the season, when her mother presents her formally at a dance in January.

Debuts at Milton

This evening two more debbies will join their friends over the sacred threshold, at the Milton Club. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Trafford of Readville and Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson will honor their respective daughters at a dance, the Misses Ada Trafford and Louise Richardson. An ushers' dinner for a large number of the Milton friends of the parents, as well as the ushers and several of the season's buds, will precede the dance, also taking place at the club.

Heading the usher group will be Mr. Bernard W. Trafford, Jr., and Mr. John Butler Swann, Jr., assisted by the Messrs. W. Bradford Trafford, another brother; Richard Borden, Roland Boyden, Samuel Cabot, Jr.; Richard Perkins, Fairfield Dana, Richard Dana, Stewart Scott, Francis Cary, Alfreus von Schroeder, Jr.; W. Van A. Haussen, Floyd Nichols, James T. Dennison, Richard Heath, George Gibson, John Rogerson, Lincoln Bryant, Jr.; Walter Bailey, John Ware, Mathew Hale, David Crockett, Thomas Whiteside, John Shurcliff, John Russell, Lloyd Brown, John Apple, Frank Caufield, Rene Chanonpollion, Dudley Brown, Sydney Williams, Jr.; Garrett Bikoff, Donald Scott, Jr.; Thomas Huntoon and David Forbes.

Debs to Attend

Debutantes attending the dinner include the Misses Hope Richardson, Hetty Richardson, Annette Trafford, a sister of the honored deb who made her debut two or three seasons ago; Lucy Dominick, Marjorie and Virginia Wormer, Margaret Adams, Mollie Page, Diana Draper, Constance Thayer, all from out of town; Frances Williams, Frances Gardiner, Nancy Ayer, Barbara Warner, Polly Proctor, Ellen Cushing, Barbara Donald, Anna Faith Donaldson, Mary Chase, Anna Houghton, all of whom are post debs; Anne Peabody, Lydia Evans, Ruth Chase, Grace Roberts, Frances Winlock, Peggy Bradley, Barbara Greenough, Betty McGinley, Katherine Balch, Elizabeth Shurcliff, Mary Wight, Mary Loring, Bettina Hinckley, Leslie Blake, Julia Jenkins, Junia Mason, Jane Williams, Dorothy Stone, Arria Morison, Linda Collens, Jane Wheeler, Jane Fancroft, Elsie Perkins and Beatrice De Menocal, all from the debut list of this year.

DEBS MODEL FOR CHARITY

MISS SAWYER MISS TRAFFORD

MISS LOUISE SAWYER and Miss Ada Trafford as they appeared modeling in a fashion show given recently for a well known charity. Miss Trafford, who will make her debut this evening, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard W. Trafford of Milton. The dance will be given jointly with the John Richardsons, also of Milton, their daughter Miss Louisa Richardson also being honored. Both debs are Junior Leaguers and members of the Vincent Club.

Louis M. Porter to Head Traffic Club

At the annual election of the New York Traffic Club this evening Louis M. Porter will be elected president by unanimous vote of its 1800 members. Porter is general traffic manager of the Fruit Dispatch Company, sales organization of the United Fruit Co.

He has been a member of the board of governors for three years and has served as first vice-president. He is also a member of the Whitehall Club the Canoe Brook Club, Sons of the American Revolution and a director of the Fruit Dispatch Company.

Americans Are Entertained in Paris

By EVE MARVEL

Paris, Nov. 24 (US)—Restaurants have come and go, but Ciro's goes on forever—or so it seems.

Among those entertaining at a recent Friday "gala" night was Mrs. W. Harry Brown of Pittsburgh and Washington, whose guests included Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McCune, C. Bascom Slemp, the Duke of Leinster, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wagenen.

Mrs. Ada Sorg Wolser entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Ennever, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Chalon and Mrs. Ida Douglas. Others present were Mrs. H. Mason Day, Miss Carolyn Nash and M. and Mme. Paul Dubonnet.

Movie Stars

Mme. Dubonnet, the former Mrs. Jean Nash, of course, carries the distinction of being one of the best dressed women in Europe. This evening she was wearing an exquisite gown of pale blue crepe-de-chine, extremely simple as far as design was concerned, straight and close fitting in line, with no trimming. With this she wore pale blue crepe-de-chine shoes.

John Gilbert and Miss Lupe Velez, the moving picture stars, who were dancing together, attracted a great deal of attention. Miss Velez chose a charming and most becoming gown of wine colored chiffon which touched the floor and finished in a short train.

Mrs. Dodge Sloane was wearing a gown of white mousseline and Mrs. Gurnee Munn was in slate-gray chiffon, which was stiffened in pannier effect.

A Newcomer

At another table were former Ambassador and Mrs. James W. Gerard, on their way back to America from a visit to Hungary with Mrs. Gerard's sister, Countess Sigray.

A newcomer in Paris is Mrs. Blake Frances of Indianapolis, who has just returned from a trip around the world. Her gown, a russet brown, was almost entirely of lace with a wide insertion of encrusted chiffon from the empire waist to the hips. An additional short loose jacket was also of lace.

Mayor to Speak at Jewish Exhibit

Mayor Curley will speak at the Jewish Food Show and Household Exhibit at Horticultural Hall on its opening day, Monday. The show will continue through Friday.

Heina Wingenfeld, chef and dietitian, will lectures on American style cooking from a Jewish angle.

PIG RODEO FOR SOCIETY

Mrs. Phelps' Guests to Chase Greased Porker to Aid the Unemployed

Newport, R. I., Nov. 24—The high and mighty of this citadel of society will gather in all their glory at Dudley Place, the magnificent estate of Mrs. Muriel Vanderbilt Church Phelps, at midnight on Thanksgiving eve.

There, sheltered from the prying eyes of inquisitive townsfolk, portly matrons and vivacious debs, leaders in finance and society sportsmen, all garbed in the glittering gowns and stiff shirts of evening attire, will stage a novel rodeo with a well-greased pig as the victim.

Each guest who gets a grip on the pig and maintains it for 25 seconds will be given a prize. The grand prize, the victim itself, of course, goes to pig-buster who reduces the animal to submission.

And this is not all of the unique entertainment with which Mrs. Phelps plans to regale her guests on Thanksgiving eve.

When and if the pig is captured, and perhaps if it is not, the society cowboys and cowgirls will become treasure hunters.

Gold pieces to the extent of $100 will be hidden about the estate and it will be the task of the guests to sacrifice whatever dignity remains and find the coins. Finders keepers, of course.

The "rodeo" is being sponsored by Mrs. Phelps in the cause of charity, the proceeds being intended for the relief of the unemployed.

MRS. PHELPS

Jacqueline Stewart Is Bride

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER

New York, Nov. 24 (US)—The tall and effective Jacqueline Stewart, daughter of Cecil Parker Stewart of 770 Park ave., dislikes social red fire and has a positive abhorrence of booming Mayfair cannons.

All of which explains the sudden and simple wedding yesterday of Jacqueline and Count Giovanni Cordelli.

Jacqueline and her Italian count put in an appearance yesterday at the municipal building, secured a license to wed and then hastened up to the Little Church Around the Corner in E. 29th st., where they were made as one, sans fuss and feathers.

Even the father of the bride was a bit flabbergasted by the swiftness with which the young couple moved once they made up their minds to marry without further delay.

Last September I announced Jacqueline's betrothal to Giovanni, who is a son of the Countess Cordelli, the former Ruth Lamson of Chicago. It was expected they would be married next spring, in Paris, at the home of Jacqueline's mother, now the Countess Raoul De Roussy De Sales.

Not a particle of artificial coloring is used. Mueller's Egg Noodles are made from only selected fresh eggs and a special blend of choice flour.

Their absolute purity, and the choice ingredients used, gives that delicious taste and high degree of nutrition so characteristic of Mueller's Egg Noodles.

Once you have tried them you will realize you must always get the best. "Any brand" will not do. You'll insist on Mueller's. Buy a package today. Your grocer has Mueller's Egg Noodles, or can get them for you.

This Is Especially Good

Egg Noodles With Prunes

1 Pkg. Mueller's Wide Egg Noodles
1 pound prunes — 2 two-inch pieces stick cinnamon
½ lemon, cut in thin slices — ½ cup sugar for prunes
¼ teaspoon powdered cinnamon — ½ cup sugar for noodles

Boil noodles 9 min. in 4 qts. rapidly boiling water to which 2 tablespoon salt has been added. Drain. Soak prunes over night. Cook slowly until tender, add stick cinnamon and lemon when nearly done. Lastly add sugar. Place noodles on platter, mix sugar and pow dered cinnamon and sprinkle over them. Garnish with cooked prunes.

MAUDE ADAMS TRIUMPHS IN ROLE OF PORTIA

THE VOICE OF Broadway

By Louis Sobol

Down Memory Lane!

(With GILBERT PATTEN, the original "Burt L. Standish," who wrote nearly 900 Merriwell stories.)

Memory Lane is a lane of pictures, some bright and sharp and crystal clear; some jumbled and confused, like double or triple exposures; some growing dim and blurred and misty with age. Few of these pictures, unfortunately, are definitely dated. So in spreading them out to view I'll arrange them to the best of my recollection concerning time and order.

The early '80's, a sleepy little town in Maine, and a tall, thin boy stretching out his hands to distant blue hills beyond which lies the world of his desire. "Oh, will I ever get out beyond those hills?" The boy reading, dreaming, writing—writing stories of the dream-world he has never seen; of the great cities, the golden West, the Tropics, the frozen North; of anything but the dull, uneventful life around him. Writing verse, too. He calls it poetry and is thrilled when it is printed in the country newspapers.

The boy runs away at sixteen and works a few months in a machine shop. Gets some experience, a little sense, and goes back home to finish his education at the local academy. Works one Summer on a country newspaper. At seventeen he is offered the editorship of the paper when the editor is sued for libel. Has higher aspirations: literature—literature is his goal! But, later, he starts his own weekly newspaper and runs it nearly a year. As he is still a minor, his parents are scared almost to death when they find out he has run deeply into debt. He sells out to a rival newspaper into whose field he has cut. Pays all his debts and has enough left over to make a second-class trip into the Middle West. Gets back home with less than $10

Meanwhile, previous to his newspaper venture, he has sold his first two short stories—for six dollars, three dollars each! Then he has doctored up and finished one of his old long stories, 33,000 words, half of which he wrote before running away, and sold that to the dime novel publishers, Beadle & Adams, for $50. It has appeared with his name, William G. Patten, on the cover. The die has been cast!

Now, back from his first real view of the outside world, he turns to writing as the readiest way for him to get money. The dime novel market has been cracked. He plunges in. His rates go up 50 per cent. He makes $1700 in a year. Then $2700. No college course for him now. That dream is over.

He has married. His father has fallen, while showing some young sprouts how to cut fancy figures on a skates and permanently jamed himself. The young author not only has a wife to support, but also contributes to the support of his parents. And presently he is their only staff. With this load to carry, he pulls up stakes and jumps right into the middle of New York City. He always was a fool.

New York! Barely has he got a glimpse of the Bowery, Broadway and Fifth Avenue, when he learns that his market is going on the bum. The old house of Beadle & Adams is decaying. His rates are cut. Then they are cut again. His publishers are republishing old stuff, buying less and less new material. The exchequer is seriously checked. He goes broke, can't pay his rent, is evicted. Walks from 116th St. to Park Pl., without a nickel in his pocket, to collect twenty-five dollars for a short story he has sold to a syndicate. Asks for a hundred from Beadle & Adams ten days before payment is due, and get ninety—ten dollars being taken off for the advance. Swears by all the gods he'll never write another dime novel—and never does write another for that house.

But wait! Money has to be got. He cracks into the publishing house of Norman L. Munro, writing for its juvenile story paper. Hits Street & Smith before the bell is cold and gets in his stride before they can get their breath. Picks up an additional ten bucks a week doing boiler-plate fiction for the American Press Ass'n, and begins to live a little bit. Now you may see him on Broadway almost any pleasant afternoon in company with his cane. A regular New Yorker, is lad's getting to be. He's known as Gilbert Patten now, having opped his first name to get away from the dime novel label. As if could be done!

Gay days, those back there in the early '90's. Our young uthor is now selling verse and squibs and a few jokes to Town Topics. But this is on the side, and it never really amounts to much. It isn't up his alley, and presently he gives it up, the mercenary cuss, because he gets too many rejections and can't make it bring in dinero fast enough. He's got to have the dough to trot with the class he's in now. They're young; they own the town, and some of them even put on cutaway coats, striped trousers and silk hats to do a turn on the avenue in the P. M.

They're Bohemians, but they love to look on all sides of life. You ill find them lunching on the afternoon, at the Waldorf bar, on the offman House, or on the old Metropole: but you also may find them at far later hour in the disreputable San Souci. The Allen's or Tom ould's below-the-sidewalk joint. They make their flash where the boys go, but they are authors and artists who also scour the dregs d rub shoulders with the scum.

But let's be getting on to Frank Merriwell. It's like this: An ditor with Street & Smith—Arthur L. Hall, of cherished memory —thinks our author's stuff is pretty good and tells the bosses so hen they're looking around for somebody to do a new series of uvenile yarns for newsstand distribution. So a proposition is made o the faithful hack which means fifty dollars a week, week in and ut, for three years, if he can deliver a series of acceptable yarns o the tune of twenty thousand words every seven days. He is sked to furnish a name for his hero, and he invents Frank Merriwell—he and no other. He chooses the name of Frank because it mplies an open, straightforward, likeable person. Merriwell is produced from a combination of two words, "merry" and "well," expressing a happy disposition and abounding health. Then, though he hasn't been asked to do so, he manufactures a name for himself, that of "Burt L. Standish," and puts it on the very first Merriwell yarn he turns out. The first story appears on the stands April 18, 1896, and, helped by new-style colored covers, is a sell-out. The circulation goes up by leaps and bounds in the ensuing weeks and months.

But where is this getting our fictioneer? Twenty-six hundred a ear isn't so much with the load he's packing. He had written the rst story in four days, and figured he could keep that pace up and ve two days of each week to do extra work—maybe the big novel 'd dreamed of doing. But it doesn't work out that way. To keep ing on the yarns he has to do a lot of reading, studying, and some itting, and most weeks he finds himself barely able to get his job ne or less poorly done in six days, or even seven. On the long stch he isn't the fast writer his short spurts have led him to think would be.

The problem is finally solved by dictation. And now he does id a little time to do some short stories for magazines and three -book series of juveniles—these under pen names—for other publishers. And so he gets enough money to live—and keep out of jail. t the end of three years he is raised, voluntarily, to sixty dollars a eek for another term of three years. After that he obtains raises seventy-five, then to a hundred and twenty-five, and finally to a ndred and fifty in the last four years of his final contract. For ors than seventeen years he stays on that grind.

Back to Broadway again. Time moves. Change follows change. Times Square, once called Longacre Square, which was by night a dark and boogerish pocket when our author first saw it, has become an illuminated crater of "Main Street" excitement with too much Merriwell, the poor hack begs off. What with other things, he edits a pulp magazine, Top Notch, from birth to suckling vigor. Gives up editing to become the make-a-living fiction writer as Gilbert Patten, Burt L. Standish and Gordon MacLaren.

Trouble with Top Notch editor leaves him on the outside looking . Tries play writing again. Turns out a post-war mystery play, am Harris says it looks box office and should be produced at once to be timely. He flirts with the anxious would-be playwright for a months. Then says the actors' strike has ruined him with the theater. Then comes "The Bat" and the flood of mystery plays that follow, and the hot chance is lost for the post-war thing.

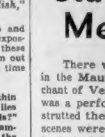
Crowded Colonial Gives Star Ovation in "The Merchant of Venice"

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

There was fully as much celebration as stage performance in the Maude Adams-Otis Skinner presentation of "The Merchant of Venice" at the Colonial last evening. Of course, there was a performance of Shakespeare's romantic comedy; actors strutted their parts, some in good order and others not so well; scenes were shifted with precision, and bright lights, said to be devised by Miss Adams herself, flooded the stage.

* * *

But in the hearts of the audience that jammed the theater to its walls the affair was a sentimental celebration, the resurrection of some very fine memories. Certainly there was more interest in Miss Adams and what she might do than in anything Mr. Shakespeare wrote or for the evening's pastime. It was a night of persistent and continuous ovation. And it may be questioned whether, in the heyday of her amply secured popularity, Miss Adams ever faced an audience so passionately intent upon making its affection something to be heard and not merely surmised. In any event it was an audience that intended to be heard—and you heard it.



Maude Adams

In the meantime, Miss Adams and Mr. Skinner were going through three and a half hours of Portia and Shylock. In some ways Miss Adams has changed; in others not a bit. Of course, 13 years do make a difference, and no spotlight has cast its rays upon Miss Adams in all that time. It was a brilliantly lighted Portia that faced this audience and as Miss Adams is credited with creating much of this part of the stage arrangements she must be aware that it treated her with somewhat limited favor. There were lights on every side, even flood lights in the balcony. These were accommodating enough to take in about eight rows of the town's fashionable outpouring comfortably settled well forward in the orchestra. Any hands-across-the-footlights demonstrations could not have been done in the dark.

In spirit and charm Miss Adams has not changed; she was light and gay and serious in turn; her voice and her gestures, her bubbling exhilaration were like old friends returned. She was the same Maude Adams that held your allegiance in other days. She was a lovely memory come to life. Miss Adams, it is said, prepared this version of "The Merchant of Venice." It was a workmanlike job. Tedious scenes were eliminated and useless dialogue pared down. Miss Adams herself was never better than in the trial scene. That, perhaps, went to Juliet's affair with Romeo on the balcony, is the goal of every ambitious actress. Miss Adams last night made it one of the most telling of her many characteristics; she commanded every eye in the theater. In the sterner moments she breathed composition; in comedy she was as refreshing as a day in June.

It is doubtful if Otis Skinner ever gave a bad performance. In speech and action he holds strictly to the old school, but even in that there are compensations. He made this clear in his tilt with Shylock last evening. His was a crafty Shylock, played in the usual formula, but also in lower tempo than those most recently brought to stage. That, perhaps, was the penalty of attuning his arts to those of a distinguished co-star.

* * *

Few events in the local theater have stirred the spontaneous enthusiasm bestowed so freely upon Maude Adams. While Mr. Skinner was not entirely without friends in that big first night audience, it was Miss Adams who packed the house, and it was Miss Adams who was nearly swept off her feet by the warmth of the reception which greeted her first appearance. There may have been some in the audience who took a night off in the interest of a better drama, but, if any there were, they were swallowed by the hosts which massed themselves at Miss Adams' dainty feet. Abiding memories, tinged with glowing pleasure, have pulled hands in giving the theaters full houses when they most need them.

"Follies" Here Only One Week

Because of unforeseen conditions not prevailing when Florenz Ziegfeld planned the tour of the Ziegfeld Follies, the stay of this attraction in the cities to be visited has been shortened by half. Boston will have to accept a similar condition tendered to Philadelphia, and harbor the Ziegfeld classic production for only a single week beginning Dec. 7. This despite the producer's first announcement that the Boston engagement would be for two weeks.

The fame of this 22nd edition of the Ziegfeld Follies has been broadcast ever since its opening, when it was hailed as the most glorious of all the American Girl Glorifier's offerings.

Copley Cast in Craven's Comedy

By HARRIS MORGAN

That shrewd and homely classic of married life, "The First Year," Frank Craven's well tested comedy of early errors and later wisdom, was presented last night at the Copley by the little company that has already won a steady audience prepared for the best and obviously getting it.

The play is superatively good, and the players rise to its demands. It is a comedy making difficult demands on the performers; demands of simplicity, complete naturalness, and a certain naive enthusiasm.

A small-town girl marries a small-town boy, turning away from a more romantic and adventurous suitor. There is a certain dinner party upon which much depends. The young husband is entertaining an important business personage. Will he win or lose? He wins a business deal, loses his wife—but there is always a third act, in spite of the ill-timed arrival of the former adventurous suitor.

Amy Loomis, as the young wife to whom the first year is harder than the first hundred, proves herself an actress of complete charm, intelligence and sure talent. Joseph Cotten, as her young and lovably blundering husband, is delightful. Raymond Jones is excellent as the third and leading member of the domestic triangle.

Mary Wall contributes a thoroughly amusing performance as the dark and dumb waitress; Jean Poindexter and Richard Vhorf, as the parents of the distraught little wife, are more than adequate. Each member of the cast deserves not only praise but continued patronage.

Film Classic Fine Arts Feature

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"The Great Passion," to be seen at the Fine Arts, turns out to be the finest sort of inside look into the making of German pictures. The silver sheet makes it easy to "crash" the studio gates and gain close-ups of 30 or more movie stars, on and off the sets, together with revelations of technique. Of itself this makes the film a worthwhile one for any motion picture fan.

Camilla Horn

But "The Great Passion" has a story, too. It isn't new or great, but it is sufficient to weave the studio glimpses and to hold the interest of any of those who may it all their screen fare served with romantic flavoring. The theme is the one of the lassie who yearns for fame as a film actress; this is the role of Camilla Horn, pretty well known on this side of the ocean. She acts the part satisfactorily.

To us the chief value of the picture are the insight it gives into the Teuton cinema methods, and the parading of their picture personalities. Those who follow the movies closely now know that the Germans and Russians lead the world in their mastery of the camera. Being unable to travel over to the Neubabelsberg studios, we hail this intimate picture of "is workings as real opportunity

FOWLER TO WRITE BARRYMORE STORY

Novelist Is Engaged by Seiznick

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc

Los Angeles, Nov. 24—Gene Fowler, journalist, editor, and more recently, successful novelist, is coming to Hollywood.

Gene has been here before but this will be the first time that he makes his entrance as the author of three published novels namely, "Shoe the Wild Mare," "The Great Mouthpiece," and "Trumpet in the Dust. It was that dynamic young man, David Seiznick, who made arrangements with Mr Fowler, They met in New York and discussed pictures. Gene is being brought here to write the original for John Barrymore

If Mr. Fowler wishes to take our advice, he'll give John Barrymore something new—and not the old stereotyped Barrymore type of play.

Among the interesting things told in Hollywood is that Marceline Day is to make another picture opposite Col. Tim McCoy. Marceline married Arthur Kiesh last spring and for a while she didn't do any picture making. Now she's back and it looks as if her vacation didn't do her any harm because she looks rested and more attractive than ever. Her next work for Col. McCoy is "The Texas Sheriff" with Lambert Hillyer directing. Noel Francis—and here is a girl I'm told studies voice assiduously—is in the cast of "Old Man Minick." I don't know Miss Francis, but from all I hear, she's one of the girls in Hollywood who's going to succeed. Richard Cansi and Charles Judels have been signed for "One Hour With You." My goodness, but that cast is classic. It grows by the hour

Traveling about the studios on my rolle skates I find that Esther Howard has signed to play again in Frank Fays pictures—stealing Fay's thunder, Esther Howard, my friends, is Marilyn Miller's friend. It was Marilyn who brought her to Hollywood and to the screen. The Arlen picture is going along fast and furious. William Janney has signed for "The Man Who Played God"; also Bette Davis, Andre Luguet, Grace Durkin, a sister of James Durkin, and Raymond Milland. Billy and Grace went to school together and that wasn't many years ago. They're both still young enough not to let age matter.

GRACEFUL

Dorothy Donnelly graces the Colonial stage the week of Dec. 7 in the "Follies."

"Funnies" Top Scollay Bill

The Scollay vaudeville bill for this week is headed by a novel act entitled. The Funnies Come to Life," featuring Maggie and Jiggs of George McManus' comic strip. Fishers' Mutt and Jeff, and Percy Crosby's Skippy. All of these stage characters look and act like the comic characters they represent. Jiggs is continually letting the Six Dancing Dolls get him in trouble with his ball and chain, Maggie. Mutt and Jeff, as a pair of dumb waiters, keep the audience laughing. Skippy has with him Big Rosie, a white elephant that does some impressive performing. Audience reaction to the act is proof of its entertaining qualities.

Eddie Handley and company, in a comedy skit, "Anything for a Laugh" do almost anything, but the comedy hit was the two comic imitations of West Point Cadets.

Jarvis and Harrison and company, in "Twelve to One Shot," give a good imitation of a street scene outside of a dine-and-dance hall on New Year's eve.

"Paris Life" Is Howard Hit

A Columbia traveling burlesque attraction that bubbles with humor is at the Old Howard this week. The company is known as the "Nite Life in Paris" organization. Georgia Sothern was plaudits. Miss Sothern has a winsome personality. Those funny chaps, Harry (Hoob) Meyers and Joe DeRita, serve the comedy.

The management also offers high grade pictures and selected vaudeville. Sandy Deraon & Company, the Andrea troupe and Hyatt Kenney and Casey are on stage.

There will be two midnight shows, one tomorrow and one on Friday night. On Thanksgiving Day three complete shows will be given, at 1, 4:30 and 8 p. m.

Recital Tonight

Two numbers, "The Accuser" and "The Judge," from the suite "Execution," by Hanns Hasting, are to be performed for the first time in America by Hans Wisner, Viennese dancer, during his recital in the Repertory Theater tonight at 8:30.

In Recital Tonight

Jan Smeterlin, celebrated Polish pianist, plays in Jordan Hall tonight. His program includes the Mozart F major sonata, the Brahms-Paganini Variations a group of pieces by Chopin, and works by Szymanowski Albeniz and Debussy. Mr Smeterlin has been an important ally of many important present day composers for he has introduced many works.

Grid Teams at the Modern

More than 50 football players of the English and Latin high school football teams, tonight will see "Touchdown," current picture at the Modern and Fenway. Thomas J. Wall, manager of the Modern extended invitations to Coach Dacey and his team at English high, and Coach Fitzgerald and his team at Latin high school. The viewing of the film is timely, as both of the teams battle for honors on Thanksgiving Day.

"Touchdown" claimed to be one of the finest pictures of its kind, has in the cast Richard Arlen, Peggy Shannon, Jack Oakie, J. Farrel MacDonald, Coach Howard Jones, Jim Thorpe, greatest of all football players and many All-American football players.

Dorchester Players Guests at Theater

Dorchester High school's football squad were guests of the management of the Publix Codman Square Theater, Dorchester, last night, which had been set aside as Dorchester High Night.

Exeter Theater

James Dunn and Sally Eilers in "Bad Girl" and Mary Astor in "Smart Woman," are the attractions for today and tomorrow at the Exeter. The last half of the week Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran will be seen in "The Spider." Thomas Meighan in "Skyline" will also be shown.

Sarg's Marionettes at Tremont Temple

Tony Sarg's Marionettes, including the characters of fairyland that have won the hearts of children the world over, come to Tremont Temple tomorrow for a series of four morning and four afternoon performances, scheduled for the rest of the week.

Waldron's Casino

Waldron's Casino this week presents Helen McClain and her "Merry Maids" Burlesquers. Gertrude Beck, Helen Forrest and Jane Vitale are others in this troupe. There will be an extra midnight show tomorrow night.

NEGRO SAVED FROM MOB

Easton, Md., Nov. 24 (AP)—George Davis, 28-year-old negro, was rushed to the Baltimore City jail for safe keeping today, just ahead of a mob of 300 Kent men which stormed the Talbot County jail here seeking him.

Davis, accused of attempting to assault Mrs. Elizabeth Lusby, 25 wife of a Kent county farmer near Kennedyville Saturday, was captured yesterday in Wilmington, Del., and taken to the Kent jail at Chestertown.

Sheriff John T. Vickers, of Kent County, brought the negro here last night when he was informed a mob was approaching the Chestertown jail. When the leaders of the mob learned of Davis' removal to the jail here, they drove the 30 miles to Easton.

SOVIET LUMBER TO COME IN

Washington, Nov. 24 (AP)—A shipment of 100,000 feet of lumber from the convict labor section of Russia—due to arrive in New York tomorrow—will be admitted. The government is unable to prove convicts had anything to do with its production.

The lumber, source was brought to the United States by the Amtorg Trading Corporation, the Russian business organization.

It was produced near Archangel in an area from which importation of lumber has been barred by a Treasury ruling.

Among officials, before F. X. A. Elia, commissioner of customs, today presented papers tending to show convicts' labor was not used.

Lynn Man Is Hurt in Fall Down Shaft

Floyd Blanchard, 21, of 35 Virginia terr., Lynn, a warehouseman employed at 378 Stuart st., was seriously injured when he fell 20 feet down an elevator shaft today.

He was rushed to the City Hospital, where his name was placed on the danger list after it was found he was suffering from a fracture of the skull and possible internal injuries.

Americans Send Millions to Canada

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 24 (AP)—One-third of Canada's $150,000,000 national service loan already was subscribed today. Not only did Canadians buy the issue but the discount on the Canadian dollar made the issue attractive to American investors.

From New York came an estimate that $4,000,000 of the bond had been sold, for account in border.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy Is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Dandruff will not color the scalp is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

STOP THAT COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a scientific "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation to help draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

$377,737,749 IS SPENT BY FARM BOARD

Washington Nov. 24 (AP)—The farm board's story of its gigantic deals in cotton and wheat was presented today for congressional investigation.

As the inquiry into its activities over a two-year period began before the Senate agricultural committee, the annual report of the board's operations was presented by Chairman Stone.

It showed the board had bought 328,841,042 bushels of wheat in an attempt to keep up prices. The cost was $270,204,503.

For the same reason the board, through a stabilization corporation, purchased 1,319,869 bales of cotton for $107,533,245.

The commodities were purchased when wheat was not far from a dollar a bushel and cotton was around 16 cents a pound.

Chairman McNary of the committee wanted to know how much the board had lost. Stone said he could give no further information than was contained in the report.

In its report, the board did not attempt to estimate its loss. The report said this must be reckoned after the cotton and wheat it holds are disposed of.

On Nov. 1 the board had 180,658,187 bushels of wheat and 1,230,789 bales of cotton. The cotton will be held another year and wheat will be sold at the rate of 5,000,000 bushels monthly.

The carrying cost of wheat is between 1¾ and 1⅞ cents a bushel a month, Stone said.

He testified the average price obtained on all the board's wheat sales has been between 53 and 54 cents a bushel.

The board sold 47,500,000 bushels to foreign governments.

Stone said the board had lent the Farmers' National Grain Corp. $38,000,000. The corporation has repaid $21,000,000 or $22,000,000.

Just Folks

Unchangeable Memory

The little girl who is no more,
For whom along the years
We've mourned, still smiling at the door,
On many a day appears.
And still her silver voice rings out
In childhood's lovely way,
And still in play she romps about,
But we are worn and gray.

Her playmates of the long ago
Are men and women grown,
And some the marks of suffering show,
And some have sadness known,
But she has stayed through all the years
A happy-hearted child,
Unchanged by time, untouched by tears,
Unsoiled and undefiled.

Some mourn their little ones long lost
Who still on earth remain.
Some cling to life and count the cost
In bitterness and pain;
But day by day her voice we hear
And often smile to see
Our radiant little girl appear
Just as she used to be.

'Tis strange (so bitterly we weep)
How time can change our views,
We find we lose the ones we keep
And keep the ones we lose.
Though we are worn by care and woe
And wrinkled now and gray,
Our little girl of long ago
Is still a child at play.

DEATH TAKES FRED LAKE

Fred Lake, former manager of the Boston Braves and Red Sox, and one-time leader of the Lynn team in the old New England League, died today at the Deaconess Hospital following an operation.

Lake was well known and popular among the older generation of baseball fans, having acted in the capacity of player, manager and scout. In 1900, Lake, manager of the old Lowell team, steered that team to a title. He also managed the Nashua team.

Lake was pilot of the Red Sox from 1907 to 1909, and then took up the managerial duties of the Braves in 1910.

In recent years Lake made his home in Somerville. Funeral plans will be announced later.

Smart SHOPPING

"How good is it?"
That's it!

ABOUT anything and everything they buy, smart shoppers like to ask one question—"How good is it?"

Chesterfield welcomes smokers who buy their cigarettes that way.

OUR tobacco buyers are smart shoppers, too. They "shop" for the ripest, mildest, sweetest-tasting leaf that grows. And they won't take anything else.

"How good" are Chesterfields? Well, consider their blending.

Blended and cross-blended... not merely mixed together. Blended first by crops and countries... then cross-blended again and again... to produce a flavor and aroma that are Chesterfield's alone.

That's how we get that better taste... that's why Chesterfields are milder. Even the paper they're rolled in is the whitest, cleanest and purest that money can buy.

And the package... clean, bright, fresh-looking... see how easily it opens, yet how tightly it's sealed.

Now—pull out a Chesterfield... round, firm, well-filled.

"HOW good is it?" Light up... then you tell us!

Milder? Right! Taste better? You bet they do! They're pure, too—and they certainly do satisfy!

Good... they've got to be good! There's value here. We know, because we put it in... and you'll smoke it out with every one you light.

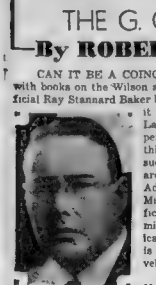
BOOKS LOAD DEMOCRATS' GUNS TO DISCONCERT THE G. O. P. IN 1932

By ROBERT E. ROGERS



ROBERT E. ROGERS

CAN IT BE A COINCIDENCE that we are being flooded with books on the Wilson administration and the War? The official Ray Stannard Baker biography of Wilson still is in process; it is by now well into his first term. Last spring we had Pershing's "My Experiences in the World War" (Stokes); this fall there were published in quick succession Hermann Hagedorn's "Leonard Wood" (Harpers), William G. McAdoo's "Crowded Years" (Houghton Mifflin), and Frederick D. Palmer's official story of Newton D. Baker's administration under the sub-title "America At War" (Dodd Mead). The latest is Henry F. Pringle's "Theodore Roosevelt" (Harcourt Brace).

Perhaps coincidence, perhaps not. Next year the Democratic Party has the best chance it has had since 1912 to turn the Republicans out of office. There are two ways of persuading the public to do this. The first is to show the incompetence of the Republicans. To a considerable extent history has done that already. The Republican claim to being the wet-nurse of prosperity has collapsed. Add Mr. Hoover's administration to Harding's, both of which tend to tarnish the easy glamour of the Coolidge days, and the Democrats need little material for attack.

Wood Pictured as Insubordinate

They do need, however, to remove the impression, assiduously fostered by the Republicans for the past 15 years, that Wilson's administration was bungling and incompetent, selfish and unpatriotic. Here is where these volumes come in. On the whole they furnish the Democrats with ammunition of the utmost value.

The life of Leonard Wood by Hermann Hagedorn is professedly a partisan document. Mr. Hagedorn may be said to be the official Roosevelt eulogist. His book is a deliberate piece of hero-worship of Roosevelt and Wood at the expense of all who disagreed with them. The phrasing Mr. Hagedorn uses about Wilson, Pershing, and Baker is deliberately harsh and belittling. In his pages Leonard Wood stands forth as an exceptionally able man, a great soldier and a great patriot, who was, however, by nature insubordinate, a good commander but a poor follower.

His and Roosevelt's temperament were exactly alike. Both did great things for America and the American army. But when they passed out of power they found it difficult to co-operate and obey. It is not fair to say that they were partisans first and patriots second, but it is certain that their partisanship made the tasks of those charged with the government and the conduct of the war very difficult. Nor is the Republican cause helped by Pringle's book on Roosevelt, which does not forget the unfortunate sides of Roosevelt's character, especially when in opposition, for all as his undoubted genius and patriotism.

On the other hand the three books by Baker, Pershing, and McAdoo cannot fail to give even the reader who is accustomed to the Republican point of view about the war a great and comforting illumination. All three are essentially businesslike in tone, full of facts and explanations, dignified in defense and free from partisan attack.

Pershing Coolly Ignores Wood

McAdoo, probably because of his intimate personal relation to Wilson, is more outspoken about the president's enemies. At times he can be very sharp on the defensive, but in the main he devotes himself to elaborate and exact statement of policies, and results; the Federal Reserve Board, the Shipping Corporation, the unified Railroad control, and the financing of the war. One feels that here is one of the great secretaries of the Treasury.

Pershing's book begins only with his appointment as Commander of the A. E. F. and ends with the signing of the armistice. It is concise and official. It is nowhere near so good reading as Hagedorn's book on Wood because it is almost utterly free from personalities. Pershing makes no reply to the accusations spread by Wood's friends when the latter was not given command in France. He does not mention the controversy at all.

Pershing almost never expresses his opinions about people, never imputes motives. The most interesting part of his two volume story is the account of his long struggle with the French and the English over the unity of command and the integral American army. Not to the very end did the allies give up their determination to have the American troops brigaded with the British and French, used as fillers-in and reserves. Pershing never gave way for a moment, but he tells the story step by step from his diary, memorandums, letters to Baker, and official documents, without ever characterizing his opponents except in the most formal and courteous way. The book is a masterpiece of factual statement and self control.

Similarly Palmer's book on Baker is virtually Baker's own story, except that Palmer can and does comment on Baker's difficulties, as he himself could not. He makes it plain that the Roosevelt-Wood-Lodge partisan Republican crowd were out to break Baker. He was jeered at as a pacifist, as "Pansy Baker," because he was small and slim and smiling and placid, not the he-man of the Roosevelt and Wood ideal.

Roosevelt-Wood Wrath of Failure

"We want a butcher, not a baker!" they cried. They objected to his efficient centralization of war power because that destroyed the opportunity for political control of the war department. Roosevelt had clamored for conscription, and when he got it blamed Baker and Wilson because he was not allowed to raise a volunteer division and lead it to France. He still saw war in terms of the little Spanish affair of 1898. They could not understand why Wood should not be allowed to choose his billet. The fact that Baker always backed up Pershing and Wilson always backed up Baker, thus presenting an organized efficient front, infuriated them.

They made public accusations on hearsay; they demanded loudly that things be done which were already being done. They treated the war as a piece of partisan politics. Baker's tone in dealing with them and their crowd, the "whispering gallery," Palmer calls it, was always serene and dignified and as impersonal as was possible. Baker made no secret of the fact that he was a pacifist whose job it was to wage war as efficiently as possible. Palmer's book reveals him as a man not only of intellectual distinction and professional integrity, but with something of greatness in character.

Hagedorn's and Pringle's books have done the Republicans no service. The stories of Baker, Pershing, and McAdoo are the best possible ammunition for those who believe that the Democrats are no less competent to run the country than the Republicans.

PLAYS BANNED SONG; CUT OFF AS HE DOES

Jazz Leader Is First to Violate the New "Purity Rules" Over Station WBZ

The first open defi against the recent "Purity Code" drawn up for songs broadcast through Station WBZ, was launched today by Joe Rines, radio orchestra leader and dialect comedian, at the Advertising Club luncheon in the Hotel Statler.

Stealing a march on John Clark, program director and manager of the Westinghouse station, who drew up the code banning "double meaning and offensive" song numbers, Rines launched his dance orchestra into "This Is the Missus."

Clark, who was also attending the luncheon, given in honor of Atlantis, Ga's, Bill Munday, noted sports announcer and newspaper man, gasped when he heard the opening strains of the number, one which he had banned, and he hurried to the control room of Station WBZ, through which the luncheon program was being broadcast.

By the time Clark reached the control room, however, and cut the switch off the air, the Rines' defi was half finished and had been heard by listeners.

After the number was over, the WBZ station manager switched the station back on the air again.

John W. Edwood, vice-president of the National Broadcasting Co. Bill Munday, was announcer at the Harvard-Yale football game, and others, were speakers at the luncheon.

MORE 'SUMMER' FOR BOSTON

With Boston and New England again basking in almost midsummer weather today, the forecaster predicted a probable continuance of the record-breaking warm spell until tomorrow evening.

Showers are in prospect for Wednesday night and some part of the holiday, although this forecast may be altered when the weather man sets a shorter range view at the Thanksgiving possibilities.

LILACS IN BLOOM

Even Thanksgiving Day, however, will be warmer than the oldest residents of this section can remember. Weather officials pointed out that, with the temperature so far above normal, even the break which is expected tomorrow night would not make the holiday as cold as usual.

From all sections of Massachusetts and New England came reports of unusual nature freaks. Quincy reported lilac bushes being ready to bloom and several lawns covered with dandelion blossoms.

In Woodsville, N. H., raspberries were reported almost ready to pick, while in Scituate pussy willow buds were found. Even as far north as Fredericton, New Brunswick, wild flowers were reported in bloom and the ground, usually frozen, could be spaded.

MORE FLOWERS, FRUIT.

A continental conflict between the elements of winter and summer seems to be on

New high November temperatures in the east, abnormal rainfall in the middle west and snow and freezing temperatures in much of the west were aspects of the approach of Thanksgiving Day of 1931.

'GUN TOTER' IS SENT TO PRISON

William J. Manning of Newman st., South Boston, found guilty by a jury of carrying a revolver without a permit, was today sentenced by Chief Justice Hall to State Prison for from two and half years to five years.

The revolver was found on Manning when he and Thomas Gilden, also of South Boston, were arrested as suspects in the killing of Alexander Baxter, a Roxbury storekeeper, during a holdup in September last. The grand jury exonerated both on a charge of murder, but Manning was indicted for having a revolver in his possession.

N. E. TURKEY IS AWAY DOWN

New England turkeys, identified by the New England Quality label, are being sold this season 10 to 20 cents a pound cheaper than last year, according to information received by the agricultural department of the New England Council from the New England state departments of agriculture.

Commissioners of agriculture of Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut have established official state grades for turkeys, as part of the New England farm marketing program inaugurated by the council.

Prices of the labeled turkeys vary this year from 55 to 65 cents a pound retail, whereas last year the prices were from 65 to 80 cents a pound.

Prices of other turkeys range from 35 cents a pound upwards

Turkey 'n' All for $7

On the basis of a family of five, it should cost you no more than $7 for a good Thanksgiving dinner.

With turkey and fixin's figured at average prices, the following should be the "lineup" Thursday:

Turkey, 10 lbs. at 39c	$3.90
Potatoes, 2 qts.	.05
Cranberry, one quart	.15
Squash, 3 lbs.	.10
Celery, 2 bunches	.25
Boiled onions, one pound	.05
Plum pudding	.27
Mixed nuts, one pound	.25
Cider, one gallon	.39
Pies (choice of two)	.50
Fruit cake, two pounds	.50
	$6.41

Incidentals such as soups, tea, coffee, etc., should not bring the grand total over the $7 mark.

Mounts to Stardom, Weds Another and Becomes Mother

HERE is the second chapter in the fascinating love story of Gloria Swanson, famous film star, who recently became a bride for a fourth time.

In her first installment Miss Parsons, who has known Gloria Swanson since the days the famous actress was an extra on the movie lots, told of her girlhood and how she has often been referred to as in love with love.

The loves of Gloria are revealed individually

CHAPTER II

Hollywood, Nov. 24—Gloria's adoration of Wallace Beery didn't last long. Many reasons have been advanced. Those who are unkind to Gloria say she had her mind on her own advancement.

At any rate, once in Hollywood she seemed to progress without the aid of her husband. Wallace didn't go far at the Sennett Studio but Gloria did.

The tables were turned. Where once she had been dependent upon Mr. Beery she now learned she didn't need him. Mack Sennett on the outlook for beauty for his bathing girls, met Wallace Beery's wife.

She was comely, she had a good figure and she had potential possibilities as an actress.

"Come and see me," Mack said to young Mrs. Beery. "I may be able to put you in a picture."

A Star Found In Bathing Beauty

Gloria, you may be sure, lost no time in going to see the man who, at that moment, was the greatest comedy producer in the world. Mack's experienced eyes saw that he had a find in the bride of his new comedian. He forgot Mr. Beery and, instead, concentrated on his wife.

In less than three months Gloria Swanson was a recognized bathing beauty. What of the husband? Wallace was out in the cold. Dismissed from the studio he was looking for a job. It was the old story. They parted.

Her version of the story is that Wallace collected her salary. His that she grew tired of him.

"Gloria is a great girl," he once told me "but I guess I wasn't enough of a gentleman for her."

Having known Wallace Beery for 20 years I resent that implication. He may be a diamond in the rough, but he is enough of a gentleman for any woman, even a great movie star like La Bella Swanson.

However I am not taking sides. Usually it takes two to bring about a divorce.

Even as Wallace Beery, Gloria began to have social ambitions. In Pasadena at that time there lived a young millionaire named Cranston Gartz. He became intensely interested in the gray-eyed young woman whose haughty demeanor never left her. He showered her with attentions.

A serious rival, none other than Marshall Neilan, successful director of Mary Pickford's pictures, loomed on the horizon.

Gloria kept both of them guessing. Mr. Gartz, because of his social position, Mickey Neilan because of his unfailing sense of humor, and Mickey was a director, too, and Gloria had previously found a director valuable. Just as the situation was becoming a trifle difficult, she was introduced to Herbert Somborn.

The meeting took place at a preview. Sol Lesser, Hollywood's most famous impresario, introduced Miss Swanson to Mr. Somborn, who had often admired her from afar. Herb, who now owns a chain of restaurants, fell at once for the movie beauty.

Christmas Bride Somborn Was Happy

Glo r didn't, at first, encourage the young man who was at that time head of Equity Pictures. I don't want to say that in this young film producer Gloria saw a chance for further screen advancement. Ambitious though she has always been, Gloria has not ignored love. She married Herbert Somborn on December 26, 1919.

The Christmas Day spent with his bride is probably the happiest Yuletide Herbert Somborn remembers. He adored his beautiful young wife and did everything in advance her she was kind and considerate and everything a wife should be.

When, a few months later, she told him that she was about to become a mother, life was perfect.

During the months of her approaching motherhood Miss Swanson was docile and sweet. A little later Gloria, the second, made her appearance and no man in all the world was happier than the husband and father and no woman more delighted than the young mother.

As soon as Miss Swanson was able to be up and about she began to think about her career again. Mr. Somborn, who had Clara Kimball Young and other screen favorites under contract, told his wife that he had great plans for her. At that time she was making $350 a week. Her husband kept his word and as her manager acted in an advisory capacity when she finally signed a contract with Paramount.

Gloria's salary jumped from $350 a week to $3500 and her tastes soared correspondingly.

Maids, jewels, expensive clothes, all entered the picture. Cecil De Mille created on the screen a woman who wore bizarre costumes and whose head dresses were the talk of the world.

Gloria Swanson in real life imitated the exotic celluloid figure of the movies. With all this new wealth and position Gloria, now pointed out by stage folks, began to feel restless and to look for new worlds to conquer.

(Tomorrow — Gloria's next adventure in love and the movies.)

FORMER LOVES MEET IN COURT

Two former sweethearts faced each other in Brighton court today, one the accuser and the other the accused—but nothing came of it, because the case was again continued, this time until Dec. 4, at the accuser's request.

The case was that in which Fred Sabbag of Brighton charges Mrs. Eleanor Patch, 21, and her father, Abraham Laban, both of Radnor rd., Brighton, with larceny of $1440 in gifts which she says he made to pretty Eleanor when she was Sabbag's promised bride.

A year ago, Eleanor married another, however, and Sabbag alleges that return of the presents, mainly jewelry, has been refused by both daughter and father.

20 DRIVEN OUT BY TWO FIRES

A score of persons were driven to the street early today by fire in the South and West Ends. Officials said the fires were suspicious and Special Officers Joseph Hegerty and Henry Donovan of police headquarters arson squad were ordered to investigate them.

The first was in the kitchen on the fifth floor of a five-story brick dwelling occupied by Thomas Hewth and family. Ten persons were driven out.

The second was in a store on the first floor of a four-story dwelling at 64 Chambers st., West End. A dozen persons fled to the street in night clothing. Loss was placed at $500.

TRAIL OF SWINDLERS IN $50,000 THEFT LEADS TO CHICAGO

NASHUA VICTIM SEES HOPE FOR STOLEN CASH

Suspected Member of Gang Is Located in Mid-Western City by the Police

The welcome glint of his $50,000 which vanished over the horizon in a confidence game nearly two months ago, reappeared today to Emory D Heald, Nashua, N. H. furniture manufacturer—but he must go to Chicago to identify his man.

Heald, on Oct. 5 at the Parker House was relieved of $50,000 in five confidence men who said they would make him a million on a in stock deals if he could show that he had that much money.

VANISHED WITH CASH

The $50,000, which was a trust fund belonging to Heald's sister, Mrs. Edna Sanderson of Ellison Park, Waltham, was drawn from a Boston bank by Heald and taken to the Parker House, where one of the confidence men took it and went out, saving he had to show it to a broker. Heald has not seen the money since.

In the rogues' gallery Heald picked out the photograph of Berthold Block, internationally known swindler, as one of the five men who got the money, and a search for Block has been under way since.

CLUE IN CHICAGO

Today Deputy Police Superintendent James McDevitt was notified by Chicago police that Block is in Chicago. If Heald wishes to go out there, they said, they will pick him up and Heald may attempt identification.

Police Inspector Frank Bohmbach, who worked on the swindle case originally, was taken off the Revere murder investigation today and sent to Nashua to see if Heald wishes to go to Chicago.

TONY SARG BLIMP IN SANTASON PARADE

One of the famous Tony Sarg balloons which will be a feature of the big parade for Santason Thanksgiving morning at 10 o'clock. The parade will be nearly two miles long.

CUSTOM HOUSE TOWER RAIL IS ASKED

Protection around the edge of the observation platform at the top of the Custom House tower has been requested by Collector of Customs W. W. Lufkin primarily to protect school children, it was revealed today.

The recommendation was turned down by Asst.-Sec. of the Treasury Seymour Lowman on the theory that the tower is not a favorite hopping-off place for suicides, and therefore should not be fenced in.

"The number of visitors who go up into the tower," said Collector Lufkin, "numbers largely out-of-town school children who find the tower a favorite point for sight-seeing.

"There's no doubt but that some one of these children might hop up on the edge of the retaining wall, and fall to death.

"I was not thinking of the number of suicides who have chosen the tower for the taking-off point, because there have only been two since the tower was built in 1915. These two were fifteen years apart.

"The next time I'm in Washington, probably the first week of December, I will take the matter up personally, to see if we can't get a wire screen around the platform to take care of possible accidents."

BIG RECEPTION IS AWAITING SANTASON

A great reception awaits Santason when he arrives at the Charles River Esplanade Thanksgiving Day morning at 10 o'clock. It is expected that more than 200,000 children of New England will be on hand to greet him.

The parade will be almost two miles in length, comprised of four divisions, nine bands, 15 Tony Sarg balloons, three beautiful floats, 200 clowns, 40 ponies and 50 other features. The route of the parade will be from the start of Embankment rd. and Beacon st., along Beacon st. to Park st. to Tremont st. to Boylston st. to Washington st. and to Jordan Marsh Store at Avon and Washington sts., where he will be officially received by officials of Jordan Marsh Co.

One of the special delights for the children will be the famous balloons created by Tony Sarg. One of these will be more than 100 feet in length, depicting a dragon.

Santason's float will depict his castle in the frozen north. Seated in the center of his throne will be Santa Claus. Young Santason will be seated on his father's knee.

The second feature float will be a huge igloo surrounded with ice cakes, gnomes and other mysteries of the northland.

There will be more than 200 persons in costumes. There will be Esquimos, Indians, cowboys, pirates, gnomes, clowns, aviators, Punch and Judy, costumed donkeys, elephants, monkeys, dogs, bears, cats, lions and pigs.

There will be nine bands: Quincy De Molay band, St. Vincent's fife and drum corps of 110 pieces, the Gate of Heaven band, the House of the Angel Guardian band, the Mission Church band, the West Roxbury Legion band, the Metropolitan Firemen Post American Legion band, Emmett O'Brien's famous singing band and a funny, rollicking, laughing, clown band.

The Everett branch of the Veteran Firemen's Association have accepted the Jordan Marsh Co. invitation to assist in the parade. They will be on hand with their old famous fire tubs. These old-time smoke-eaters will march close behind the Metropolitan Firemen band of 70 pieces.

Two Go Into Bankruptcy

Nestor Boucher, engaged in the farming and dairy business in Hillside rd., Dracut, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in Federal court today. His liabilities are $8780, assets $75. Frank A. Schuelyer, salesman, Scott Hill rd., Bellingham, filed a petition, listing liabilities of $2785.80 and no assets.

4 Held for Theft of Express Truck

Charged with larceny of an express truck, 30 bags of cut soles and a case of silk, Abraham Miller of Winthrop and Andrew Banfield, Kenneth Breen and Arthur Monbouquette, all of Charlestown, were held in $2000 each today by Judge Sistili in municipal court.

The truck was stolen July 21, while the driver was in a building in Lincoln st., Boston.

Stanco Girls to Dance on Dec. 5

The Stanco Girls Club—composed of associates and employes of the Standard Newkwax Company will have their annual ball on December 5 at Whiton Hall, Codman sq. Music will be by the Colonial Singing Orchestra and refreshments will be served by Kiley the caterer.

Misses Loretta Shea, Martha Goldman and Julia Geary are directing and an enjoyable evening is expected by employes, officers of the corporation and invited guests.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment, and the best are advertised daily in the Fine Rent columns.

WHEN YOU OVER-INDULGE

THERE are times when we all are tempted to take a holiday from the usual prudence.

Where is the person who wants to be discreet in diet every day in the year? It isn't human!

And it isn't necessary!

Your stomach won't be poisoned by every little indiscretion if you will just remember to give it the friendly aid of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It will sweeten the sour system and put things to rights.

Suppose you do overload your stomach with those things that bring on acidity? Phillips' Milk of Magnesia will neutralize many times its volume in acid. Just take two spoonfuls before and after such over-indulgence. It's a very simple way to prevent those miserable mornings which follow too much to eat and drink.

When you over-indulge—eating, drinking, smoking—don't suffer for hours! Nature will restore a proper alkaline balance in time, but Phillips' Milk of Magnesia acts immediately. A creamy, pleasant-tasting emulsion that sweetens the stomach, dispels that sour gas, and relieves the nausea and headache, and feeling of biliousness due to overdoing. (Phillips' mild laxative properties always help the bowels at such times.)

Make sure it's genuine. The package, nature of Chas. H. Phillips on the wrapper and bottle will tell you it's the real product endorsed by the medical profession. Less perfect preparations do not act the same.

For a Healthy Mouth

Use Phillips' Milk of Magnesia as a mouthwash every evening before retiring. Use Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior tooth-paste, to keep the teeth clean and white.

"WINTER-PROOF" SOCONY

NOTHING more exasperating on a cold morning than to have your starter growl and sputter—and refuse to get going!

"Winter-Proof" your car and subtract this worry from your list. There are two Socony products made especially to give you QUICK STARTING even in sub-zero weather:

The first is Socony Special plus Ethyl . . . the finest premium gasoline sold in New York and New England. It contains just the proper amount of what oil technologists term "low boiling points." This insures quickest starting.

The second is Socony De-waxed Motor Oil—the tested, proved motor oil. It flows freely in sub-zero weather, gives instant lubrication, lessens the drain on your battery.

For smoother performance all winter long, fill up with these two WINTER-PROOF Socony products today. They are part of the brand-new Socony 7-Point Service, the most thorough Winter-Proof Service ever offered to motorists.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK, INC.

What the NEW Socony 7-Point Service is and how it winter-proofs your car

1. Socony Auto Radiator Cleaner—To get full protection from anti-freeze, first you need a proved radiator cleaner, such as Socony, to remove rust and scale from the cooling system. It's WINTER-PROOF.

2. Socony Upperlub Oil—Four ounces of prevention against WEAR—NOISE—CARBON and STICKY VALVES. Added to gasoline, it aids quick starting—lubricates parts difficult to reach by motor oil. It's WINTER-PROOF.

3. Socony Winter Gear Lubricants—For easy gear shifting in cold weather you must have a lighter-grade gear lubricant. Socony has a complete new line of lubricants for winter use. They're WINTER-PROOF.

4. Socony Quick-starting Gasolines—For quickest starting, choose either of Socony's two great gasolines: Special plus Ethyl, best premium gasoline; or Benner, best popular-priced gasoline. Both are WINTER-PROOF.

5. Socony De-waxed Motor Oil—A completely de-waxed motor oil! Lubricates instantly—in sub-zero weather! It's WINTER-PROOF.

6. Socony Lubrication—To withstand the brunt of winter, your car must be lubricated correctly at every point. The Socony man doesn't muse—doesn't guess! He covers every point with the right lubricant!

7. Anti-Freeze Protection—And don't forget, the winter preparation of your car is not complete without anti-freeze. Your Socony man supplies this "winter-proof" protection.

LOSS IS FIRST RECORDED IN 50 YEARS

Poll Taxes Show an Increase; Total Valuation Exceeds Seven Billion

A shrinkage amounting to $55,882,776 in the value of taxable real estate and tangible personal property is reported by local assessors throughout the State, Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long revealed today.

This is the first time in more than 50 years, the commissioner said, with the exception of 1917, when the income tax law took stocks and bonds from the ad valorem tax, that a succeeding year's valuation has not shown a gain over the previous year.

A total of $7,229,562,820 reported in 1930, he instanced, was a gain of $105,525,768 over 1929. He compared these figures with this year's total of $7,173,680,044, a loss of $55,882,776.

He said the real estate subject to 1931 assessment showed a loss of total value of $24,603,945 as against the 1930 total real estate assessed value of $6,403,062,297.

The valuation of land in 1931 showed a valuation of $2,214,950,880 and buildings a valuation of $4,163,477,872.

Likewise, he showed, the total found by the local assessors of tangible personal property this year was but $795,221,292 as against $826,-500,523 in 1930, representing a loss of $31,279,231. The assessed value of stock in trade, he said, dropped from $91,359,411 to $84,197,906, a loss of $7,171,505.

AND HE'S A BORN GENERAL

Not only is this youngster the commander-in-chief of his home, the boss of the outfit, the kingbee of the hive—but he is a commander by right of title and name. He is General Grant Murphy, Jr., three months old, of Somerville, and his father General Grant Murphy, Sr., insists that city records show little General's full name. He's the General with the chief portion of his army—Mrs. General Grant Murphy, his mother, of 85 Mt. Vernon st., Somerville.

Mayor Facing Task of Signing Name to Bonds 7400 Times

Mayor Curley and City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan are preparing for one of the most tiring tasks they are called upon to perform in connection with their official duties

Recently the city sold bonds valued at $7,478,000. When these are ready for delivery to purchasers they will have to carry signatures of both men. That means that the mayor must sign his name 7400 times and Treasurer Dolan 14,800 times.

$40,000 AUDIT NOT READ

Although auditors were paid $40,000 to audit the Gillette Safety Razor Co. books, he did not look at the auditors' reports, Bradley W. Palmer, a Gillette director, admitted today during hearing of the $21,000,000 suit by minority stockholders against the 1930 directors

Palmer also admitted that on the day of the directors' meeting in August, 1930 when the question of merging the Gillette Co with Autostrop Co. came up, he was absent and cleaning out a marsh to make a park on his Hamilton estate

Asked by Attorney Joseph E. O'Connell, of counsel for the minority stockholders, if he felt his work, therefore, was efficiently done as a director, Palmer replied, "I certainly do."

Attorney O'Connell produced figures showing that auditors were paid $40,000 in 1930, as against only $19,000 in 1929 and only $14,000 in 1928.

10 CHILDREN IN NEED, NOW!

Evicted three times in a year and threatened with a fourth eviction ten small children and their parents appealed to the Boston Evening American today for a job for the father.

He is Louis Groux of 313 Moreland st., Roxbury, a strong man with nine years of army service to his credit, and he wants work rather than charity.

Deprived of city aid, he said, because he got a temporary job that netted him $3.05 a day, Groux has sought work for months without success.

Nine boys and a girl, ranging in age from 16 years to 14 months are housed in the bare flat of six rooms that soon they must vacate for lack of rent

Seeing the worthiness of the case neighborhood grocers and kindly neighbors have been liberal in keeping the family intact and fed

But Groux doesn't seek charity. He wants work to provide food for his 10 and the wife will soon present another brother or sister to the family

If so, investigate for yourself or call Liberty 4000 and ask for the city editor

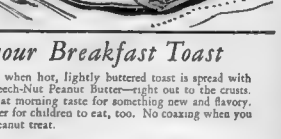
Quality that makes Popularity



Beech-Nut Cream Crackers are satisfying a demand for something different in crackers—crisp, yet tender, of creamy, yet firm, flaky texture—and of just the right golden-brown color to indicate perfect baking. They have all the qualities desirable in a cracker for every service. Carefully wrapped in a sealed package, they come to you every bit as crisp and delightfully fresh as if they had just come fresh from the oven.

Beech-Nut Cream Crackers

When you want a dainty dessert all ready to serve—a delicious toast for afternoon tea or party refreshment, you will find the Beech-Nut London Assortment of biscuits meets every social requirement

Try this on your Breakfast Toast

A new flavor is added when hot, lightly buttered toast is spread with rich, nutty flavored Beech-Nut Peanut Butter—right out to the crusts. How it does satisfy that morning taste for something new and flavory. Makes toast much easier for children to eat, too. No coaxing when you give them this tasty peanut treat.

Marry-Go-Round

SPOT THE MARRIED MAN BY ODOR OF MOTH BALLS

By HELEN ROWLAND

YOU CAN USUALLY spot a married man, at this time of year, by that haunting fragrance of mothballs and tar-bags, which envelopes him like an aura.

The modern woman is ageless. Because, in these days, no woman is too young for a job or too old for a love-affair; and as long as she has these two, she will never putrify.

A woman buries her dead love as a dog does a bone, where she can go back and dig it up, occasionally; but a man simply cremates his, and uses the embers to start a new flame.

Odd, how quickly a man loses all his careless gallantry to women, and becomes cautious, the moment his wife loosens the bonds and puts him back into circulation.

There are times when a man doesn't know which irritates him more—to feel that a woman has a "claim" on him or to feel that she doesn't want any.

There is nothing that so effectively awakens a woman's emotions as a tender kiss—and nothing that deadens them so quickly as a "dutiful" kiss.

After a bitter parting, there may be some hope of a reconciliation—but when a man and woman "part amicably," love is beyond the help of a pulmotor.

When a man reaches the point where he can no longer fall in love or woo shid into a mild spring romance, he is on his way to the wheelchair—and no doctor and no serums can bring back that schoolboy enthusiasm.

Up to the age of twenty-five, the average man's love of pursuit is greater than his love of any WOMAN.

Inside Secrets of Duckling Dinner

By MARTHA LEE.

JUDGING FROM the requests for the directions for roasting duckling, maybe most of you have chosen this delicious and economical bird for the piece de resistance of the Thanksgiving dinner.

We are preparing a complete duck dinner at the Martha Lee Cooking School tonight and tomorrow afternoon—so better drop in if you want the inner secrets including a gorgeous Mushroom Stuffing. We are going to use the delicious birdseye duckling, and with it we are serving Orange Gravy, Creole Cauliflower, Potatoes on the Half Shell, Holiday Cream Pudding, Home-Made Salted Almonds, and Ginger Crystals—a delicious home-made candy that's easy to make by this recipe.

GINGER CRYSTALS

2 level tbsps. gelatine
½ cup cold water
2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup crystallized ginger, cut in small pieces
1 tbsp. lemon juice
1 tsp. lemon extract

Soak gelatine in cold water 5 minutes. Make a syrup of boiling water and sugar and when sugar is dissolved add soaked gelatine. Bring to boiling point and let boil 15 minutes. Remove from range and add lemon juice, extract and the crystallized ginger. Turn into pans, dipped in cold water, having mixture about ¾ inch thick. Let stand over night, cut in squares and roll in fine granulated sugar. Let stand to crystallize.

HOLIDAY CREAM

1¼ tbsps. gelatine
¼ cup cold water
8 eggs
½ cup sugar
2 cups milk
2 tbsps. lemon juice
½ cup cherry juice
1 cup crushed macaroons
1 cup cherries.

Soak gelatine in cold water for 5 minutes. Separate eggs; slightly beat yolks with sugar; add milk and cook in top of double boiler until mixture coats a spoon. Remove from fire, add soaked gelatine and stir until dissolved. Add lemon and cherry juice. When cool fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour over crushed macaroons. Turn into mold and chill. Serve garnished with cherries.

Faithfully yours

Martha Lee

The Beauty Box

WHEN walking keep the toes directed straight ahead. To turn them out is to put heavy strain on the muscles of legs and ankles, to deform the feet and to invite knock knees. Have a good strong footbath which means that you'd better chuck those spiked heels into the trash basket and buy shoes that are designed for comfortable locomotion.

Goose pimples on the arms pack up and git if the arms are scrubbed vigorously and circulation stimulated. Alcohol rubs are helpful too, as oil baths (cocoanut oil is good), and friction with boric talcum powder.

BASHFUL GIRL

BY HARRIET HENRY

Drake Keeps Away From Venice

THE TABLE made a colorful picture with yellow tulips in a long oval silver bowl. They looked like reflections of the lights from a score of tapers flickering in candelabra at four corners. There was no electric light in the Goadbys' great dining room and faces were brought into shadow by the candles.

Venice sat between Jerry and Jim Severn. Drake was directly opposite her, Betty Paine on one side, Alice Schuyler on the other. Venice liked her corner for from here his then she turned quickly to Jim

"I loved that evening with you at the movies," she said. "Marlene Dietrich is remarkable."

"I hardly deserve credit for that."

And so it went. Meaningless but Venice persisted in her animation. Whenever she glanced at Drake he was either talking to one of the girls at his side or apparently lost in thought, his gaze on the profusion of tulips

"Like early morning light," she suddenly leaned a little forward to say to him. She must make him conscious of her accessibility.

He stared and smiled quickly at her

"Like bitter in bloom," laughed Jim, who had heard the remark.

It spoiled the attempt on her part and Drake turned to answer a question of Betty Paine's

After dinner Lois, Jerry, Alice Schuyler and Jim Drake Farrell played contract. Venice and the others sat and chatted

"Let's have another table," suggested Venice

After a good bit of cutting in and out and an elapse of about two hours that seemed interminable to Venice she found herself playing opposite Drake

"I haven't had two words with you this evening," she said

"I know. You're elusive."

"No, you are."

"Three spades," said Lois.

When Jim Severn was dummy at his table he came over to put a hand on the back of Venice's chair

"May I take you home when you're ready?" he bent his head to whisper.

Venice nodded. She felt annoyed. She wanted Drake to take her home but there seemed to be little that she could do about it. As the game broke up and people rose to go she remained in her chair and put a detaining hand on his arm

"What about the contest?" she asked. She had forgotten her maneuvers now and was only sincerely interested.

"It's not announced yet."

"What endless suspense. I envy you. I wish I had something to look forward to and dream about. I thought of taking some courses at Columbia"

"I expect you'd hardly find the time. But it's a great idea."

This was said with no malice. He merely could not visualize her wedging it in between all her engagements. She could see that. She smiled eagerly

"Will you come to dinner with me on Thursday, Drake?" She felt herself color.

"Thursday's my youngest sister's birthday. I've promised her a binge."

"Will you telephone me soon then?"

"As far as I'm concerned," he grinned, "you're a dangerous woman."

Now diffidence swept her. She was conscious that her cheeks were crimsoning

"What do you mean?" she managed

"Some day I'll explain," he promised gravely.

"Are you with me, Venice, or are you not?" demanded Jim Severn at her elbow.

"I'm with you, Jim. Good night, Drake. I'll see you at the Charity Ball." This last was spoken spurred by a new hurt and disappointment

Venice sat in silence in the taxi homeward bound

Jim put an arm about her and pulled her head to his shoulder

"Don't Jim." She struggled to sit erect.

There followed a most undignified scuffle Jim Severn was the victor and Venice felt a flaming anger at the feel of his kisses on her mouth, meaningless and unwanted. Finally freeing herself from his arms she slapped him across the cheek.

"Thanks for the wrestling match," she snapped.

Venice registered at Columbia that week and paid in advance for two courses, they were sessions to start in February. One was short story writing, the other English literature

Aunt Laura wrote from Boston asking her to spend Christmas with her. Venice, vaguely afraid that she might miss some sign from Drake Farrelly, refused both. She excused herself on the plea that she was dining that day at the Spaldings'—as a matter of fact, Nolly and Ernest were celebrating their wedding trip to be home especially for Christmas dinner—but in her heart she knew it was the hope of hearing from Drake that was responsible for her refusals.

Christmas gave her many little indications of newly achieved popularity. Christmas eve dawned crisp and golden. Orchids arrived from Roland Wainwright fancy from Donny Reese and assorted spring flowers from Jim Severn. It was the first Christmas that Venice had ever received offerings from young men.

Venice opened several Christmas cards. One was from Alice Schuyler, decorous and formal, engraved by Cartier; a bizarre and modernistic triangle from Ann Duryea. How did she know my address, reflected Venice never even thought of sending her one. Perhaps she realized that I've stolen her particular brand of thunder. The card is a salute of recognition for a fellow strategist. This tickled Venice's sence of humor. She grinned broadly. The last was a simple black and white of eccentric lettering and jagged New York sky line. "Drake" was written in a large individual hand in one corner

Lovely, thought Venice with some bitterness. Courteous and non-committal. She stared hard at the uneven line of skyscrapers and striking lettering. He had made it himself. It was adroit

The Charity Ball was the apex of Venice's newly scaled pinnacle of popularity. It was the satisfactory culmination of all her ignominy and struggle

(Copyright, Harriet Henry)

Should the Missis Work? Big American Problem

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHOULD the Missis work?

Not a new question—that. It has been raising Cain in American for the last 20 years. Lately the rumpus broke out afresh. Somebody discovered that many of our Congressmen and Senators were keeping the home fires burning brighter by putting the Little Woman on the official Expense Account. Thus keeping Uncle Sam's bonus all in the family—but also keeping some regular stenog out of a job.

Whereupon, investigations sprang up like an epidemic of pink-eye. Big industries began discharging married women workers. Hospitals weeded out their staffs. Then someone rushed into this column and haled Teacher before the bar.

"Why," demanded Ellen Tree indignantly, "should teachers be allowed to retain their jobs after they marry, when there are thousands of unemployed single teachers? Most teachers, when they do marry, find husbands of comfortable means. Yet they are so greedy for money that both husband and wife go on working—and the wife also teaches in night school as well as day school. Won't you print this, and show them up!"

Sezz I, old and wise and fond of our health, we refused to take sides. But we printed Ellen's complaint. And are still trying to dig our way from under the answers! Hundreds—then more hundreds—most of them voicing that well known theme song—

"THERE OUGHT TO BE A LAW AGIN' IT!"

Here's a typical one:

"Should a married woman work? Emphatically no . . . unless stark necessity compels. This recent rush of women into the working world has resulted in an utter upheaval of the natural social order. Men were meant to work and support their families. Any decent man desires to do so. IT DESTROYS A MAN'S CHARACTER TO ACCEPT HELP FROM HIS WIFE. UNLESS SICKNESS OR UTTER POVERTY COMPEL HIM TO DO SO, AND IT DESTROYS A WIFE'S RESPECT FOR THE HUSBAND.

"As for those women who want careers, HOME MAKING IS A FULL TIME CAREER FOR ANY WOMAN. Women have been awful slackers where their real jobs are concerned. It's a hard, tiresome job to be a good wife and mother—and many a search for a career is merely an effort to escape boredom

"Mrs. Edward Dorsey

"3110 Kingsbridge Terrace, New York City."

But not all would oust the married woman worker. Miss Frances Larson, of 79 Hoyt's Hill, Bethel, Conn.,—an unmarried, unemployed teacher—takes the stand for her married sisters.

"Our public schools," says she, "should not be regarded as mere industries, which give employment to so many workers. Their mission is to inculcate in children certain social attitudes, habits and knowledge, which will make for intelligent citizenship. For such work, the finest quality of character is needed in the teacher—and teachers should be selected accordingly. No one can deny that the married woman knows more of life than the single woman, and has a broader viewpoint and a more matured character. Therefore, very often marriage is a distinct asset in a teacher, and should commend her rather than disbar her

"Nor do I think that marriage should be regarded as a bar to any work. Her marriage is a woman's personal problem, and has nothing to do with her right to work. MANY A WOMAN CANNOT ACCEPT SUPPORT FROM HER HUSBAND AND KEEP HER SELF-RESPECT, EVEN THOUGH SHE LOVES HIM. Why should anyone question her right to support herself if she wishes?"

Why indeed! But just put that question up to an employment agency full of jobless females, and see what you start!

All of which leads—where? To laws against married women workers? But how about those who "have to work"? And who's going to decide how much is "have to"? If it were put up to you, where would YOU draw the line? Or would you draw it at all?

Daily True Story

Love and Black Gold

MULLANEY WEIGHED two twenty. He had three chins and a dyspeptic disposition.

If the world ever went right for Mullaney he kept it a secret. The office knew him as a crab and Mullaney seemed to glory in his eternal grouch.

Yet, on the "Star" where he wrote for a living, Mullaney drew those stories intended to make women weep and to make men stop and think about sending in a check to help out those whose troubles captured a place in print

Mullaney had been places and seen people and done things. He had that faculty of detaching himself from the dingy editorial room where his typewriter and seeing the things he wrote about through the eyes of the reporter on the job, the reporter on the other end of the line

Mullaney was a "re-write" man He never left the office, yet the things he wrote about bore the convincing ring of an observer on the job. Mullaney passed through the periodical shakeups in the office and continued to draw a better pay check on Saturday nights than most of his fellows.

That was because of that writing knack, because of his ability to see through the eyes of others

TOSSED AWAY DEVOTION

The bell jangled on the city desk, and Marley, at headquarters, outlined the story that had come in from the suburban precincts. Crowley switched the call to Mullaney. There was a short interchange of comment. Then the typewriter began to click.

"The House that Jack Built tumbled like a house of cards for Mary McCabe today"—the sentences took form on the copy of the typewriter of the office ground.

"She found she had carried the offering to the feet of a false idol. She found she'd gambled everything in life on happiness with another man. She found she'd tossed away devotion of a man who really loved her and given it to one who was unworthy.

"Mary McCabe found today that her idol had feet of clay.

"She found that the man for whom she'd forsaken her home and her children cared nothing for her other than to gain possession of the bit of land her father had owned, land upon which it seemed for a time there might be oil.

"Today Mary McCabe is sobbing and alone, a wistful and pathetic figure, surrounded by the bitterest medicine the world can offer for a broken heart—plain pity.

TELLS STORY

"In the Green Plains police station she told her story, and with a flash of pride that made her willing to accept the world's sneers and jerring, sought a warrant for the arrest of the other man

"Five years ago Mary McCabe was a happy mother. Her boy was just one year old. She and her husband owned the little cottage in Green Plains where that baby was born

"The future stretched ahead in a vista of loving care for the boy, of watching him grow to splendid manhood, of caring for him until he reached the age where he could start out on his career. She dreamed of that career for her boy, as every mother dreams.

"Mary McCabe didn't know then of depressions. She didn't think there would ever be a time when worry over money would cast its wolfish shadow across her door

"Then there came the day when John Carter came from Texas. Smooth and suave this John Carter was. He told Mary of a great oil syndicate near Amarillo, a syndicate that stood ready to make her rich. He told her how geologists had traced a great oil pocket, how it "seemed safer to head into the half section of almost desert land that had been her father's.

UNFOLDS VIVID SCENE

"Mary McCabe listened with glistening eyes while John Carter told her that he had a plan to capitalize on the geologists' report. He told her that she could buy adjoining land, before the great syndicate bought it, and then sell all the combined acreage at tremendous profit.

"John Carter told her, when she said she had no money for investment, how a mortgage on the Green Plains home would handle that. He told her that $5000 would swing it and showed her how the Green Plains home could be made to bring that.

"Mary McCabe told her husband, and when he protested she accused him of being a coward. She pleaded, and then became femininely obdurate. She accused him of standing between her and the future of their boy.

Mary McCabe's husband felt something die within him. He'd never expected anything like that from Mary McCabe. There was a scene, and then bitter recriminations. Mary McCabe's husband walked out in a rage. She could do as she pleased, the husband told her. She could have everything her arms way

"A day passed, and then another Mary McCabe became as angry as he. John Carter came at the psychological moment. He convinced Mary McCabe she owed 'something to her son.' She mortgaged the home that was all paid for. She turned the money over to the slave man who talked of the 'black gold.'

INTENSELY LONELY

"In her bitterness she was intensely lonely. And her fresh beauty, for all that she was a mother, made John Carter want her as well as her cash. She listened, in her loneliness and selfpity." She finally did what John Carter asked. She divorced her [redacted]. And she married the man who had promised to make her rich.

"Today there came the rough awakening. A dispatch from Texas told of the arrest of Carter. It told of how he and [redacted] a fake oil company. It told of how he'd married three different times.

"She's lonely today, is Mary McCabe. Deep down in her heart she yearns for the father of her boy."

Mullaney stopped writing. He sent his last take of copy to the desk. He rose and went toward his locker. He put on his hat and coat and walked toward the door. Then he hesitated and walked back to Burligh, the city editor, who had just looked at the last lines

"I gotta take the afternoon off," said Mullaney.

Burleigh looked up with inquiry in his eyes

"You see," said Mullaney, and he shifted from one foot to the other uneasily, "I want to go up to see Mary. She—she was, one time, my wife."

The little stone-walled cottage in Green Plains is open again and a five-year-old youngster runs down the walk at night when the five-fifteen whistles at the bend.

Down at the "Star" they don't call Mullaney grouch any longer. He smiles when he comes in and talks of flowers and happiness —and spring

(The names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Eyestrain May Be Cause of Laziness

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND.

PERIODICAL general examinations are particularly valuable to persons past 50. Periodical eye examinations are essential in every age group

Many a child is counted stupid in school because he has unrecognized eye trouble and cannot study as the normal child does Failure to progress in school or college is frequently the result of uncorrected eye-strain. Listlessness, alleged laziness, unwillingness to work at tasks requiring good eyesight, and other important social misadjustments, are all too many times the direct effect of poor eyes

It is amazing what relief comes with the correction of eye-strain. As if by magic, all the discomforts which have ruined what would otherwise be a happy life, will disappear with the adjustment of proper glasses.

There will always be a dispute, I suppose about who ended the war. We hear it in nation and that nation, this group and that group, claiming the honor and glory of deciding that conflict.

Applying this thought to the ending of onslaughts on the health and happiness of the human family, I think great credit should be given all those engaged in the correction of eye defects. The practical application of the science of optics has promoted as much the welfare of the human family as any other factor of which I have knowledge.

If your eyes distress you, or if you have unconfortable symptoms which have baffled all efforts to remove them, I beg of you to have your eyes tested Find out whether or not you have perfect vision. Find out if the eyesight with which you flatter yourself, is good at the expense of your body. The small sum involved in an examination of the eyes and the correction of their defects, if they exist, will repay you a thousandfold in increased efficiency and multiplied happiness.

CANADIENS CLASH WITH BRUINS AT GARDEN TONIGHT

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

A Few Nibbles at Sport's Free Lunch Counter

What's the matter with our Bruins, anyway? . . . Dropping 3 out of 4 makes 'em look like Teddy Bears . . . They're being left at the post . . . By the time they get going the race may be over . . . Doctors say few men ever have come nearer losing the sight of an eye without it actually happening than did Hec Kilrea . . . The great wing of the Falcons soon will be back in the lineup . . . Wonder more eyes aren't injured in hockey than there are . . . With games tonight, Thursday night and Saturday night the Bruins will get plenty of "practice" . . . That's what Art Ross said they needed . . . From that 7 to 0 defeat the Cubs need plenty of practice, too . . . Bostonians will get the first peek of the season tonight at that cross between a streak of greased lightning and a will o' the wisp they call Howie Morenz . . . But we wouldn't swap Eddie Shore for a rink full of Flying Frenchmen . . . Wonder which Harry Hillman will bring home the bacon in the Dartmouth-Stanford game . . . One of 'em trains Dartmouth and the other captains Stanford . . . A quarter century ago the Dartmouth Hillman was winning Olympic championships for Uncle Sam.

To the real student of football Notre Dame looms even greater through that 16 to 14 defeat by Southern California . . . Only a great team can lose that way . . . The cleverest and most startling coup of the season, Barry Wood's pass to Crickard on the opening kickoff and Crickard's sensational 82 yard runback against Yale, went for naught because Harvard failed to put over the short 8 yard finishing punch . . . John had Yale beaten then and there—but flunked . . . The psychological effect of a following score probably would have meant a Yale rout . . . The Bulldog deserves a world of credit for that magnificent stand right at the door of his kennel . . . Wood's failure to click in the Yale game may cost him All-American award . . . If Harvard had put over the haymaker after that Wood-Crickard coup Barry would have made the All-American as sure as you're born . . . By such thin margins are All-American margins won and lost.

You'll see a flock of players worthy of All-American consideration in action in the Stadium on Thursday . . . There isn't a better center on the eastern gridiron than Harry Downes of B. C. . . . Unless it is little Bergin of Holy Cross . . . Know a better quarterback than Phil O'Connell, Crusader Chieftain? . . . And think of the columns that would be given Colucci and Cavalieri if they were guarding the flanks of Yale or Harvard . . . Better guards than Zyntell may have played in the Stadium this year but if they have we failed to see them . . . What's in a name? . . . Well dress some of the H. C. and B. C. players in Harvard and Yale uniforms and you would find out.

Neither Pete Chesnuleyich or Tony Rovinski have crept into the All-American talk but either of those two players are likely to break up the old ball game, Thanksgiving afternoon . . . Fordham, next to N. Y. U., was supposed to have the toughest outfit on the gridiron, yet Bucknell put threes of the Maroon hombres in the hospital . . . And Old Cav in mourning . . . 'Twould be a great thing for dear old Dartmouth if Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg could get back in the lineup on Saturday and use some of the flying tackles he will waste against Charlie Strack in the Arena on Thursday night . . . Experts say Dartmouth will not need him . . . Dartmouth is supposed to have found itself in the Yale game . . . The Cornell game looked as if Dartmouth really had . . . Dartmouth is favored to beat Stanford . . . But look at the monkey wrench Southern California threw into the Notre Dame machine! . . . Better not count any Californians out until the last whistle blows.

Even the big H. C. vs. B. C. battle for the unemployed hasn't dulled interest in the Thanksgiving Day morning games among the high schools . . . That Thanksgiving football duel between Boston Latin and Boston English is almost as rich in traditions as Harvard-Yale . . . Dad will have to ask Grandpa when the series started . . . The on ag'in, off ag'in, gone ag'in Brouillard match is on again . . . Set for December 2, now with Bucky Lawless in the opposite corner . . . New York will have a "Battle Among the Clouds" on Friday . . . The giant Carnera vs. the elongated Campolo . . . Spectators will need a stepladder to watch 'em . . . Carnera sails for Europe on Saturday to fulfill a German contract . . . The Ambling Alp will take good care to keep away from La Belle France . . . They want him in the French Army . . . Carnera doesn't believe in fighting for 15 cents a day . . . Not when American suckers will pay him at the rate of $1000 per minute . . . And you can't blame him.

Ernie Schaaf goes away from here on Saturday . . . Will fight Young Stribling in Chicago and Frankie Simms in Cleveland . . . Lou Brouillard is on the same Cleveland card . . . Meets Paul Pirrone . . . Remember what Lou did to Paul here in Boston? . . . Jack Dempsey will be waiting for Schaaf's return . . . Too bad that Boston "Natural," a return match between Ernie and Jack, can't be fought . . . By the time the managers agree the bout will be "cold." When will the managers learn to come to an agreement when a match is "hot?" . . . "Business men," my eye! . . . Wasn't that a dirty trick the Port Jervis cops played in using a team of "ringers" against the Sing Sing convicts? . . . Send the real cops back to Sing Sing . . . And keep 'em there!

Wonder what shape "Sonny" will be in after his long layoff . . . Some folks thought Dynamite Gus was stale from overwork when he met DeGlane . . . Now with a good rest and a couple of easy tuneup matches Dynamite Gus comes back to test his blade against Charlie Strack . . . Is Dynamite Gus headed for the title again? . . . We'll see what we will see in the Arena, Thursday night . . . 'Twill look good to see Nick Lutz again . . . There's a grunt and groaner who never fails to give you a run for your money . . . About time Jack Dempsey broke into the headlines again . . . Jack has kept out of print for almost a week! . . . Never was a publicity getter like the old Man Killer . . . One friend tells us partridges are thicker than chipmunks in the Berkshires . . . Another says they're scarcer than hen's teeth . . . Durned sight rather have partridge than turkey for Thanksgiving . . . Not that we'll turn down that turkey, Ma . . . Oh, no! ! ! . . . But remember, Ma, table's not to be set until 6 o'clock . . . We just gotta see that B. C. vs. H. C. duel!

EAGLES DUE TO GIVE H. C. STIFF FRAY

By BILL GRIMES

In the last strenuous workout before playing Holy Cross Thanksgiving Day, for the Unemployment Fund, Boston College is practicing in the Harvard Stadium this afternoon.

This will be the initial appearance of a Boston College squad in the Crimson's famous arena since 1918.

Coach Joe McKenney and his three Bills, Ormsby, Chamberlain and Kelliher, started the final drive for the Crusaders yesterday at Kenway Park. The Eagles were behind closed gates holding their first secret practise of the season and put through the longest session of the year.

As Boston College will also hold a light workout tomorrow in the Stadium, the football equipment was moved into the Dillon Field House this morning.

Although the odds quoted around town have Holy Cross a top heavy favorite the game will be closer than is generally expected. The Crusaders deserve to be the favorites but are entitled to no such odds at 10 to 3 and 100 to 25.

According to reports from Mt. St James, some of the Crusaders are not in the best physical condition by Cross has been through a tough season. After opening with a couple of setups, Holy Cross took on Dartmouth, Fordham, Rutgers Brown, Duquesne, Harvard and Loyola and the latter was by no means the softest of these contests.

O'Connell Shows Effects of Hard Play

Capt. Phil O'Connell has been showing the effects of his two years of hard varsity football all season Capt. Phil has not been up to his 1930 form this fall, due to the punishment he received a year ago. O'Connell is very light and in all probability far too courageous for the good of his health. He did not get going until the Brown game and he had not fully recovered when "The Cross" played Harvard. Even Jim Cavalieri and Tony Colucci have been forced to rest consistently since the Harvard game.

Capt. O'Connell, Tony Colucci and Marty Murray have been ordered to stay off the football field until Thanksgiving Day by Head Coach John J. McEwan.

Despite the poor physical condition of some of the Crusaders, Capt. McEwan still has plenty of talent available. And, in this respect is far better off than his rival, Joe McKenney, who has been and still is short of talent.

Eagle Play Weak in Midseason

Holy Cross has lost only two games this season, and could have tied both. The Crusaders were one touchdown in arrears of both Dartmouth and Harvard when the final whistle blew. In these contests 112, 126, 135 117 and 160 pounds, and light heavyweights

ON THE ICE

Howie Morenz, who comes to the Garden with the world's champion Les Canadiens of Montreal to face the Bruins tonight is the Babe Ruth of hockey.

He's the game's great sec farward, fastest skater, most colorful performer and biggest gate attraction.

And like most outstanding players, this 170-pound dynamite center is extremely modest. He will never admit being deserving of all the praise that is showered upon him.

To listen to Howie, "Pit" Lepine, his sub, is the greatest center in the game. "Lepine is a far better defensive player and just as valuable on offense as I am," says the star of stars.

But that is far from the truth. If you have any doubt about it, drop into the Garden tonight and discover for yourself that Morenz is in a class by himself.

(Tomorrow: Tommy Cook)

CAN CRUSADERS COVER HIM?

Well, we'll know after the big H. C. vs. B. C. battle in the Stadium on Thursday. PETE CHESNULEVITCH is the spex of the B. C. offense. Coach McKenney has been saving him for Holy Cross.

CHASE TO FACE COLGATE

Providence, Nov. 24: Bob Chase Brown's halfback who has put through the last four games with relief, will face Colgate Thanksgiving Day.

Injured in the third quarter of the game with New Hampshire Saturday, Chase played through the entire contest.

Bill Gilbane, who has been alternating the fullback and right half back assignments with Chase was also injured, but not badly.

Chase and Gilbane both reported for practice but remained on the side lines. Coach McLaughry put his squad through a drill against Colgate plays.

Mal Ball, sophomore end Wally Skinner, tackle, and Holland Brown lineman, all returned to uniform after a week of absence on account of injuries.

Leading Amateurs in St. Joe's Fights

New England's leading amateur boxers will have their initial appearance Saturday night before the fans of the annual Golden Glove series when they clash in the week's St. Joseph's T. A. A. tournament at Mechanics Building.

Bill Cuddy expects his heaviest entry list of the season, for the "puree" are all anxious to be in the best of shape for the annual winter classic. This week's entries include 112, 126, 135 147 and 160 pounds, and light heavyweights.

Kenney Honored at B. A. A. Dinner

William P. "Bill" Kenney, president of the New England A. A. U. and chairman of the National Amateur Boxing Committee of America, was feted at a dinner at the Boston A. A.

About 125 attended including John F. Swift, supreme director, U. S. Charles J. Fox of the Budget Commission and Dr. Edward J. O'Brien.

Lanier Is Heavy Victor at Garden

In the amateur boxing at the Garden, when the University Club staged a tournament, the best fighting came in the heavyweight class. Chester Lanier of Medford fought to victory. Mike Kilev and Peter Morrell of Boston staged a good heavyweight bout, with Morrell knocking out Kilev.

The boxing in the smaller classes was savage.

POWERS DRIVES CUBS DEFENSE

The five husky members of the Cubs defense, [illegible] Brodrick, Myles Lane and Charlie Perry [illegible] will see more [illegible] than they will encounter all season according to the plans of Manager Eddie Powers.

The Cubs [illegible] off competition until the game with Providence Reds at the Boston Garden next Saturday night, but the boys will see plenty of action this week.

The Cub defense was porous against the Eagles and Manager Powers plans to shoot line after line against his defense men this week until they brush up in their work.

The Eagles got the jump on the Cubs and held it. The Cubs forwards experted for powerhaking passes turned in fairly good work against New Haven.

The Cub players are up against another whirlwind team when the Providence Reds come here. The Reds have plenty of speed and color and are inclined to rough it up.

Muir May Wrestle in Vets' Mat Show

Danny Muir, [illegible] sought by Alex MacLean [illegible] maker for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, as an opponent for Count George Zarynoff in one of the preliminary bouts to the match between Gus Sonnenberg and Charlie Strack, on Thursday night, at the Arena.

If the veteran matchmaker is able to secure Muir he will have rounded out a great all-star wrestling card.

Sonnenberg is one of the greatest, if not the greatest magnets at the wrestling sport in the game and with the fans who has made wrestling one of the most popular of professional sports there will be Nick Lutz, Jim Browning, Jack Reed, Pat McKay, Al Mercy, Ray Pelkey and Les Wykoff.

Hockey Series on for Concord Girls

Concord, Nov. 24: Two games in the series for the interclass girls field hockey championship of Concord high school were played on the Emerson playground court, the sophomores shutting out the freshman team 3 to 0, and the senior girls winning 1 to 0 over the juniors.

Campiglio Likely Scoring Champ

New York, Nov. 24 (US)—Bob Campiglio, of West Liberty Teachers College, already has clinched individual national scoring honors for 1931.

Campiglio, who has held top place for most of the year, is far ahead with 148 points. He has completed his schedule, but his nearest rival, Bob Monnett, of Michigan State, will have to score more than 19 points this Saturday to gain first place. Monnett has compiled 127 points this year.

B. U. GRIDMEN ON COURT TEAM

Boston University football [illegible] now turn to winter sports.

Coach Wm Karlson's basketball team will be strengthened by the addition of Herbie Semino, Lester Hart and Jack McCartin. Semino won a regular guard job on the quintet last year as a sophomore and was one of the stars of the team. This year much is expected of him.

This will be Hart's first attempt to win a varsity job in basketball, as he is only a sophomore. Last year, however he started with the frosh and his chances are good.

Coach Willard Vaughan will have two varsity football men who were on his power team last year reporting tomorrow. Danny Herring on end Carl Cam are the two veteran puck chasers.

Harrington won the goalie job last year as a sophomore. He is certain to retain the post this year. Clem was in the second forward line last winter, but it is expected that he will be a starting wing this year.

EAGLES WORK OUT IN STADIUM FOR H. C. GAME

B. C. IS DUE TO GIVE PURPLE HARD FIGHT

ounce. And, between these upsets they sandwiched in a tie game with Fordham.

After defeating Catholic University in the opening game, which, by the way, is the only time C. U. has been beaten this year, and taking a hard-fought 13 to 0 decision from Dayton, Boston College stalled about mid-season and before it could get going again lost three games, Fordham, Villa Nova and Marquette. Once under way again the Eagles went through Georgetown, Western Maryland Centre and Boston University.

Joe McKenney and his assistant coaches have performed wonders at the Heights this fall, regardless of the three defeats. Few coaches have ever been handed a squad with less power than that which greeted McKenney & Co. last September.

To be quite candid, Joe McKenney has been forced to build a team around one man, and that man is his center, Harry Downes. With the exception of Downes, there is not a standout on the B. C. squad.

The 1931 Boston College squad has displayed an exceptionally fine spirit. It has worked hard and willingly, despite the fact that conditions were the worst under which any big college squad ever tried to play football.

With faulty equipment, inadequate dressing rooms and no training table, Boston College has carried on, chiefly because of its respect for Joe McKenney. Under the conditions, the Eagles have done remarkably well and deserve all the credit in the world for their showing

McKenney Has Done Remarkable Job

Coach Joe McKenney has been forced to retain an exceptionally large squad this season. He has gone out to practice sessions hoping against hope that by some miracle he would uncover a find. By consistent plugging and long hours of tedious coaching, McKenney has developed a far more formidable aggregation than even the most optimistic experts suspected was possible.

Harry Downes has few peers in the college ranks, and is entitled to the lion's share of the credit for the Eagle's success on the gridiron. Around Downes, Coach McKenney has built a good line from tackle to tackle. Also, he has some reputements who are about on a par with the regulars.

The ends have been a problem which have kept Bill Ormsby worried week in and week out. Starting with Eddie Gallagher and Louie Mason on the flanks, B. C. failed to function, and then John DeVenzi and Joe Killian received the call.

After a long layoff Gallagher began to come back to life in the Western Maryland game and he was playing the best football he ever displayed at the Heights when he was injured against Centre.

Gallagher should be one of the greatest ends in the country with his physique. He stands better than six feet, weighs almost 200, is fast and shifty, but just needs confidence to find himself, until he was benched.

B. C. Backs Lack Weight and Height

There are some good-looking backs on the B. C. squad, but most of them are so small as to cause Joe McKenney to remark a few weeks ago that he wished a back would be in an appearance who was taller than a hydrant.

Pete Chesnulevich is the Eagles' smallest ace. Chesnie is very small but stocky and tough. Make no mistake about the Nashua boy's gameness. He has taken a fine punishment as any back in the game this year, but he has never faltered. Chesny will be dangerous against the Crusaders, if he is afforded the proper protection to the line of scrimmage.

Realizing that his material is close the Holy Cross standard, Coach McKenney has worked all year to develop a machine and, unless all indications are wrong, the Eagles will give Holy Cross one of its toughest games of the season on the Harvard Stadium Thanksgiving Day afternoon.

The tickets for this game are on sale at Jordan Marsh Co., Filene's and Gilchrist's as well as at Boston College. According to Vin Carolin, who is the assistant graduate manager of Boston College, there has been a healthy demand for tickets and more than 50 per cent have been sold.

Albright Meets Morelli at Lynn

Jack Albright of Buffalo and Al Morelli of Revere meet in the main bout at Lauriers Hall Lynn, tonight, in a best two out of three falls match. In the semifinal Jim Browning of Missouri tackles Pat O'Riley of Cleveland.

There will be three preliminary bouts, with John Grandovitch grappling with Lwo Levitt of Salem, N. H., Ralph Fay of Swampscott facing Ernie Nolan of Hartford, and Kid Blair of Lynn tackling Al Cameau, also of Lynn for the championship of the city.

Peden and Audy Win Minneapolis Race

Minneapolis, Nov. 24 (AP)—Picking up three laps in the final three hours of sprinting, the team of William Peden of Canada and Jules Audy, Frenchman, won the Northwest's first six-day bicycle race which ended at midnight tonight. The winners covered 2379 miles and eight laps.

Bernhard Stuebecke and Brask Anderson, the German-Swedish combination, finished second, three laps behind the winners, while another lap back came the French-Canadian pair of Henri La Page and Pierre Gachon.

Max Baer Stops Kennedy in Third

Oakland, Cal., Nov. 23 (AP)—Shooting over a right uppercut in the third round that dropped his opponent for the full count, Max Baer, Oakland heavyweight, evened up an old score with Les Kennedy here tonight.

Baer drove in shortly after the third opened, however, and after staggering Kennedy with a right cross to the jaw, finished him with an uppercut with the same hand. Baer weighed 203 pounds, and Kennedy 189.

Old Glory Auction Sale Starts Today

New York, Nov. 24 (AP) Trotters and pacers which already have made their marks in the light harness world and yearlings which have yet to make theirs will go on the auction block in the Old Glory sale opening today at the Squadron A" Armory.

Leading all the rest is Calumet Butler, winner of the $30,000 Hambletonian. Others on the block include Keno, runner-up in the Hambletonian; Tronia Britton, Allie Pluto, Calumet Adam, Calumet Alden, Calumet Brownie and Meadbrey About 400 yearlings also will be sold.

SOMERVILLE STANDOUT

Danny Lynch, Somerville high back, is one of the most dependable workers on Charley Dickerman's eleven. Lynch, a fine baseball player, can toss a football as well. He'll play against Ringe Tech at Russell field, North Cambridge, Thursday a. m.

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

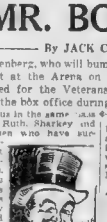
Gus Sonnenberg, who will bump into Charlie Strack in a finish wrestling bout at the Arena on Thanksgiving night at a show being promoted for the Veterans of Foreign Wars, has drawn $1,700,000 at the box office during the past three years.

This places Gus in the same class with Dempsey, Ruth, Sharkey and Tunney, the men who have surpassed everybody when it comes to drawing record gates.

Sonnenberg's biggest gate was $72,000 which is what he drew when pitted against Strangler Lewis at the Garden. Out in Los Angeles he did $45,000 for Lou Daro with Everett Marshall as an opponent

Sonny and Joe Malcewicz drew $51,000 at the Garden, while the old Dynamiter and Count Zaryoff dragged in $40,000.

Gates of from $15,000 to $40,000 have been rather common as Sonnenberg has paraded around the country meeting all comers.



Mr. Boston

Real Iron Man

During his first year as world's heavyweight wrestling champion, Sonny stepped into action 94 times. He made iron men in other branches of sport look like a lot of lazy fellows out for the sun.

Sonny finally cracked under the strain and dropped his title to Ed George. Since losing his championship, Gus has not taken as many matches as he used to. He recently broke all precedents for himself when he took a vacation of two months and went to Honolulu with his bride.

Sonny has engaged in a couple of matches since returning to the United States. He is quite confident he will regain his lost championship.

Although he hasn't got a title, Gus will outdraw either Henri DeGlane or Jim Londos. DeGlane is the real world's champion, Londos a commission champion. The old Dynamiter is the title holder at the box office.

Alex MacLean is trying to secure an opponent for Bonnie Muir, Australian champion, who appeared here last season. Bonni may be pitted against Count Zaryoff

If Jim Browning wins from Leo Wykoff in the semi-final, he will demand Henri DeGlane give him a return tussle. DeGlane recently took a boat to France rather than go through with a return bout with Browning.

Nick Lutze will try out his reverse body hold on Pat McKay, while Jack Sherry will oppose John Spellman. Al Morelli and Earl Pojello will also appear on the veterans' card.

Lawless a Newton Boy

Bucky Lawless, who meets Lou Brouillard at the Garden on Dec. 2, is a Newton boy who has gone places and done things. He has been in there with Young Jack Thompson and the other headliners in the welterweight division.

Dick Dunn has given orders at the Garden that the light over the picture of Tex Rickard in the lobby be kept on 24 hours a day. Dick also plans to have an attraction in the Garden each night so Tex won't be lonesome. Dinn has instilled a lot of new life into the North Station sport palace.

15 TEAMS IN N.Y. BIKE RACE

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)—Fifteen teams have been formed for Madison Square Garden's 51st international six-day bicycle race, starting Sunday night

The pairings: France Georgetti, Italy, and Gerard Debaets, Belgium; Alfred Letourner and Marcel Guimbretiere, France; Franz Deilberg, Germany, and Willie Grimm, Maplewood, N. J., Harry Horan, Newark, N. J., and Avanti Martinetti, Italy; Bobby Walthour, New York, and Al Crossley, Boston; Jimmy Walthour, New York, and Charley Ritter, Newark.

Georges Coupry and Michel Pacqueux, France; Albert Buysse and Jean von Buggenhout, Belgium; Reggie McNamara, Newark, and Learco Guerra, Italy; Otto and Walter Nickel, Germany; Freddie Spencer, Plainfield, N. J., and Norman Hill, San Jose, Cal.; Harris Horder, Australia, and Ernest de Lala, Paterson, N. J.; Cecil Walker and George Dempsey, Australia; Tony Heckman, Secaucus, N. J., and Charley Winter, New York, and Tom Saetta, Italy, and Jack Sheehan, New York.

Babe Hunt Loses Decision to Dempsey

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 24 (INS)—Jack Dempsey continued to sail smoothly along the comeback course today after removing another obstacle in the person of Babe Hunt of Ponca City, Okl. The erstwhile heavyweight boxing champion uncorked the old speed and stamina last night to whip his opponent in a four-round exhibition match.

Scottish Girls Here for Hockey Game

Chicago, Nov. 24 (INS)—Sixteen fair damsels from the Bonnie Braes of Scotland were in Chicago today to show Americans how field hockey is played in the land of the heather. The Scotch girls will play a series of matches with the sectional winners of the women's national field hockey tournament opening here tomorrow.

Sing Sing Wants to Play Cops Again

Ossining, N. Y., Nov. 24 (INS)—The Sing Sing Prison football team, which lost its first contest of the season on Sunday to the Port Jervis police department eleven, has challenged the cops to a return game two weeks hence.

SUB GAVE YALE BIG CHANCE

New Haven, Ct., Nov. 24—A regular, Johnny Wilbur, and a substitute, Tom Hawley, "cooked" up an impromptu play and paved the way for Albie Booth's field goal and Yale's victory over the Crimson.

Just prior to the play in which Wood's punt was blocked, Wilbur told Hawley that he would try to take the two Harvard men in their zone, and Hawley, thus freed from interference, would cut into the middle of the line and straight for Wood.

Hawley is a senior and has played three positions on Yale teams for three years, always as a substitute

Yale varsity players had a day off as Coach Stevens found the squad too exhausted after Saturday's game with the Crimson.

The week's practice will get under way with a secret drill in the Bowl today.

Arthur "Cap" Hall, regular right tackle, who was hurt in the Harvard game, may not play at all in the Princeton game. He suffered a wrenched knee.

The Yale Athletic Association announced the Princeton game would start at 2:30 p. m., a half-hour earlier than usual, to avoid darkness in the last quarter.

SOUTH, EAST BOSTON CLASH

Boston school football action is hot, today. Hyde Park and Jamaica play at Huntington School Field, Brookline; South Boston meets East Boston, and Trade School takes on Mechanic Arts at Fenway Park.

Today, the District High School champion will be crowned, for Jamaica Plain has been beaten but it may beat Hyde Park, and South Boston, if a winner over East Boston, can take first place, provided Hyde Park is beaten.

South and East Boston in the traditional game should bring out the crowd.

John D. O'Reilley, coach at English high in 1899, and mentor at Georgetown for many years in the area, will be head linesman for the English-Latin fray Thursday. It has been announced

Harvard Band to Play for Stanford

Stanford University football team, now travelling 3000 miles across the country to meet Dartmouth at Harvard Stadium next Saturday, will find plenty of supporters for the battle with the Green.

Arrangements were completed today for the Harvard Band to furnish music for Stanford songs which will be sung from a cheering section comprised of Harvard alumnia.

FORDHAM ACE WINS FIGHT WITH DEATH

New York, Nov 24—John Szymanski, Fordham tackle, may be partially paralyzed for life as a result of injuries sustained in the Fordham-Bucknell game last Saturday.

Szymanski was rushed to the hospital from the field, and so serious was his condition that his family was summoned from New Britain, Ct. His condition has improved, and X-rays, while they showed no fracture of the skull or spinal cord, do reveal a partial displacement of the spine, which has left Szymanski's left side paralyzed.

INJURY LIKE LASSMAN'S.

The injury is much in the nature of that suffered by Al Lassman, the New York University tackle and captain, in the Carnegie Tech game at Pittsburgh in 1926. That injury left Lassman partially paralyzed.

Lassman died on July 6, 1930, while trying to save the lives of two youngsters from drowning at a camp on Long Lake, near Harrison, Me

John Szymanski is 20 years old and a junior at Fordham, where he is taking a course for the degree of the bachelor of science. He had planned to continue as a medical student. He is well known in the Fordham hospital, as he worked there during his vacation.

He was graduated from Senior high school in New Britain in 1928 with a distinguished record both in scholarship and athletics, receiving the Burns award for proficiency in those two activities and a scholarship that will see him through this year at Fordham.

His father is prominent among the Polish people of New Britain, having once served on the Board of Public Works in that town

Fordham players, Connie Murphy and Paul Howell, also were taken to Fordham Hospital on Saturday, both suffering from slight concussion of the brain received in the same game in which Szymanski was injured. Howell left the hospital yesterday, having recovered over the week-end, and Murphy's injury was said not to be serious

SALEM, BEVERLY TILT

NORTH SHORE CLASSIC ON THURSDAY

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

With the exception of a few post season schoolboy football games the Turkey Day frays will finish the schedule for all the big rivals.

This is the day when most of the teams hope to annihilate their rivals, regardless of what kind of a season they have gone through.

The outstanding game of the day will be the Salem-Beverly clash at Cooney Field, Beverly. The Witches are a slight favorite to cop the verdict, although the Beverly eleven has had a great season.

Regardless of the outcome of the Salem-Beverly game Salem will make another post-season visit to Miami, Florida, to play Miami high school, the same team which defeated the Witchburgers two years ago.

Losing only one game, to the heavy Haverhill aggregation, Bodger Carroll has drawn wonders his first year at Beverly.

Parquette Is Great School Quarterback

Salem has yet to be scored on and the way it ran roughshod over the undefeated Newburyport high team last Saturday was a revelation to the fans from the Witch City. In Parquette they have the best and trickiest school quarterback in the state and his generalship has been perfect in every game.

With Voyar finally coming into his own in last Saturday's game, the Spring French backfield is raring to go. The line, from end to end, is a veritable stone wall and charging very fast. With Gallo and Kawczynski the team has two of the sweetest receivers of forward passes in schoolboy ranks.

Beverly has not defeated Salem since 1922 and a sweet thing for Carroll it would be if he could tack a defeat on Broderick Thursday morning. This would wipe out the loss to Haverhill earlier in the year. Salem has a small weight advantage over Beverly, but the latter makes up for this with as fast a charging outfit as its rival.

18,000 Expected at Cooney Field

Cooney Field will be packed to capacity. It is expected that 18,000 fans will turn out to see the two teams in action as there is more interest in the battle this year than in all the years they have been in competition for Beverly has yet to defeat a Broderick coached team.

Lynn Classical plays Lynn English on Thanksgiving, and this game will be close, with English about one touchdown better, in one of the old school rivalry classics.

Malden should defeat Medford, as the latter has had a lean year, but Medford teams have a habit of upsetting the dope in Malden games

Newton and Brookline games looks pretty even, with the former a shade ahead. Winthrop visits Peabody in the final Turkey Day clash between the old North Shore rivals. Everett should win from Chelsea easily as the latter has had a very poor season, while Dinny Gildea's team has lost only one game.

Marblehead and Swampscott is a tossup, with Marblehead a slight favorite. Revere should win easily from St. John's high.

Fenway Park will be the gathering place for about 18,000 fans, with the big doubleheader between Boston English and Boston Latin, and Dorchester and Commerce.

Brockton goes to Waltham, with the former a slight favorite. Watch Hilliard and Mitkus in this game.

CHARLESTOWN, BRIGHTON TIE

Brighton almost had victory on two occasions. In the opening period it advanced to the Charlestown 10-yard line and in the third period it failed by inches in pushing over a touchdown.

Jimmy Lynch, Charlestown signal barker, made the longest run of the game, a 28-yard romp in the first period.

Boston May Have Harness Race Week

SPORTS REEL

All American center is Tommy Yarr, Notre Dame captain, if consensus of experts' opinions mean a thing. With his hand in a cast, Yarr made every pass good, all season. And his defensive play was outstanding. When the pickers recall the teams Notre Dame faces, Yarr's claim for fame will be rated highly.

Marches for Army! Ken Fields, West Point field general, sends one far down the field in practice for the game at New York Saturday with Notre Dame. Fields and his pals figure now they have a good chance with the Ramblers, who were battered in the game with U. S. C. (Int'l Photos)

Shaver of U.S.C. Ranks With Great Backs of '31

By WARREN BROWN

Chicago, Nov. 24 (US)—The number of experts who have been on a still hunt for a person answering to the description of an All-American fullback have my permission to quit hunting.

The guy has been scared up. His name is Gaius Shaver and he plays with Southern California.

He has been a quarterback by trade, but last Saturday he became a fullback, by necessity. And there hasn't been a fullback like him seen hereabouts this season.

Shaver Played Well Through Full Game

Johnny Baker, the guard who kicked that 23-yard placement goal that entitled to the full measure of plaudits from the junior chamber of commerce of Los Angeles.

Without Baker's boot, Southern California today would be mulling over the merits of a moral victory, instead of whooping up an actual victory

But Baker's boot was a matter of not more than a few seconds. Shaver's play was a matter of a whole afternoon, against the strongest competition that comes the way of any back, any afternoon, any year.

Shaver May Make All American Berth

Shaver ran well and powerfully. He ran elusively. He passed with precision.

Whether Shaver gets what is his just due, a job on the All-American, is something that only the month to come will determine

The young man is probably satisfied, as it is, with the part he played in ending the Notre Dame victory march

On that day, at least, he was All-American.

Former Ring Stars on Sheehan Card

Ring heroes of other years will appear at the Jack Sheehan testimonial which will be staged by the Argonne A. A. at the Arena on next Monday night. Included in the list of oldtimers who will do their part to make the testimonial a success are Kid Goodman, Chester Goolwin, Nate Siegal, Jimmy Welsh, Al Delmont, Sam Langford, Joe Wilcox, Jack (Twin) Sullivan, Bill McKinnon, Emergency Kelly, Dave Dashler, Jimmy Briggs, Red Coleman, Honeyboy Finnegan and many others.

There will also be two ten-round bouts. Al Friedman will oppose Tony Shucco, while Wolf Larsen will take on Leo Larvee.

The proposed bout between Al Brown and Andy Martin is out.

H.C. PLAYS ELI; DARTMOUTH MEETS BROWN

New York, Nov. 24 (AP)—Football fans may yet see a replay of that famous 33-to-33 tie to which Yale and Dartmouth battled earlier in the season.

Pairings for the charity round robin to be played in the Yale Bowl December 5 pit Yale against Holy Cross and Dartmouth against Brown in the two preliminary games, the winners to meet in the final. Success of the Yale-Dartmouth feud depends on what success the Elis and Indians have against Holy Cross and Brown.

The pairings for the preliminary games were made arbitrarily after the original plan of drawing lots had been abandoned by mutual consent. Yale has not played Holy Cross nor has Dartmouth met Brown during the regular season.

The first game, decided by the toss of a coin, will begin at 1 o'clock, and the second will follow immediately. After a 15-minute intermission the finalists will come out for battle

All games will be 24 minutes long, played in 12-minute halves.

CANADIENS AT GARDEN

The Bruins are still far below top form, however, they firmly they are overcoming the handicap of a far too brief training period

Though they have lost to the Rangers and Canadiens since blanking Detroit, 1 to 0, in their first and only local showing, they firmly they impressed Manager Art Ross a lot more in their last two defeats than they did in their lone victory, and the pilot promises that they will make a far more satisfactory showing tonight than they did a week ago.

The chief trouble with the Bruins thus far has been a weak attack for a team as the Bruins acquire their full speed and perfect their passing game all will be well.

Three Tough Games for Bruins This Week

Tonight's game is the first of three the Bruins will be called upon to play this week and each is a tough one.

They will face the fast, tireless Chicago Blackhawks at the Garden on Thursday evening and hop to Toronto for a game with the Maple-leafs on Saturday night.

At their weakest they are mighty tough for the strongest opponent to beat at the Garden and they are confident they will get out of the cellar before another week ends.

They may be mistaken about that but he where they may after this trio of tilts, they should then be primed to start their drive for the top, where they belong and will eventually land.

MANUFACTURER TELLS WHY HE PROSPERS

By B. C. FORBES

Here is the most refreshing story of business progress I've encountered in months:

A company employing 6000 has increased sales this year 61 per cent. Its increase in customers has reached 5,400,000—last month alone its customers exceeded 3,000,000. It has made money steadily every month for the last fifteen months. Sales in 1929 were less than $7,000,000. This year they will approximate $13,000,000

When I asked Charles G. Guth, president of Loft, the well-known candy concern, how he went about effecting such extraordinary results during a depression when one would expect candy purchases to fall off, he replied, in effect:

"When my associates and I took control eighteen months ago, the company was in red ink, the stores and manufacturing plant were starving for business, everybody thought the end was in sight.

"Well, the first thing we did was to raise the salaries of all the key men and women. That added another $10,000 a week to the already large deficit. Then we deliberately reduced prices about 40 per cent.

"Had we been in the hands of bankers at that point, they would have closed us up sure as shooting!

Huge Advertising Campaign

"We proceeded to throw out of the windows all substitutes, imitations, what-nots, the kind used by some candy manufacturers soda fountains, lunch rooms and 'filling stations.' We launched upon a policy of making only the very best products.

"Not only so, but we leaped right into the limelight, bought all the back pages of the newspapers and began advertising on a scale that would make most department stores gasp.

"Did the public respond? Sales last year were about $9,000,000, this year they will be in the neighborhood of $13,000,000.

Politics Barred in Business

"What's the cure for this so-called depression? Advertising—provided you have something to sell. Most of the birds now complaining loudest haven't anything to sell to start with.

"Yes, we are strong for advertising—very good reasons. Think what it has done for us. Although we have spent as much as $50,000 in a single month in newspaper advertising, we have brought in so much new business that our advertising cost to attract this increased business has been but 25 per cent and our advertising cost on total sales has always been inside of 1½ per cent—a record we are not ashamed to shout to the world from the top of the Empire State Building.

"We attend to business and don't interest ourselves one iota in Wall Street or any other kind of bankers. We don't own 'em a nickel and never will, because we are going to keep the faith we promised ourselves, never to mix politics with business!

"We are enthusiastic over our organization, and we face the future—as well as the present—with a smile."

Materials Thoroughly Tested

Perhaps it was because I was ardently urged by a quartet of my young hopefuls that I visited the Loft candy plant in Long Island City. The first impression which registered was its magnitude. The second, and most important, was its scrupulous cleanliness. The third was the amazing efficiency of the bewildering labyrinth of machinery. The young tribe accompanying me very freely sampled the ingredients as well as the finished product, and pronounced it good. For my part, I was struck by the pains taken to make certain that the materials were thoroughly tested before being manufactured.

Is it not refreshing to know, despite conditions, that some executives have demonstrated that it is possible to go vigorously and prosperously ahead?

Kelvinator Turns in Profit

From another enterprise I have also obtained encouraging facts. President G. W. Mason of Kelvinator, states that net earnings for the year ended September increased 10 per cent over last year, and 15 per cent over 1929. Cash on hand has doubled in the last 12 months. Funded indebtedness has been reduced $1,850,000, with no bank indebtedness. Subsidiaries did equally well. Note this:

"In 1931, for the first time in our history, the fourth quarter of our fiscal year—July, August, September—produced a profit. Perhaps this was partly due to our spending fully $100,000 more this year than last year on research and engineering developing, all charged to operating expenses. We are looking forward to a continuation of growth in 1932."

Running into H. F. Alexander—Bert Alexander to his friends—who has played a prominent and picturesque part in building up Pacific shipping, I learned that he is devoting most of his time to opening up what he calls "the greatest oil pool in the world," just outside of Los Angeles. It promises, he says to eclipse even the unique Kettleman Hills. Mr. Alexander figures that his oil El Dorado will net enough money to sink a bigger ship than ever sailed the Pacific—or the Atlantic.

It's a great state, California.

Hears:

That there is very little news available on which stock market calculations can be based. Bearishness is still in vogue although there are a few tape watchers who lean toward the theory that the breakup of the bear market is to be a gradual affair. Generally the views of the latter con form in previously expressed ideas that oil mo tor accessory, motor and selected specialty shares have already reversed their trend.

Sterling

The sharp dip of sterling ex change from the levels of a week ago has occasioned fear that it is not well with Engl in finance. Eng land's financial affairs are far from perfection, but there is a disposition on the part of bankers to attribute the drop of exchange to known rather than unknown factors. Normally this is the time of year when England pays her debts on imports. This in itself is quite a strain even under more normal conditions. Then again the rush to get goods into England before the tariff became effective has resulted in abnormal indebtedness to exporting countries.

Both bankers and traders agree that as soon as the temporary strain is eased it will be a simple matter to turn sterling once again in the direction. Abnormal, it is unlikely that concerted attempts to mark up the pure will be made

The Chartists

Most chartists have come to the point in their calculations where they do not know whether to do some independent thinking of whether they should run with the crowd. Through this and all previous bear markets the breaking of a former low by either of the two major groups has been a signal that the other group would soon follow. Yet the end of every bea. market has come when the supposition of the Dow Jones averages has terminated with one group refusing the lead of the other. Today chartists are faced with the latter possibility

Toward the end of bear markets, when the trailing public, dazed by a long string of recovers, turns to mechanical market experiments that should have been followed earlier, it is only natural that the second side of the picture be emphasized.

Boardroom Briefs

Naturally the rush of new chair readers to the bear standard causes fanatical observers to wonder if the majority can sudden. reverse their position and he right

BONDS RETIRED BY BIG U. S. COMPANIES

By FRANK H. MELDON

Big corporations which are in good shape financially are taking advantage of comparatively cheap money to effect bond retirements. New announcements of such action made this week include Standard Oil of New Jersey's and International Business Machines. The big oil leader will retire $30,000,000 of its bonded and International Business Machines $736,000, making a total for the last named company of $946,000 retired this year

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

RAILROAD stocks today were still unsettled by the wage controversy further light on which may be thrown by the conference of labor heads in Chicago on Dec. 8. Long delay appears certain. New Haven firmed after settling a new low

Market Dull Most of Today's Session

The market was very dull most of today's session. Like the weather it was reminiscent of midsummer. Public utility stocks turned upward a shade on reports that no legislative restrictions would be attempted in the coming session of Congress

Oils Firm Up on Decreased Output

The oils firmed up most of today on reports of a further decrease in crude oil production Standard of New Jersey, which is retirin "30,000,000 of her outstanding bonds, moved up about a point, while Standard of California and Sconny-Vacuum were selling fractionally higher

Allied Chemical Pays on Preferred

Directors of Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation today took no action on a stock dividend on the common shares. At the November meetings last year and in 1929 payments of 1½ per cent each in stock were voted. Regular quarterly cash dividend on the common, amounting to $1.50 a share will be considered at the meeting Dec. 2. Usual $1.75 payment on the preferred was authorized today, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 11

Public Service Of New Jersey

A study of monthly reports of earnings by Public Service Co. of New Jersey recently indicates that the management has been able to keep complete control over expenses. The latest report for October showed a decrease in gross revenues as compared with a year ago, but there was an increase of nearly $200,000 in net income after ta.xes .. in utility circles it has been pointed out for some time that the management has given active study to expenditures and the efforts toward economy and efficiency have permitted the company to make comparatively favorable statements for some months.

Westinghouse Electric's Dividend Prospects

Liquidation in Westinghouse Electric in the past week is not surprising in view of the knowledge that the business of the company fell off quite sharply last month While there has been no intimation regarding November thus far, interests usually well-informed do not anticipate any material change for the better at this time. In fact, prediction of somewhat less business than in October have been heard in speculative quarters. Because of the falling off in volume there has been considerable talk regarding future dividend prospects

International Nickel's Current Business

Reports from Canada have quoted officials of International Nickel as stating that the business of the company in nickel in the first half of the current month was in excess of any similar period since May

Chesapeake & Ohio An Exception

Chesapeake & Ohio is one of the exceptions among the railroads this year so far as earnings are concerned. While revenues have been affected by general conditions Chesapeake & Ohio is one of the carriers which will show the $2.50 a share dividend earned. As a matter of fact the results of the 10 months ended with October showed income available for the common stock in excess of the year's dividend requirements. This fact has been responsible for good scale buying coming into the issue on several occasions recently. Switching from other rails in the same price class into Chesapeake & Ohio also has been reported in several of the larger commission houses

Niagara Hudson Acquisition Big Aid

The lower result probably overlooked United's last acquisition of Niagara Hudson stock, which pays 40 cents a share in annual dividends. Interests looking for the future favor showing control that if United carries the present portfolio in 1932 with no further dividend changes to contend with it should earn around 71 cents a share in the next 12 months' period

RAIL SHARES AT NEW LOWS IN BOSTON

Rail shares were marked to new low levels in today's dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange. Losses in most instances in this group were limited to a narrow range. Boston & Maine prior preferred. New Haven and Pennsylvania all sold at new lows on fractional recessions.

Utilities were mixed with Edison, showing a loss of a point, while American Telephone and New England Telephone were slightly higher. Eastern Gas & Fuel common dropped a point and the prior preferred sagged 2 points to a new low for the year

American Woolen preferred advanced a point. Fractional advances were shown for Gillette, United Fruit and United Shoe. R. D. Warren touched its previous low for the year on a 2-point drop Mergenthaler lowered a point and Kreuger & Toll eased a minor fraction

SPECTATOR

Says:

There is an old Wall St. adage to the effect that it is "always darkest before dawn." Well, certainly, the market has never been as dark and foreboding as in the past few days, and if the environment gets any blacker it will probably prove difficult for bullish leaders to even recognize searchlights of hope if and when they appear. Today's short covering brought some initial cheer.

Prices Are Low

From the unbiased observer's point of view, it seems somewhat difficult to envisage any further important declines from present levels. And yet were you to tell financial leaders months back that New York Central would be selling at the level of $35 a share before the year was ushered out, the statement would have been regarded as a trifle more absurd to warrant contradiction.

Go elsewhere along the list. Just about two years ago powerful support was enhanced to hold his steel above the 150 level, and 1932 new lows, below the 60 mark, and from the comment heard in brokerage quarters one might think that directors are considering dissolution of the corporation.

Pessimism

How to account for the present pessimistic frame of mind is not difficult. All one has to do is to take his own individual case. One or two days of successive decline in one's stockholdings is passed by with a shrug of the shoulders as holding little significance. Tack on a few days more of losses and one becomes a trifle more concerned. Should new low levels be established as has been so prevalen in recent days one becomes really alarmed going over the financial happenings of the day in an effort to see just what is taking place.

When it comes down to a position as at present, where leading stocks have hid near low ground in 11 of the past 12 sessions, frightened investors begin to think the world is coming to an end and start to lop off their holdings at the market

Still, one has only to remember that classic reply of "this too, stopped raining before," with the likelihood that the present storm is no exception.

Chicago, St. Louis Net Income Down

Net income of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad for the 10 months ended October 31 was $2,904,989 in the corresponding period of 1930

This was equivalent to $1.12 a share of 580,536 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock, after $3,277,-526 on 337,074 shares of common in the first 10 months of 1930 after preferred dividend requirements.

Swedish Mfg. Calls Off Wage Reduction

Stockholm, Nov. 24—Reductions in wages ranging from 6 per cent to 18 per cent recently announced by Swedish Manufacturing Industry of General Motors Corp., have been rescinded as result of depreciation of Swedish crown which has followed suspension of the gold standard in Sweden. It is understood that no reductions have been taken regarding the Copenhagen plant.

Million Worcester Award for Shawmut

Worcester has awarded to Shawmut Corporation at 3.27 per cent $1,000,000 revenue notes due June 15, 1932. Other bidders were Worcester County National Bank 3.585 per cent; Mechanics National Bank, Worcester, 3.60 per cent plus $5 and Guaranty Co., N. Y., 4.90 per cent plus $10.

Dividends

Welch Grape Juice Company today declared the usual extra dividend of 25 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 25 cents on the common stock, both payable November 30.

Dartmouth Manufacturing Corp at New Redford, deferred action on the common dividend due at this time. Regular preferred dividend of $1.25 a share was declared payable Dec. 1. Common dividend of 31 a share was paid three months ago

International Business Machines Corp. declared a 5 per cent stock dividend, the fourth consecutive annual payment of the same amount, in addition to the regular dividend of $1.50 a share. Both are payable Jan. 11.

Great Northern Iron Ore Properties declared a dividend of $1 payable Dec. 28, to holders of record Dec. 7. Similar payment was made May 21, 1931.

BEARS COVER ON WIDE SCALE IN WALL ST.

New York, Nov. 24—Bears covered on a broad scale in late trading on the New York Stock Exchange today, after extreme dullness had prevailed through most of the session.

A number of prominent shares were lifted 2 to 3 or more points in the final hour.

1,500,000-SHARE DAY.

The closing tone was strong. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares. Issues up around 2 to 3 included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, du Pont, Allied Chemical, American Smelting, Eastman and Union Pacific.

With dullness continuing, it was evident that many traders were inclined to hold aloof. It was felt in some quarters that the list had been overbought and that a technical rally was due, but aggressive efforts to drive shorts to cover were lacking.

New York and Harlem, which is largely held by the New York Central, appeared at a new low at 115¼. This stock sold as high as 509 in 1929. Pennsylvania sagged a point to a new low at 20¾.

Railroads were still the focal point of speculative attention. The low state of railway earnings and buying was mirrored in Baldwin Locomotive's omission of its preferred dividend. Advance estimates of the weekly report of freight car loadings indicated a drop of 26,000 cars from the preceding period.

REAL HEADS CONFER.

Leadings usually shrink substantially during the early weeks of November, and a reduction of this magnitude would be only about half the drop of the like period of last year.

While heads of the Eastern roads met to consider further steps to bring about a reduction in wages, it was learned that employes of the Georgia & Florida, including members of the Brotherhood, had voluntarily accepted a 10 per cent cut. This appeared to be an unusual situation, however, in which complete cessations of operations was threatened.

Dividend resettlers continue one of the chief obstacles in the stock market, although most issues in which either rate cuts or passed are already selling at levels discounting the actual developments. A private tabulation recently made by an investment trust shows that 903 dividend payments have been omitted this year, and 677 others have been reduced, indicating a shrinkage of dividend payments from last year of $636,323,000.

The money market was fairly easy with call loans holding officially at 2½ per cent. The weekly condition statement of reserve member banks showed a rise of $41,000,000 in security loans, which was attributable to the taking over of "loans for others." Investments were off $52,000,000, giving a clue to recent selling in the bond market.

WHEAT HIGHER IN CHICAGO

Chicago, Nov. 24 (AP)—Strong commission houses absorbed surplus offerings of wheat late today, and the market jumped more than 2 cents a bushel from early to bottom levels.

Stop loss selling had resulted from disclosure of the actual position of the federal farm board's controlled wheat holdings, which were shown to be larger even than most traders had believed.

Helping to rally the wheat market was announcement that purchases of North American wheat today for shipment overseas totaled 1,600,000 bushels.

George Hammond With Finance Assr.

George Hammond, director of public relations in the Chicago office of Albert Frank & Co., national advertising agency, has been appointed chairman of the publicity committee of the Financial Advertisers' Association, according to an announcement by Charles H. McMahon, president.

He succeeds E. T. Cunningham of Halsey, Stuart & Co. Mr. Hammond became associated with Albert Frank & Co. two years ago, after having served on the editorial staff of the Chicago Tribune for 10 years—most of the time as assistant financial editor.

Doherty Champion Wall St. Director

Henry L. Doherty is still champion director in New York, holding boards of 123 companies, according to new issue of "Directory of Directors in City of New York." Patrick E. Crowley, resigned recently as president of New York Central, comes second, with 94 directorates. Richard F. Hoyt, Mathew C. Brush, Leonor F. Loree, Percy A. Rockefeller, Albert H. Wiggin, Mathew Sloan, Harold S. Vanderbilt and Sidney Z. Mitchell follow in that order.

Curb Market Rallies Moderately at Close

New York, Nov. 24—Curb stocks displayed moderate rallying tendencies today, with active speculative buying for a turn and fairly heavy short covering influencing generally higher stocks all along the line.

Utilities set the pace for the advance, although gains were not sensational in character.

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

LABOR FOR 6-HOUR DAY

This is the 18th of a series of studies of the six-hour-day plan, advocated by William Randolph Hearst.

By LAURA VITRAY

Labor unions are practically unanimous in favoring the six-hour day.

Recently the Boston 'American has been in correspondence with a large number of labor unions throughout the country, seeking to learn the attitude of the workers toward the six-hour plan.

The replies that have come in indicate that the suggestion has met with widespread approval, even as they indicate the need for immediate adoption of some such plan to eliminate widespread suffering this winter.

"Thirty-five per cent of our men are unemployed," says one of the officials of the Pattern Makers League. "In addition many not reported out of work are working very short time.

"I do not believe there would be any objection on the part of the members of our organization to a reduction in their weekly earnings if the hours of labor were reduced and the hourly wage rates maintained so that men now out of employment could be employed. I am in doubt sure that we would encounter no opposition in reducing hours to whatever minimum was necessary to give all men employment."

MACHINISTS LIKE PLAN

Between 35,000 and 40,000 machinists are out of work today, accc ding to information supplied the American by the International Association of Machinists.

"It is feasible to work six hours a day, five days a week, throughout our craft," the president, A. O. Wharton, writes. "This is, of course, supposing for a very few exceptions, due to the very limited number of maintenance machinists employed in factories and on railroads.

"If the plan were generally put into effect all members of our organization now out of work could be employed.

FUR WORKERS BACK PLAN

"No one should be given great credit for his forward thinking and courageous public advocacy of the six-hour day. It is feasible and necessary."

Meanwhile the Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada, in a recent issue of the official union magazine. The Fur Worker' Hope, urged employers to agree to share the work available. During the past year, under a "relief" agreement with this organization with employers, equal division of work has been in force in New York city alone.

"A little straight thinking," the magazine says, "will convince any sane employer that the only way to relieve the misery of the unemployed, or the competition for the job and depressing wages. And it encourages employers to maltreat their employes.

"Equal distribution of work in not merely a sound principle of solidarity, it is a wise practice.

WORKERS TO GAIN

"While it may seem to some a loss of a few hours' work, it will be formed into a gain, because wages will be maintained, and no doubt increased, compensating for the loss and giving more leisure and rest."

Labor unions have not forgotten the fact that, although hours of labor have steadily decreased in the past 50 years, wages, in all normal times, have steadily continued to rise.

This is, they believe, the inevitable adjustment in an age when machines are assuming the burden of heavy toil, and men assuming his true position as the machine's master.

Tomorrow we will print the first of a series of interviews with prominent business men in New York city and elsewhere, giving Boston American readers the views of these leaders on the six-hour working day.

STUDY HOSPITAL

The training of adult hygiene is making a historical study of the causes and motivating forces that led to the establishment of the state cancer hospital at Pondville. Rep. William D. Prendergast of Charlestown, who took a leading part in the fight for the institution, has been asked to make a contribution to the study.

DANDELIONS NOVELTY

As a general rule the State House workmen regard dandelions in the capital lawn as objectionable and remove them whenever they come across them. Just now, however, the yellow blossoms which have been brought out by the unseasonable mild weather, are rarer's curiosities—something to point out to visitors.

SCHUSTER CHARITABLE

Walter E. Schuster of Douglas, whose will turns out some of the finest wicker goods in the state, report's doing a good business during the present depression. And probably no man in the state does so much personal charity work, deeds of which only his intimates know.

GLYNN TO SPEAK

Former Fire Commissioner Theodore A. Glynn will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the class of 1923 of the South Boston Franklin D. Roosevelt Club in their headquarters in J st. tonight.

WATSON TO CONFER

James E. Watson of Hyde Park, who is to seek election as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention next year, and who is one of the most staunch supporters of the candidacy of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for the presidency, leave for that city today to confer with James A. Farley, chairman of the Empire State Democratic committee. He will be accompanied by John F. Doherty, also of Hyde Park, who was a floor leader for McAdoo at the 1924 convention.

TO RUN FOR COUNCIL

Rumor has it that City Councilor Michael J. Mahoney of Ward 6, South Boston, who was defeated for re-election to that office recently, will be a candidate for Governor's Council from that district next year in the event that the present incumbent, James H. Brennan of Charlestown, decides to enter the campaign for Congress.

Leadership Needed

Congress Should Lift Burden From Cities and States

Mr. Frank Murphy, the young gentleman who is mayor of the great city of Detroit, left with us the very decided impression that he knows what it is all about.

Free speech does and will continue to abound there, he explained.

The Radical, Liberal or What Are You can mount the soapbox on any street corner and discuss his panacea for relief of the world.

Detroit was hit harder than most American cities, but so long as the people have been able to talk about it without restraint there has been an absence of riots and unpeaceful demonstrations.

The city housed 14,000 jobless, single men in idle factories and fed them during the cold winter months when they were hungry.

It provided also for its indigent old folks and supplied a program of useful public works for men with families dependent upon them.

A study is being made of the five-day week and the six-hour day and that beneficent system will be established if the needs justify it in Detroit "without waiting for Washington."

He caustically assailed Congress for adjourning and running away from the great problem of relief when the depression amounted to "a national calamity."

Mr. Hoover, should have brought Congress back and settled the dire American problem instead of frittering away his time with foreign diplomats on THEIR problems.

In view of all these facts, Mayor Murphy seemed to have reached a sound estimate of conditions when he declared:—

"American cities have become the battleground of social justice. The State Capitols, in many instances, are too far away from the people. The government at Washington has been too far removed; it has been too indifferent. The municipalities themselves have had to wrestle with the great social problems in this era of transition."

The delinquency of the national government has been partly atoned by the heroic efforts in this crisis of some Governors like Joseph B. Ely and by some aggressive, humane mayors.

But there is yet much to be done if we are to get out of the woods entirely.

Congress will be in session again in two weeks.

And it should promptly adopt Mr. Hearst's proposal of the Five-Billion-Dollar Prosperity Loan, which can put 5,000,000 men to work on valuable projects and at a living wage.

The national government should give us some show of leadership. And it should absorb some of the burdens which have been borne by States like Massachusetts and fine cities like Detroit and Boston.

Victory for Power Trust

President Hoover has obtained from his commission "to devise a plan for the disposition of Muscle Shoals" exactly the kind of a report it was appointed to make.

It was a Power Trust commission and it has submitted a Power Trust report.

For the plan this commission has "devised" would turn over Muscle Shoals to private ownership—which means the Power Trust.

United States Government engineers built the Muscle Shoals power plant.

This plant can furnish one of the largest single blocks of power east of Boulder Dam and south of Niagara Falls and the St. Lawrence River. All parts of ten States could be served by this vast public enterprise.

But under the Power Trust plan, devised by President Hoover's Power Trust commission, this valuable property of the people, built by the engineers of their Government and paid for by their own money, would be turned over to the Power Trust.

No municipality, no county, no farm organization, under this Power Trust plan, would get any surplus power developed at Muscle Shoals unless they bought it from a private transmission line, which would mean buying it from the Power Trust.

Thus would the Power Trust be enabled further to exploit the people and further to tighten its grip upon the power resources of our country.

As Senator Norris of Nebraska truly says:

"Another Hoover commission appointed to carry out Hoover ideas" has in its report "under the cloak of relief to the farmer" sought to disguise "the Power Trust wolf."

Naturally, all the Power Trust papers, whether owned or controlled by the Power Trust, are highly elated at the President's action in appointing this Power Trust commission and in the Power Trust plan which it has devised.

Naturally, these papers are rejoicing at the prospect of the people's property being turned over to the Power Trust for exploitation.

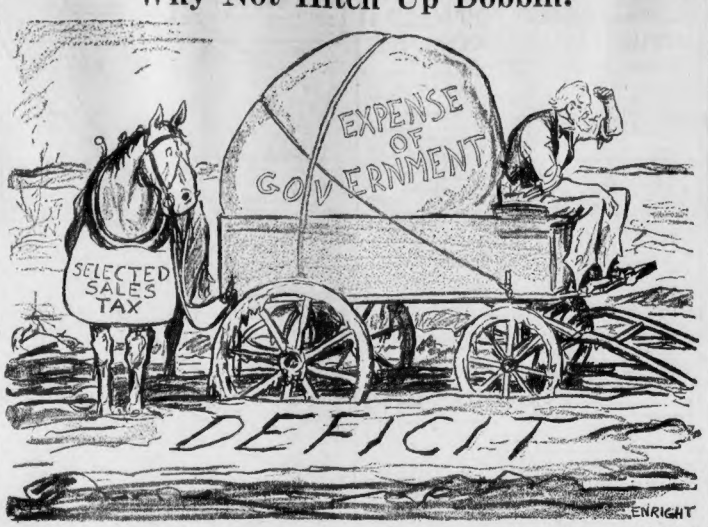
But before this wicked scheme is approved by the Congress, the legislative branch of the Government should turn on the light and keep it turned on until all the ramifications of this scheme are exposed to public view.

How much the Power Trust subscribed to the Republican Presidential campaign fund of 1928 may not be known. Whatever the amount was, however, it was not enough, considering the services it has already received at the hands of the Republican Administration now in power.

Perhaps the Power Trust will make up for any deficiency in its contribution to the present Republican Presidential campaign fund next year.

Surely a trust which can afford to buy newspapers, subsidize others, hire college professors and provide employment for those public officials who have served it faithfully while in public office can afford to contribute liberally to the campaign fund of the Republican Party, when it considers how generous that party has been to it with the people's money and the people's property at Muscle Shoals and elsewhere.

Why Not Hitch Up Dobbin?



Samuel peers into the horizon for some miraculous assistance to get his wagon out of the mire, meanwhile passing up the means at hand—a SELECTED SALES TAX.

Continuation of his Do Nothing policy will never move the wagon.

Canada, France and the Philippines have successfully applied the sales tax principle to their revenue raising needs and report it a great success.

What they have done and are doing, Uncle CAN DO, IF HE WILL.

New York Day by Day -:- By O. O. McIntyre

"Taking It on the Chin"

NEW YORK, Nov. 24—Out of the welter of lightning changes to a world in convulsion, the most impressive thing to me is the utter complacency of those one never imagined could "take it on the chin" without sniveling. It is a bromide to say stern stuff oozed out of the upheaval, but all truths are trite.

Came a note this morning typical of the times, which said in part: "You will not believe that after years of earning $500 a week at least, I am happy on an income that has not topped $25. Furthermore, I sleep nights and do not jump out of my skin when the phone rings."

Recently at a theater I met a man in the lobby after the show. I remarked I did not see him in the audience. "I was there," he said, "but in the last row of the balcony, and I enjoyed it as much as I ever did in the first two or three rows downstairs."

Whether true or not, he was not whining or attempting to hide his status. For years he has been a fairly consistent first nighter, always well down front in spruce evening clothes. Then there is the lady who recently did extra typing for me.

I visited her because her sign beckoned in my immediate neighborhood — "Public Stenographer." Handing me the work, she inquired: "Is it possible you do not remember me?" Despite a greatly changed appearance, which included snow white hair, I looked closely and in a flash recalled her.

Four years ago she lived two floors below me in a New York hotel. Hers was one of those stenographic romances with a rich employer. They entertained lavishly, and frequently I saw her bowling up with a grandiose flourish to the hotel's marquee in various and costly limousines.

Her husband, a victim of margin gambling, leaned out his high office window a year ago and let go. I could only murmur a slightly embarrassed sympathy. "It is not likely," she said, "you will understand, but save for the loss of my husband, I'm happier than I've been for years."

Daniel Frohman was recalling the color and romance of the old Hoffman House the other day. Oscar Hammerstein used to drop in at intervals for a cocktail priced at 15 cents. One day he was surprised to find the tariff tilted to 25 cents. He objected and the bartender explained that the artistic decorations and beautiful paintings cost money. Several days later Hammerstein went in holding his hands over his eyes and said: "Just give me my usual 15-cent drink. I don't care to see the pictures today."

With few exceptions every club, exclusive and not so snooty, in town has cut rates for rooms, and many have shaved their membership fees. Another break for the clubman is the delay in posting names for nonpayment of dues. Some postpone this humiliation for two months, and any number have abolished the custom until there is a new sun in the sky. The two leading theatrical clubs are fighting valiantly to stave off bankruptcy.

Oddly, the most reasonably priced room rate is that of the Metropolitan—the "Millionaires' Club," with its patina of pomp and luxury-dripping heaviness. It was scaled low at the opening and never changed. Membership is $1000 a year.

If I were a "liner"—and a'help I'll never be—my choice of pureiy social clubs would be The Players, occupying the old Edwin Booth home on the southerly side of Gramercy. It has a Quakerish "thee" mellowness. One thinks of a high-backed Jacobean chair, a crackling log fire, a long-stemmed meerschaum—and a world shut out. Despite its quiet dignity, the ancient rafters shiver now and then from the combustion generated by the Elizabethan jocularity of Oliver Herford.

Ed Wynn says what this country really needs is a good five cent nickel.

Few visiting Englishmen had so many friends as the late Sir Thomas Lipton. They were discussing him the other midnight in a crepuscular corner of a penthouse. "It was his one regret," said one admirer, "that he had never married." Silence. And up piped John Golden, in person: "The first thing a wife would have done would be to snatch that cap from him."

And Nat Burns reports there was a slump in the depression but it has now recovered itself.

A House Divided

(Copyright, 1931, by the Curtis Publishing Company)

Reprinted from the Saturday Evening Post of November 21 by Permission of the Editor

WHEN George Bernard Shaw, in a recent radio talk, spoke of Americans as "boobs" he was simply voicing an opinion that must be rather generally held in Europe, judging by various speeches and articles that have appeared in the foreign press during the last few months.

While in America Stephen Lauzanne, editor of Le Matin, a leading Parisian newspaper, contributed an article to the New York Times, from which we made some excerpts:

"Two streams have divided America. There is the stream of big business represented by Wall Street, and there is the popular stream represented by Congress. Sometimes the two streams run side by side, often they run one against the other; today they seem very near to clash with a violence increased by the harshness of present times.

Reproduced by Permission

"Wall Street is naturally haunted by the desire to thaw its credits frozen in the German icebox and to start again on the road of business and investments. Wall Street believes that to obtain such a purpose the best way is to whitewash all political international debts. Germany cannot, of course, pay every one, and the best way is to allow her to pay something to her American private creditors. Therefore, for two months Wall Street has exercised a heavy pressure in Washington in order that international debts may be cancelled.

"And the curious thing is that the cornerstone of the Republican party, which, in fact, is Wall Street, is also the stone which led the Republican party to stumble on the road of international aloofness. Wall Street, after having always helped the Republican party to triumph with the cry of 'No entanglements,' has entangled itself so far in European affairs that, volens nolens, it involves the whole party in these affairs."

This article shows something of what Europe thinks of us. What she thinks that is not for publication would make even more interesting reading. But M. Lauzanne's comment shows how far international propaganda has led us from traditional American policy which has been the source of our strength and our greatness. Small wonder that we seem like a house divided against itself. First we are pulled one way by Germany, then another by England, and then a third by France, though they all agreed on debt cancellation.

A final touch of fantasy is added to the situation in that the gold credits which we granted to Germany and to England have served only to weaken our own financial position.

In England the Rothermere press—its publications have enormous circulation not only in London but in the provinces—has been conducting a campaign against American credit, American securities and the American dollar. There has been a warm handclasp and a hearty British welcome in these newspapers for all nations that would go off the gold basis.

The dollar is as sound as a nut. If there is a wormhole in it anywhere, it is our foreign investments and credits. With the record of our European political and financial adventures since the Armistice so clear that even the veriest Bernard Shaw "boob" should be able to read it, the public is still being bamboozled and propagandized into the belief that our salvation is bound up in that of Europe.

Our internationalists maintain that the nations are now all one great family, though it is not apparent that they know it, and that we can only solve our problem by lending, giving, cooperating, mixing in and generally taking part in the affairs of Europe. Well, we tried all that, and we have the figures, in red, and the result in the icebox.

Until we return to the principles upon which this Republic was founded we shall go from bad to worse. If Europe, abetted by our cancellationists, chooses not to pay the war debts, our money will not have been entirely wasted if we have learned our lesson, if we have profited by our experiences, but there is no evidence of this. When some economic plan is proposed by European nations that is not at the expense of America it will show that they are beginning to think internationally in the real meaning of the word.

But up to this time all their international thinking has been for America, while they remained strongly nationalistic themselves.

Take the case of France. There are no apologetic Frenchmen. They are always French, always for France, whether they are inside or outside their country. Their eye is always on the main chance, on what is good for La Belle France. They know just what they want, and they go after it. They are not sentimentalists, they are realists. They will talk moonshine to the moon-struck, for they are a polite and obliging people. But when they mix in international affairs it is as nationalists, for they are primarily concerned with just one nation—France. It crops out in their every utterance, their every action. One feels a sincere admiration for their devotion to their country and its interests.

We agree with George Bernard Shaw on our boobery, but it is international boobery. All Summer long, at the time of all others when we should have been at home minding our own business, concentrating on our own depression, our own unemployment, our own national finances and our other multifarious troubles, we were roaming the highways of the world, poking our noses into other people's business, posing as Mr. International Fix-it, lending and investing our gold all over the world.

Yet our gold mine is exactly like Death Valley Scotty's, who had a hard-working business as the source of his supplies. It is in the brain and the hard work of the average farmer and the business man. It is in the accumulated capital of depositors in our banks, big and little, first of all to be safeguarded for them, and to be used in forwarding the business of America in conservative commercial banking operations.

We have declared a moratorium of a year on war debts. We should follow it up with a moratorium on Europe's financial and political affairs. A little sane concentration on our own affairs might make it possible for us to celebrate our next Thanksgiving Day as one of returning peace, prosperity and plenty.
